BRAIN TRUSTERS DRAFT RADICAL PLANS IN SECRET

Program Depends on November Vote.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt brain trust now bends its efforts toward the formation of a secret program of radical legislation to be put before the next congress.

All summer long the professors and their young satellites will toil with the leading New Dealers in devising legislation aimed to bring the nation's industry, agriculture, finance, and the people still closer within the domination and control of the federal government.

How far that program will go, it was learned today, depends entirely on the results of the November election, which also provides the motive for maintaining secrecy, so far as it can be maintained, on the main projects of the new schemes of the administration.

Plans Depend on Voters.

If the American voters, in November, send Democratic New Dealers into the next congress, in as great or greater strength than existed in the present congress, then the radical scheme which will be hatched in the meantime will be put boldly forth next January. It is learned from administration advisers that the plan is to gauge the severity of the program as exactly as may be determined from the strength of the New Dealers in the coming congress.

Should the congress be completely subservient to the will of the President, the full program will be put through. But if the congress borders on doubt, if the Roosevelt majority is slim, the plan is to proceed cautiously, much as was done in the last few months.

The swing of the New Deal, as it appears more and more clearly to Washington observers, is toward government control of national economics, and this will be the keynote of the program of the brain trust.

Critics See Dictatorship.

In this light critics have found it interesting to note how closely America is being shoved into the same paths which resulted in the establishment of the German, Russian and Italian dictatorships.

In each of the European countries the strength of the central government was manifested through federal control over 12 vital activities of commercial and social activity. A study of a list of these activities demonstrates that Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini have achieved full control over the dozen activities, and the degree to which the New Dealers are leading America into the same swing from private initiative toward governmental control easily may be perceived.

These 12 principal activities are agriculture, industry, banking, credit, securities, utilities, charity, transportation, communications, foreign trade, construction and education. The dictators of Europe control them all. The design of the brain trust, it is declared, is to place similar powers in the hands of the President or his successor, and the whole is presented to the public innocently as a "planned economy," aimed, as the brain trusters assert, at providing a more secure and a more "abundant" life.

Measure of Control Over All.

Already the New Deal has taken a measure of control over every one of the 12 cardinal activities, it is noted, and the plan of the brain trust is to increase that measure as swiftly as the temper of the people permits.

Discussions of the future plans of the administration are carried on everywhere within the New Deal, and it is the purpose of this dispatch to show the tenor of some of the schemes.

Chief among them will be the social insurance schemes, which will be put forward to create huge sums from taxations on industry and finance to provide future government doles for unemployed, for the aged and infirm, and even for the sick. Some of the conservative leaders in both parties have come to a belief, expressed by such as Ogden Mills and included in the Republican platform adopted at Chicago several weeks ago, that some form of unemployment insurance and old age pensions must be provided. But the intent of the radicals within the brain trust, it is said, is to give control of the huge sums to the federal government, whereas in other fields it is believed control by state governments would be wisest. The health insurance feature, which contemplates a socialized medical profession, is highly favored in most quarters of the administration.

PANIC AT DANCE AS LIGHTNING RAZES BUILDING

A terrific wind and rain storm swept the Chicago area late last night, uprooted trees, smashed windows, tore down electric wires and signs, and caused other damage. Northwest of the city, especially in Lake county, the elements were at their worst. Just west of Mundelein lightning struck and burned the Dietz Stables, a dance hall, and routed 500 patrons. At Fox Lake a sailboat was overturned with the probable loss of two lives.

The storm came up suddenly, although known to be on its way. It caught World's Fair throngs at the busiest and gayest hour, drenched thousands of them and sent more than 32,000 of them scurrying through the exit gates within 60 minutes. It also dropped temperatures from the high 80s to the low 70s.

Play Lively Air to Calm Crowd.

The destruction of the Dietz Stables was the most spectacular result of the storm and carried the most potential danger. The roadhouse, situated on route 59A a mile and a half west of Mundelein, was enjoying an unusually large attendance. When the storm broke a dance was in progress.

Suddenly an electric bolt struck the two story frame building with a thunderous crash. The entire interior appeared to become one vast glow of illumination. A moment later the roof burst into flames. Momentary panic seized the 500 patrons, but the orchestra struck a lilting number and Louis Dietz, the manager, moved around to calm them. All then fled in more or less orderly fashion to the outside in the rain. The building soon burned to the ground.

Tragedy Comes to Boat Party.

Meanwhile, at Fox lake tragedy overtook a week-end supper club party of a group of Waukegan lawyers and their wives. The group included Wilfred E. Hall, 35 years old, former assistant state's attorney of Lake county; his wife, Ebba; Corporation Counsel William R. Behanna of Waukegan and his wife Ada; Harry Hall, Waukegan attorney and star quarter back of the University of Illinois football teams of which "Red" Grange was a member ten years ago; Attorney Jack Bairstow and his wife, and Justice of the Peace Harold J. Tallett of Shields township and Mrs. Tallett.

The group was at the summer home of Mr. Bairstow on Crab Apple island in the northwest side of Fox lake. During the night a boating party was organized on Harry Hall's 25 foot sailboat. On board went Hall's brother Wilfred, Wilfred's wife Ebba, Corporation Counsel Behanna and Mrs. Behanna, Mr. Bairstow, and Justice Tallett.

All Thrown from Boat.

They were 400 feet off shore when the storm struck. The wind whipped the waves up to several feet, the highest ever seen on the lake. Rain poured down in sheets, adding to the trials of the boating party. Suddenly an unusually strong wind overturned the distressed craft. Every one was thrown into the water.

No one was able to find a holding place on the smooth upturned bottom of the boat, but Bairstow managed to seize the rudder. He held to this and Mr. Behanna, Mrs. Hall and Justice Tallett held on to him, all thus managing to remain afloat. Hall, best swimmer of them all, supported Mrs. Behanna. For 20 minutes they all cried for help. Finally their cries were heard ashore, and Harry Hall and John Fisher, a member of the board of directors of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, put out in motorboats for the scene.

Search for Missing Couple.

When they arrived the victims had been in the water some 30 minutes. Hall and Mrs. Behanna were nowhere to be seen and it was evident they had gone down. Fisher and Harry Hall picked up the survivors, took them to shore, and placed them under the care of Dr. Francis Rollins. All were suffering from shock and exposure. Later a searching party scoured the lake and shore for the missing Hall and Mrs. Behanna, but could not find them. Early today they commenced dragging the lake.

It was more than an hour after the storm had hit Lake county that it broke in Chicago. In many sections of the north shore, particularly in Winnetka, it felled large trees. One tree crashed on the home of William G. Forrest, 485 Willow road, Winnetka. Another grazed the car of

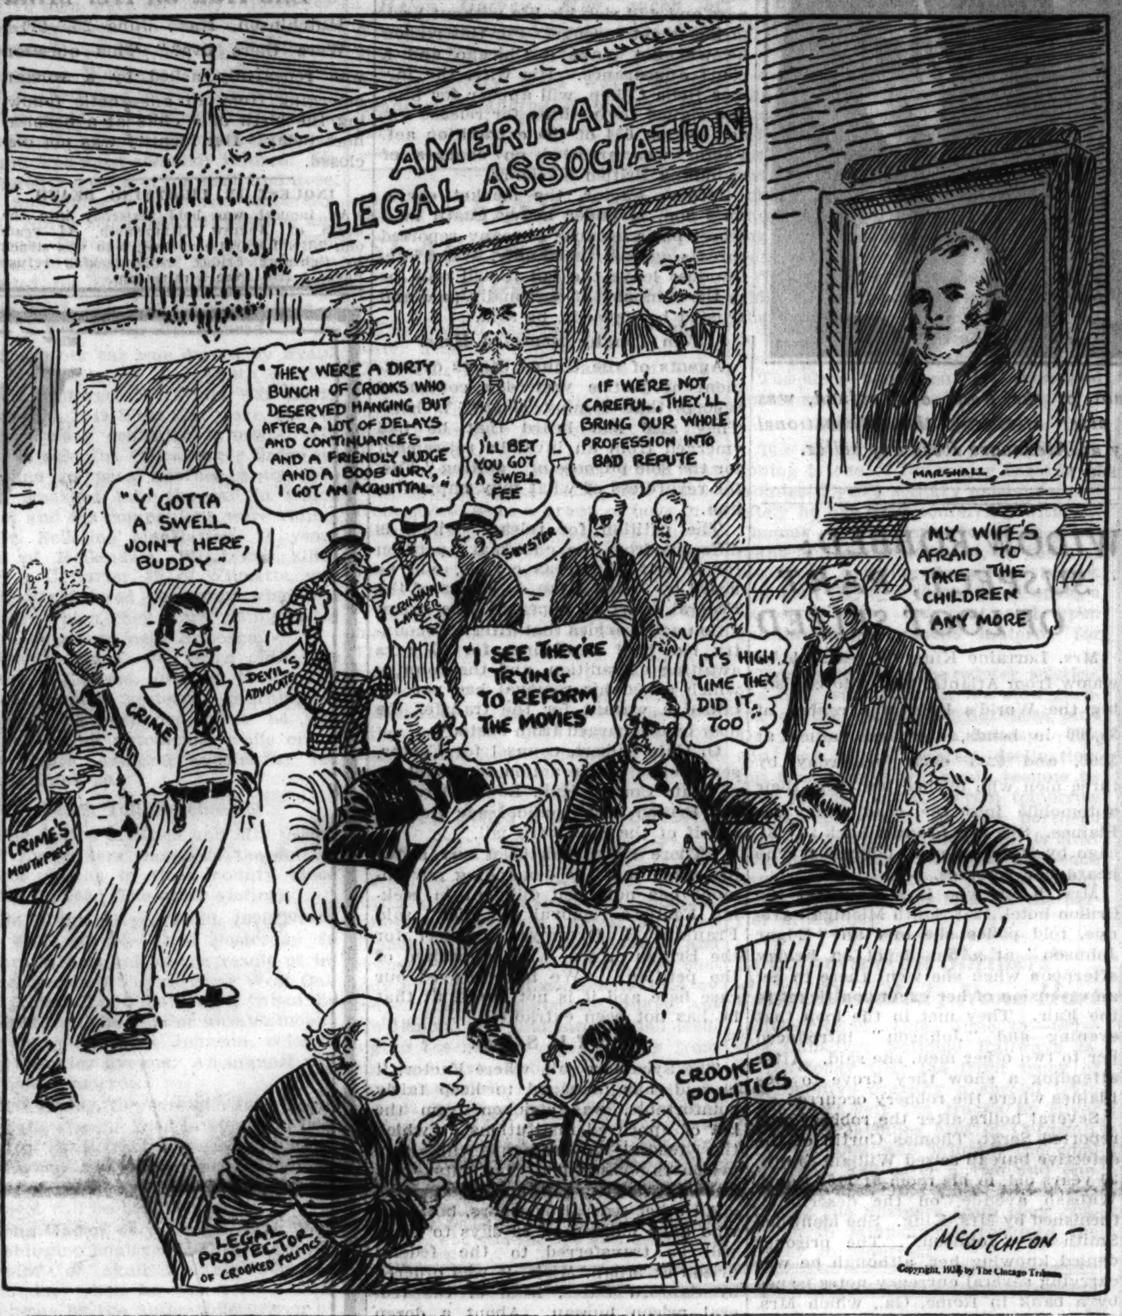
Vienna Tells U. S. to Take Poderjay

ANOTHER PROFESSION THAT COULD USE A REFORM MOVEMENT



Suburb Bans Film in Spite of Producer

The village of Glen Ellyn yesterday took a determined stand to halt the showing of a film deemed objectionable by the Glen Ellyn Parent-Teachers association. Notice was served on the producers, who have refused to cancel its booking, that the police department stands ready to enforce the ban.

The film under disfavor is "Lazy River," a tale of a Louisiana shrimp hatchery, produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It was found undesirable by a committee on censorship of the parent-teachers group on the ground that it glorifies ex-convicts and is liberally sprinkled with sexy scenes.

Under the block booking system of film distribution it was listed for presentation at the Glen theater, Glen Ellyn's $200,000 cinema house. No date has yet been fixed for the showing. The theater owner has no choice under this system.

Committee Votes Ban.

Elwyn Seymour, manager of the Glen theater, submitted a list including "Lazy River," which he received early in May, to Mrs. John A. Lowe of 393 Anthony street, Glen Ellyn. Mrs. Lowe is chairman of the committee coöperating in the drive against undesirable pictures. Members of the committee, who had seen the film at Chicago showings, voted to ban it.

Manager Seymour advised Felix Mendelssohn, manager of MGM Distributing company in Chicago, that the film had been rejected by the local censorship group. Mendelssohn sent a letter to Village Clerk J. R. Stewart seeking a copy of Glen Ellyn's censorship ordinance and the names of members of the censorship board.

Clerk Stewart replied that there was no official board created by ordinance. On receiving Stewart's letter Mendelssohn sent a letter to Seymour Thursday stating, "As there is no censorship ordinance . . . under the circumstances we cannot accept your cancelation."

This letter was presented to Village President George T. Jennings by Seymour yesterday morning. President Jennings instructed the police department to halt the showing of the picture if it comes to Glen Ellyn, and ordered Clerk Stewart to so advise the distributor.

Shows Reason for Cleanup.

"This sort of attitude is what has brought on the campaign to clean up the movies," said President Jennings.

In his letter Clerk Stewart declared that while the village was not acting officially in seeking cancelation of the films, it was acting in the best interests of the community and the motion picture industry.

"If you so desire, pressure can be brought to bring about official expression. We are loathe to do so, because we feel communities and the industry should coöperate to remedy a situation, which you must recognize as needing attention. However, if you persist in refusing voluntary coöperation it may interest you to know that the police department has been instructed to shop the showing of the film."

Executives of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer corporation, meeting in convention at the Drake hotel, were advised of the action of the village. To questions concerning President Jennings' charge, they said, "We have nothing to say."

SAYS COLLEGE GIRLS MAKE WORST WIVES; TOO MUCH AMBITION

Berkeley, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—The world's worst wives, says Dr. D. P. Wilson of the Los Angeles Institute of Family Relations, come from colleges and girls' schools.

"A college woman, when she becomes a wife, makes more trouble than all the other classes of wives put together," he told the Western Psychological association. "I make just one exception. The only wife who makes more trouble than a college woman is a wife who has gone to girls' school.

"A college woman is too ambitious, too full of ideals for any man to get along with. The girls' school wives suffer from the spinsterial environment in which they live during impressionable years.

CURRENT FROM WASHER KILLS MOTHER OF 8

Mrs. Clara Geannette, 45 years old, mother of eight children, was electrocuted in the basement of her home, 3242 West 47th street yesterday afternoon when she apparently touched an exposed wire on an old washing machine she was using. Grounded by the wet floor, the electric current killed her instantly.

James, 9 years old, was helping his mother with the washing when the tragedy occurred. He tried to pull her away and was severely shocked. The boy's screams attracted his father, who rushed to the basement and disconnected the cord. Firemen tried unsuccessfully to revive Mrs. Geannette.

U. S. Arbiter Flies to Dock Strike Parley

San Francisco, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—Forcible opening of the San Francisco port to maritime commerce was promised by Gov. Frank F. Merriam today in the event of failure of all present efforts to effect a settlement of the strike of marine workers.

Entrance of the state's chief executive into the tangled situation came while both federal authorities and city officials here were working strenuously to reach a settlement in face of the growing clamor for movement of cargoes cluttering the seaports.

McGrady on Way.

Federal activities were speeded by the sudden departure from Washington by air of Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, who is due here tomorrow.

It was assumed here that McGrady, coming on his second visit because of the strike, has sealed orders from Secretary Frances Perkins, and is clothed with authority to act for the federal government, following confidential telegrams exchanged between President Roosevelt and Gov. Merriam.

The governor said flatly that if negotiations fail he would "take steps to force the issue and open up state property on the waterfront to the resumption of commerce."

Gives Stern Promise.

"I mean it," he added. "This strike isn't going to last all summer."

Ports the length of the coast continued in a virtual state of siege. In San Francisco harbor alone, 170 vessels, an unprecendented number, lay idle at docks or anchored in stream.

Sporadic outbreaks of violence continued, as armies of strike pickets and special police patroled the docks. The strike began May 9.

HUNT DILLINGER IN ROUNDUP AT SPRINGFIELD, MO.

Springfield, Mo., June 23.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—John Dillinger and Charles [Pretty Boy] Floyd were sought by a gathering of officers who prepared to start out from here early today to raid a bandit hideout.

Scores of officers from Springfield and surrounding towns were concentrated for the roundup. No information was given out in advance as to the location of the hideout, but it was understood the officers had reliable information that the desperadoes were near the city.

Bolivian Guns Fell 2,000 in Chaco Battle

BUENOS AIRES, June 23.—(AP)—Bolivian dispatches from the Gran Chaco war front tonight claimed 2,000 Paraguayans had been killed or wounded in an unsuccessful attack on Fort Ballivan, backbone of the Bolivian defenses.

Wholesale slaughter of men under a withering artillery barrage on a front only a half mile long was described in the advices from La Paz, which said the Bolivian casualties totaled only 61 dead and 170 wounded.

The Paraguayan command did not put out a definite estimate of casualties and was silent beyond claiming that withering machine gun fire had caused irreparable losses to Bolivian forces.

Paraguayan Drive Fails.

Advices indicated that the Paraguayan army had been unsuccessful, however, in its third major offensive since March against the Bolivian stronghold.

Bolivian sources said a complete Paraguayan division, led by Col. Brizuela, had smashed through a Bolivian defensive line only to run into an artillery trap.

Cannon of large and small caliber as well as mortars were used by the Bolivian defenders to blast the Paraguayan attackers, stalled in their attempt to encircle the fort behind Condado, in the Pilcomayo sector.

Military tactics were brought into play by the Paraguayan command reminiscent of world war days in Europe. A general strafing directed toward the "Canada Strongest" and "Canada El Carman" sectors was served up to attract the attention of the Bolivians at the northern end of their line. This strategy failed to draw in the Bolivian points, however. Sensing the maneuver, the Bolivian high command directed a consolidation of positions at Condado.

Bolivians Mow Down Foes.

Then the Paraguayan division, unmindful that the Paraguayan feints at "Canada Strongest" and "Canada El Carman" had failed of their purpose, drove directly at Condado, indenting the Bolivian defenses.

A terrific barrage of mortar, light and heavy field pieces and howitzers cut loose from the Bolivian side. It was by far the fiercest shower of munition yet seen in the Chaco. The Paraguayans, massed as in squad formation, were cut down like wheat before the reaper's scythe. Dead and dying lay strewn upon the field.

Suddenly the bombardment ceased. But this lack of activity meant only that the Bolivians gathered themselves for the coup de grace.

Wave after wave, from the Bolivian defenses, poured like locusts over the field. A general mopping up consolidated the Bolivian position. In disorderly retreat the Paraguayans straggled back to what safety they could find. The strategically planned coup had been turned into ignominious defeat, Bolivian advices stated.

Last Bolivian Stronghold.

Fort Ballivan is the last Bolivian stronghold in the Chaco, and Paraguay is making a superhuman effort to drive out what it considers the invaders of the territory, which both sides claim.

The Paraguayans have been preparing for the last two months for the general offensive. They assembled

CLAIMS IT HAS EVIDENCE FOR MURDER CHARGE

Austrian Police End Investigation.

VIENNA, June 23.—(AP)—The famous Vienna international police organization today completed its investigation of Capt. Ivan Poderjay and its chief announced that he considers the evidence developed sufficient to support a charge of murder against him.

Poderjay, husband of Miss Agnes C. Tufverson, missing New York and Detroit lawyer, was turned over to the prosecuting attorney, who will offer American authorities an opportunity to come and get him if they want him.

At the same time an explanation of the indifference toward Poderjay of the authorities of Jugo-Slavia was given by local Jugo-Slavs, who said that he has powerful connections in his native land, partly through a former wife there.

Trunk Sent to Jugo-Slavia.

Poderjay's possession of trunks and clothing of Miss Tufverson and evidence that he sent one trunk filled with dresses to a sister form the most important evidence against the man, said Bruno Barber, head of the international police organization.

The trunk sent to the sister in Ljubljana, Jugo-Slavia, was described as covered with sheet iron, gray and about 40 inches long.

Regret over the necessity of dropping the investigation was expressed by Hans Spring, police counsel, who has been directing the inquiries.

"It is with the greatest reluctance that we cut short our efforts to solve this unusually interesting case," he said. "However, we are really up to our necks in urgent business far more important to us than Poderjay."

Ready to Resume Inquiry.

Spring and his colleagues take a great deal of pride in their organization, which deals with matters involving foreigners at this cross roads of Europe and has a reputation ranking with that of Scotland Yard.

If startling new developments should turn up from New York or elsewhere, he said, the inquiry will be taken up here again.

While there have been persistent reports that Poderjay is wanted in Jugo-Slavia, Belgrade police have ignored the case.

Local citizens of the country said today that Poderjay's former wife, Zhivka Bradic, is a niece of the noted Jugo-Slavian patriot-prisoner, Punisha Rachich, and that the Poderjay family has a high standing.

Oppose Poderjay's Return.

Relatives of the former wife were said to oppose any action which would take Poderjay back to his native land as a prisoner.

Rachich was sentenced to prison in 1928 for shooting coalition leaders in the Jugo-Slavian parliament, an act which precipitated a dictatorship. Nevertheless, he is regarded by many as a national hero who saved the nation.

Poderjay's own family was said to be devotedly religious and to strongly disapprove of his career as a marrying adventurer.

A minor complaint was cited against Poderjay today in Belgrade by the owner of a building in which the captain once had an apartment. He said Poderjay before leaving tore up the oak flooring and sold it to a gypsy for a sum equivalent to $2.

Text of Letters Withheld.

The text of letters exchanged between Poderjay and Marguerite Susanne Ferrand, the woman whom he married in London nine months before he married Miss Tufverson in New York and with whom he was living here, have been withheld from publication but investigators said they brought Miss Ferrand into the forefront of the picture.

In several of the letters she urged Poderjay:

"Get money—no matter how—but somehow get lots of money to enable us to live as we may desire."

Poderjay was said by police to have considered himself a "love slave."

Question Missing Woman's Friend.

New York, June 23.—(AP)—Information concerning Ivan Poderjay and his missing bride, Miss Agnes C. Tufverson, was sought today by police from an unidentified Connecticut school teacher. Two New York detectives were in Hartford and Waterbury to determine what knowledge the teach er, a friend of Miss Tufverson, has of his mysterious activities.

The teacher was said by police to have sent a letter to the polished Jugo-Slavian, addressed to Miss Tufverson's east side apartment.

There it remained unclaimed for months until police began their exhaustive search for her. It was hoped the teacher might be able to assist authorities whose long hunt for the talented attorney has been futile.

Boston Clew Abandoned.

Capt. John H. Ayres of the missing persons bureau said he had abandoned hope that Boston reports of Miss Tufverson being seen there in May and June were correct.

New York police, he said, had not been informed of the evidence on which authorities in Vienna, where Poderjay is held, based their statements that they could support a charge of murder against the prisoner.

Ayres was awaiting word from Scotland Yard as to the success of efforts there to locate the two witnesses to the marriage of Poderjay and Miss Susanne Ferrand on March 22, 1933, nine months before he took Miss Tufverson as a bride. Miss Ferrand also is held in Vienna.

Three Charges Possible.

If the witnesses can be persuaded to come to New York, authorities believe it might be possible to file a perjury charge against Poderjay. They are considering, too, possibilities of bigamy and larceny charges, the last based on unpaid trousseau purchases the adventurer and Miss Tufverson made.

No word was forthcoming from the police as to whether an officer will be sent to Vienna to question Poderjay

Search for a blonde woman, described by Capt. Ayres as a "casual companion of Poderjay," and James Cox, formerly night porter at Miss Tufverson's apartment, continued without apparent result today. Ayres said he is certain now that the blonde was not Miss Ferrand. He said he believed she would be located shortly.

Miss Suzanne Sawtelle, the shopping agent who helped Miss Tufverson select her trousseau, today received a postcard signed "I. Poderzaj" and postmarked in Vienna. Miss Sawtelle said it was the second such postcard she had received, the first one arriving on March 28.

Accepted Mail for Bride.

The agent said the cards were acknowledgements of the receipt of registered letters in which she inclosed bills for the wedding finery purchased by Miss Tufverson.

Police considered the cards of some value as they showed that Poderzaj, also known as Poderjay, had accepted mail intended for the missing woman. Miss Sawtelle said she had sent the bills to "Mrs. Agnes Tufverson Poderzaj" in care of a tourist agency in London and they had been forwarded to Vienna.

KIEV TO REGAIN LOST GLORY AS UKRAINE CAPITAL

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, June 23.—Many-domed Kiev, one of the most beautiful cities in Russia and possessing a stateliness that won for it in the middle ages the name of "mother of all towns," will regain its former official dignity tomorrow, when it again becomes the capital of the Ukraine. It lost this distinction during the civil war and interventions of 1919, when the capital was shifted for safety to Kharkov, 250 miles further east.

The shifting of the government back to Kiev has much political, as well as historical, economic, and social importance. It is a signal to the people across the border that the Soviet union now considers its régime unchallengeably established in the one place where it has been most threatened, both by enemies without, and counter-revolutionary forces within.

Only last year a national separatist plot was exposed in the Ukrainian republic. The exposure of that plot involved many prominent officials, and the movement had burrowed even into the ranks of the communist party to such an extent that 27,000 of the 120,000 members of the party in the Ukraine were expelled.

WOMAN SOLVES POSTAL ROBBERY BY TELESCOPE

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 25.—[Special.]—Peering a mile and a half through a powerful telescope, a 23 year old woman solved the mystery of the Sharpsburg postoffice robbery.

Mrs. Helen Scott spotted the thieves, she said in federal court today, while watching from a window of her house for the return of homing pigeons which she and her husband were training.

The Sharpsburg substation was robbed June 14. Stamps and money in a safe were untouched, but a pouch of mail was taken.

Two days later Mrs. Scott stood at an open window in her home with a 20 inch telescope in her hand to watch her pigeons.

As she trained the lens into the distance, she saw a box car siding along the Allegheny river, a mile and a half away. She testified that she saw a man stealthily approach a freight car, reach inside, and draw out what seemed to be a bag, perhaps a mail pouch. Mrs. Scott called the police, who rounded up Eddie Milchell, 27, Sharpsburg, and Leo Trent, a Negro.

Everett Sizemore, 16 years old, colored, of 6017 Indiana avenue, drowned yesterday when a cramp seized him in the lake off 54th street. Two other youths recovered the body.

WIDOW ROBBED; SUSPECT, PART OF LOOT SEIZED

Mrs. Lorraine King, 35 years old, a widow from Atlanta, Ga., who is visiting the World's Fair, was robbed of $5,500 in bonds, a watch valued at $200, and $211 early yesterday by three men who pushed her from their automobile into the road near Des Plaines. She was brought back to Chicago by state highway policemen who heard her screams.

Mrs. King, who is stopping at the Crillon hotel, 1258 South Michigan avenue, told police she met an "Edgar Johnson" at a bus depot on Friday afternoon when she went there to get an extension of her excursion ticket to the Fair. They met in the loop that evening and "Johnson" introduced her to two other men, she said. After attending a show they drove to Des Plaines where the robbery occurred.

Several hours after the robbery was reported Sergt. Thomas Curtin of the detective bureau seized William Smith, 32 years old, in his room at 1158 South Wabash avenue, on the description furnished by Mrs. King. She identified Smith as "Johnson." The prisoner denied knowing her, although he was carrying several currency notes issued by a bank in Rome, Ga., which Mrs. King said she recognized as hers.

HELD FOR POISONING.

John White, 32 years old, colored, 45 West 57th place, was ordered held to the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury on a charge of poisoning his five year old daughter, Ilsia, who died June 8.

FACTOR DODGES TRIP TO COURT; FEARS TOUHY

Wife Will Appear at Release Hearing.

John Factor, who has been a resident of the "country club jail" at Sycamore for more than the 60 days allowed under the extradition law, confirmed reports yesterday that he will not make a personal appearance in court to seek his release Tuesday because he has heard that Tommy Touhy is ready to go gunning for him. Tommy is the tubercular brother of Roger Touhy, one of the kidnapers serving 99 year terms because of their prosecution by Factor.

Factor said he has been told that Tommy Toughy figures he has "nothing to lose" because of his serious illness and will risk his life without hesitation to get revenge. For this reason he will not make a Chicago and a court appearance. His wife, the former Rella Cohen, will appear for him. She signed the petition for release under section 654 of the extradition act. Factor was arrested on charges of swindling British investors.

Jerome Factor, the market operator's son, is under heavy guard in a secret place because of many reported threats against the family. When Factor does leave the jail it will only be in the company of personally paid and trusted bodyguards, he said.

Tom Toughy Reported Here.

Agents of the United States department of justice yesterday confirmed reports that Tommy Toughy is here. They also had heard that he had emerged from an invalid's retirement for the sole purpose of "getting" Factor regardless of what may happen to him.

The petition for release, which is different from the customary petition for a writ of habeas corpus, will be heard by Judge Evan A. Evans of the Federal court of appeals. The extradition act provides that after this country has held a prisoner for 60 days awaiting extradition, and the country which asked his removal has not obtained a warrant for the transfer, he may be discharged from custody.

G. Gale Gilbert, counsel for Factor, sent notice of his action to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Lewis Bernays, the British consul, and Isaac George, sherif of the Sycamore jail.

"There never has been any showing made that the demanding government has not been dilligent in seeking Factor's removal for trial," said Franklin R. Overmyer, counsel for the British crown, when appraised of the petition. "We have proved our case here and it is not our fault that he has not been extradited."

Jail Off U. S. List.

The Sycamore jail, where Factor, it is said, has managed to keep fairly comfortable, was stricken from the list of approved institutions at which the federal government will keep prisoners yesterday, but its best known prisoner will not be affected.

All other federal prisoners, however, who have more than 30 days to serve will be transferred to the federal prison at Milan, Mich., it was ordered by Sanford Bates, head of the federal prison bureau. About a dozen are to be moved, leaving ten to serve out their sentences.

Factor was among prisoners allowed favors at the jail, being permitted on at least one occasion to drive into Joliet for a drinking party.

INQUEST IN LIGHTNING DEATH.

An inquest was held yesterday into the death of Andrew Clemmensen, 44 years old, 7318 Lafayette avenue, who was struck by lightning Friday while seeking refuge under a tree from a rainstorm.

four crack corps of 10,000 soldiers each, equipped with 105 millimeter guns.

Although the line of battle has extended considerably owing to the recent Paraguayan flanking attempts, it still adheres generally to the strong defenses prepared by the Bolivians in January.

The southern extremity of the front is at Fort Avant, on the Pilcomayo line, northwestward to Fort Ballivan, then up to the 62d meridian, touching the Condado, strongest and El Carmen sectors. The northern and northwestern fronts form a curve with the southern extremity opposite the Argentine frontier.

The Bolivians possess superior communications from the Villa-Montes base up to Pilcomayo, including a broad concrete highway permitting reserve troops and munitions supplies to be rapidly brought within a short distance of the fighting zone. The Paraguayans are obliged to use dirt roads clear across the Chaco.

The two selected by members outside the chamber were Temple Bowen, president of Bowen Air Lines, and T. E. Braniff, president of Braniff Airways, Inc.

PROWLERS KILL HOUSEHOLDER IN REAR OF HOME

Adolph Sanders, 53 years old, a carpenter, was shot and killed by an unidentified assailant last night in the yard behind his home at 3415 Palmer street.

Sanders was sitting alone on his back porch on the second floor when he heard a noise in the yard and descended to investigate. There was a single shot, fired as he reached the foot of the stairs, and a bullet struck him near the heart. He died almost instantly.

A neighbor, John Lemke, 3417 Palmer street, told Lieut. Richard Barry of the detective bureau that he saw two men run from the yard after the shooting.

ALL 14 BEACHES OPEN; SCANTIER SWIM SUITS RULE

Males Appear Nudists in Rubber Trunks.

With all of Chicago's 14 major beaches open and with a bright, warm sun, summer crowds in costumes scantier and more varied than ever before in the city's history yesterday found relief from the heat in Lake Michigan.

For the first time this year the beaches were all open, the South park swimming places having regular guards during the day as a sign of their being officially ready to welcome visitors. But the beaches were much the same as ast year.

Neither was the crowd as a whole different. No records were shattered at any of the beaches and a fair estimate of the city's total attendance would be less than 150,000 persons.

Many Wear Trunks Only.

It was noticeable that on several of the north side beaches, and also in Jackson park, many men swimmers wore only trunks, giving a generous semblance of nudity. This was especially true along the Oak street beach, which is immediately off Lake Shore drive, Michigan avenue, and bordering ridges of apartment hotels. To make the appearance of nudity more striking, men were frequently seen wearing new style rubber trunks. Some were colored, red, blue, or green.

Nor were the women bathers far behind in scantiness of garment. Evidence that rubber is waxing even more popular as a bathing garment than last year could be seen at every beach. Most of the feminine rubber suits were of one piece, cut to the limit in the back, but an innovation is a two piece rubber suit which may be buttoned into a single suit if the wearer desires.

Wool suits of every kind and variety also tested the water. Fanciest of these are two piece suits, consisting of a brassiere and trunks unattached to anything but the wearer. Another popular, and extremely sheer variety, obviously more expensive, is the silk bandanna suit, consisting of trunks and a tied colored handkerchief.

Sand Flies Disappearing.

Fortunately for the comfort of the bathers in the vicinity of Rogers Park, the plague of sand flies, blown over from Michigan, had apparently expired. Only a few of the little flies were left. But other flies were present all up and down the shore.

As usual, Oak street beach led all the others in attendance, but the new Montrose-Wilson beach, with its huge sand area, showed evidence of growing popularity.

Between them, these two Lincoln park beaches accounted for nearly half of the city's bathers; their total at the height of the day being almost 75,000 persons. Next most popular was the Jackson park beach which had close to 20,000 patrons. The whole shore, from Evanston to the Indiana border, was lined with other parties.

Life guards, of whom there are nearly 300, said they noted a more orderly spirit among the crowds this year. Perhaps it was embarrassment over the new suits, or perhaps something else, but groups did not mingle much. Moreover, there was little disorder in regard to picnic lunches and papers. Most of the parties cleaned up their stretch of sand before going home.

Regulations were still in effect against swimmers going too far out, but the guards, in the cases of obviously strong swimmers, were indulgent. Only special difficulty, and that at only the Oak street and some of the neighborhood beaches, was in parking cars.

FLOWERS RAINED FROM PLANES ON PIONEER BLERIOT

BUC, France, June 23.—(AP)—The 25th anniversary of Louis Bleriot's daring pioneer flight across the English channel was commemorated at the Buc airfield today. The aged Bleriot, now in ailing health, was showered by flowers dropped from a parade of 150 airplanes as he stood beside the fragile craft he used on his historic flight.

He watched a reproduction of that plane make a feeble flight as modern Bleriot ships raced overhead at four times its speed.

Although the actual anniversary of the flight falls on July 25, it was celebrated today as part of Paris' annual big fêtes week. The ceremonies were attended by President Albert Lebrun of France, the marquis of Londonderry, British secretary for air, and Gen. Victor Denain, French air minister.

Bleriot's hop created almost as great a sensation at the time as Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic flight did later. Flying at a height of 100 feet Bleriot covered the 31 miles between Les Barraques, near Calais, to Dover in 37 minutes.

STREET CAR CRASHES WITH TRUCK; RUNS WILD; 53 INJURED

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—(AP)—E. J. Bisson was a hero tonight after he had stopped a street car which sped out of control ten city blocks through loop trafic, injuring 53 persons, by jerking the trolley from the power wire much as he might have stopped a runaway horse by grabbing its halter.

The crowded street car ran wild with its controls smashed after colliding with a truck hauling six tons of sand on a grade and careened down the crowded street, smashing into two passenger cars and a coal truck.

None of the injured, most of whom were among the 65 passengers on the car, was in serious condition.

Several persons leaped from windows of the car as it sped into heavy loop trafic. Hundreds jammed around the wrecked car, blocking ambulances called to the scene.

C. J. Warner, operator of the one-man car, escaped serious injury. After the first crash, which wrecked the controls, he screamed warnings to people in front of the car.

Bisson overtook the car after it had raced more than nine blocks and jerked the trolley off the wire. He was dragged a block before the car was stopped with the additional aid of planks thrown before it.

SEIZE SUSPECT IN KIDNAPING OF JUNE ROBLES

La Junta, Colo., June 23.—[U.P.]—Don Rodriguez, 23, Globe, Ariz., was held by the sherif here as a suspect in the kidnaping of six year old June Robles, Tucson, Ariz.

So certain were authorities here that Rodriguez was the wanted man that Sherif Gridley of Tucson was ordered by authorities to proceed at once to La Junta to question the man.

The suspect was arrested after he had entered the home of Harry Mendenhall, president of the Rocky Ford National bank in Rocky Ford, Colo., presumably in a plot to kidnap the banker. A companion escaped. The La Junta sherif said the suspect had told jail inmates they "would be surprised to know why he had left the vicinity of Globe."

The Robles girl was kidnaped on April 25. She was rescued from a "grave" after a search of 20 days.

CHAS. S. THOMAS, EX-SENATOR OF COLORADO, DEAD

Denver, Colo., June 23.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Former U. S. Senator Charles S. Thomas, a militant figure in Colorado and national politics, died at his home shortly after 1:00 o'clock this morning. He was 84 years old.

For weeks death had hovered near the aged statesman and, although he had expressed his readiness to die, the stamina that carried him through a stormy political career as a life-long Democrat stayed with him to the last.

Once governor of Colorado and twice United States senator, Thomas was internationally known as an authority on monetary questions and an advocate of silver. He was born Dec. 6, 1849, in Darien, Ga. At his bedside when he died were his son, H. S. Thomas, Denver attorney, and his daughter, Edith Thomas.

Last year Mr. Thomas emerged from retirement to defy President Roosevelt's anti-gold hoarding order and to decry as "undemocratic" the wide powers given Mr. Roosevelt as President.

Tax Commission in War on 'Fixers' and Racketeers

A campaign against tax racketeers and tax fixers was announced yesterday by Barnet Hodes, chairman of the Illinois State Tax commission. The commission, with offices in Chicago and Springfield, will act as a "clearing house" for complaints against tax fixing activities, he said. Persons who are approached on tax matters and have reason to suspect they are being victimized are asked to communicate with the commission.

WOMAN VISITOR TO FAIR KILLED AS CAR HITS TROLLEY

5 Hurt in Head-on Crash Near Waukegan.

Mrs. Jeanette Black, 74 years old, of Guelph, Ontario, was fatally injured yesterday when the car in which she was riding collided with a street car at East 61st street and Ingleside avenue. She died shortly afterwards in the Woodlawn hospital.

Mrs. Black, a grandmother, had come to Chicago with other members of her family to visit the World's Fair. Others in the car were her daughter, Mrs. Winifred Gerry, the driver; the latter's son, William, 13 years old, and her cousin, Mrs. Charlotte Smert of Edinburgh, Scotland. All were cut and bruised.

Five Hurt in Head On Crash.

Five men were seriously injured yesterday in a head on crash of two automobiles in front of the Yorkhouse church on Waukegan road about five miles northwest of Waukegan.

Ben Gold, 1961 North 17th street, Milwaukee, wealthy commission merchant, was most seriously injured. He suffered fractures of his skull and nose. He was riding with Morris Malavsky, 1853 North 9th street, Milwaukee, and Joseph Putterman, 2512 North 21st street, Milwaukee, in Malavsky's car, headed for Chicago. The latter two were hurt.

Two Critically Injured.

The other car was driven by Frank A. Malewczka of 8013 South Lincoln street, Chicago. With him was Harry Canabski, 1049 West 31st place, both of whom were critically injured. Witnesses said the Chicago car drew out of line to pass another automobile and smashed into the car in which Gold and his companions were riding.

Dr. Selistine MacHatten, 26 years old, of Hollandale, Wis., was killed and L. C. Carter, 35, of Wilmette, was critically injured yesterday when the car in which they were riding failed to make a turn near Kenosha.

Ernest Koch, 76 years old, 1410 West 73d street, died at the Southtown hospital yesterday morning of injuries he sustained when he was struck by an automobile while crossing South Ashland avenue at 73d street June 20.

Death Toll Reaches 569.

The deaths of Koch and Mrs. Black and five others increased the toll of motor deaths in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 569. The other victims:

Ole Olson, 60 years old, 1005 North La Salle street. Died yesterday in Henrotin hospital as the result of injuries received Thursday at West Oak and North La Salle streets when he walked into the side of an automobile driven by Clarence Johnson, colored, 3822 Langley avenue. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

Olaf Kranz, 70 years old, 1005 North La Salle street. Died in Henrotin hospital of skull fracture received Thursday when he walked into a moving auto at Oak and La Salle streets. Inquest will be held tomorrow.

John Haden, 48 years old, 1411 West Washington boulevard. Died in county hospital of skull fracture received Thursday when he was struck near his home by the automobile driven by Arthur Lash, 2455 North Spaulding avenue. An inquest will be held Monday.

Samuel Geocenco, 8 years old, 1559 Mohawk street. Died early today in Augustana hospital of injuries incurred on Friday when he was run down near his home by a truck driven by Sam Lasuso, 1416 Mohawk street.

Casimir Zywiciel, 21 years old, 1503 West North avenue. Killed early today when struck by a milk truck while he was walking in Harlem avenue, near Belmont avenue. The driver, William Zuehlke, 4915 North Melvina avenue, was held by police of Elmwood Park.

BOYS FIND BABY SEAL DEAD; BURY IT UPON BEACH

The invalid baby seal whose under water attacks on fishermen's bait on the south side breakwaters of Lake Michigan made up a celebrated mystery for several days was found dead in the lake yesterday at the foot of 73d street.

Discoverers of the seal, which was floating in the lake nearly half a mile from shore, were a group of boys in a sailing canoe. They were Roy Knouff, 7411 Merrill avenue; Arthur McGraw, 7434 Merrill avenue, and Bruce McConnell, 7445 Merrill avenue.

The boys cruised up beside the animal and with the aid of Fred Migley, 7344 Merrill avenue, they dragged it ashore. It was buried in a plot of soft sand at the back of the beach.

Suffering from tuberculosis, the baby seal had been condemned to death in the Shedd aquarium, but the keeper, Ted Barron, released it.

France Jails Two Women in Switz Espionage Case

PARIS, June 23. — [U.P.] — The Switz spy case today was suddenly stimulated by the arrest of two French women, named Lacoste and Frendel. They were taken into custody on charges of complicity filed by the examining magistrate, Judge Andre Benon. He said information leading to the arrests came largely from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, young American couple in jail as confessed members of an international spy ring.

FINDS WIFE HANGED.

Mrs. Olga Pennoyer, 47 years old, 616 West 71st street, hanged herself from a hall door in her apartment yesterday. The body was found by her husband, Thomas Pennoyer, who said she had been despondent over ill health.

BYRD ESCAPES DEATH AT LONE ANTARCTIC VIGIL

Hit by Motor Fumes in Small Polar Hut.

[By Radio to the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune.]

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, June 22.—[Delayed.]—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who is rounding out his third month of isolation in a little hut at Bolling advance weather base, 123 miles south of Little America, has had a narrow escape from carbon monoxide poisoning, he reported by radio yesterday.

The near tragedy happened last Sunday. On that day Little America established a regular radio contact with Admiral Byrd. The admiral, reporting all well, began to dictate a series of messages covering the spring operations of the expedition. Suddenly he broke in with the following message: "Let's make this short. I'll tell you later why."

Feels "Rocky" from Fumes.

A schedule was fixed for Thursday and contact was suspended with the customary cheery "so long" from Admiral Byrd. At the outset of yesterday's conversation he explained that he had interrupted the previous schedule because fumes thrown off by the gasoline driven generator powering his radio set were beginning to bother him.

"I felt rocky," he said, "and decided it would not be wise to continue the small engine mounted on a shelf in one of the tunnels leading from the vestibule of the sunken shack."

Pass Winter Solstice.

The danger of carbon monoxide poisoning is one of the major hazards of Admiral Byrd's solitary existence, and lately he has been conferring with Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, second in command and senior scientist, on the best means of avoiding dangerous fumes. Admiral Byrd is dependent upon a kerosene stove for heat and upon gasoline and kerosene lanterns for light.

This day marks the winter solstice, the half way mark in the slow turning of the months of darkness, and Dr. Poulter made it a holiday. The sun was at its greatest declination, but tomorrow it will again resume its slow journey south. From tomorrow on the pale light in the northern horizon each day when the air is clear will steadily wax stronger, and each day the sun will climb a little higher until it finally glides clear of the barrier in August.

Locomotive on Shriners' Train Derailed; None Hurt

MONTREAL, Que., June 23.—(AP)—The Canadian National Railways reported today that the front truck of a locomotive drawing a special train of Shriners left the tracks at River Beaudette, 25 miles east of Cornwall, Ont. No one was injured, the company said, and after a two and one-half hour delay the train, which was bringing the Shriners from their convention in Minneapolis, resumed the journey to Montreal.

CUT DOLE, PUT IDLE TO WORK, SAYS REYNOLDS

Relief Load Belies Talk of NRA Prosperity.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Confident New Dealers, boastful of the economic recovery wrought through the NRA, may obtain new information from Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois emergency relief commission. He discussed yesterday the economic pitcure, as he sees it, of the one million persons on the Illinois relief rolls.

In his office on the eighth floor at 1319 South Michigan avenue, Mr. Reynolds analyzed some of the factors which must be overcome before recovery will be an actuality for the relief "clients," who have absorbed 159¾ millions in public funds in Illinois within twenty-eight months.

Workman Less Necessary.

Mr. Reynolds painted no rose tinted picture. His most optimistic statement was: "I believe that right now, with 270,500 relief cases involving more than one million persons on our rolls, we have reached a level below which we will not decline."

In answer to the question, "Why are there so many persons still on the relief rolls if industry is really recovering from the depression," Mr. Reynolds spoke of technological advances which substituted machines for men and depreciated the value of and need for quantity man power.

He said that the courage, independence and social fibre of men and women on the relief rolls was undermined "whether consciously or unconsciously" by four years of care at public expense.

Lose Desire for Jobs.

There was some tendency he remarked although not widely manifest, for relief "clients" to consider their lot as sufficient and to oppose any change which calls for individual effort.

In a number of instances, Mr. Reynolds related workers who have been offered work instead of direct relief have either refused to work or have worked for a short time and then quit, demanding higher wages. Such demands, he said, appear to be the work of radical agitators who hope that the time will soon come when the public support no longer will be forthcoming for the idle, and revolt will follow.

That such a time may not be far away, Mr. Reynolds indicated, when he asserted that he believed direct relief dispensed in Illinois should be cut by two-thirds immediately. Aid, he contended, should be administered to "cases" able to work in the form of cash paid for labor performed in one form or another.

Favors Return for Outlay.

This type of aid is now being tried out by the relief commission under the work relief plan which has been in operation for six weeks.

Although admitting such work relief would mean merely changing the form which public support would take, Mr. Reynolds pointed out that the state or federal governments which are the sources of the money would receive "some sort of return in value, and the recipient would be once more a worker, not an idler."

"I believe right now that the numerical level of clients on the rolls will remain fairly constant for some time," Mr. Reynolds asserted.

Bad Times for Elderly.

"It is not within the relief commission's power to reduce the numbers. That is in the hands of men who control industry. I do believe, however, that for a large number of the men over 45 years of age now on the relief rolls there will never be any return to good times.

"Good times for these poor unfortunates means a job. I believe that the stress of the times and the speed of living of today has shunted these men forever out of the picture. At present 20½ per cent of the individuals receiving relief are in this age group.

"Industry has found that the younger man is a better risk. Business has found that the older man, with the present pension and compensation laws, may, comparatively soon after he has become competent in his job, be retired and supported at the cost of business.

Sees Continuous Taxes.

"The technological advances favor the younger man," he continued. "In jobs where the worker is near machinery, business has discovered, a younger man runs less risk of injury, he is more alert, and he may be worked harder.

"The only answer to this problem, which will remain a constant one until solved, is for government to tax business to support the aged. Then, perhaps, business will find a place for the aged man who is without the economic wherewithal to provide for himself and his dependants."

As a state, Mr. Reynolds said, Illinois stands neither near the top nor the bottom with reference to the number of families receiving aid.

Wyoming, with a comparatively small population spread over a wide area, has only 2 per cent of its citizenry on the relief lists, while North Dakota, primarily a farming region, has 19 per cent of its residents on the rolls.

In Illinois during the last eight months, he added, the ratio between the number of rural relief clients and the number from urban centers has been reversed. For three years, prior to 1934, Cook county, wholly because of the idle among Chicagoans, had a larger number of clients on the rolls than the total from the 101 other counties.

At the end of May there were 130,000 cases from Cook county, but downstate had an all time high total of cases, 140,500, at that time. During June, indications are, Mr. Reynolds said, that there will be a slight decrease in the total of clients on the roll.

BUDD FARM LOANED AS CONVALESCENT CAMP FOR WOMEN ON RELIEF

Britton I. Budd's Doddridge farm, situated 5 miles northeast of Libertyville, has been loaned to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission for use during the summer as a camp for convalescent women.

Women requiring convalescent care and who are on relief rolls will be eligible for assignment to the farm. Assignments will be made through the service bureau for women and will be approved by Dr. Margaret L. Davis of the Women's Municipal home.

Miss Julia Dalrymple, associate director of the Mary Dawes hotel, will have general charge of the camp. Women assigned to the camp will remain for periods of at least one month, and will be expected to do about two hours' work each day to maintain the camp.

A. F. OF L. TO PUSH UNIONIZATION OF AUTO WORKERS

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—[U.P.]—Unionization of the automobile industry "has only just been begun" and will be accelerated by the American Federation of Labor, William Green, A. F. of L. president, said on his arrival here today to address the United Automobile Workers Federal Labor unions in their first national conference.

The convention was planned, Green said, to develop union strength throughout the country.

Commenting on the new labor law passed by congress, Green observed: "We are not clear regarding the duties, powers and authority of the new boards to be appointed by the president under the act, but apparently they will have more power than the automobile labor board. We are disappointed over the failure of congress in not passing the Wagner bill."

Green declared the steel situation "is quiet pending action by Secretary of Labor Perkins, probably Thursday."

Degrees were conferred on forty-three graduates by the Chicago Law school in commencement exercises at the Palmer house last night. Thirty-three of the graduates received the degree of bachelor of laws, six that of doctor of international law, and four honorary graduate degrees. Arthur Perrow, auditor general of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, received the honorary degree of doctor of laws. Speakers included William D. Saltiel, Gustav Anderson, Dr. Alfred O. Olson, John E. Northup, and Dr. A. A. Anderson, president of the school.

Fear Two Drowned in Fox Lake Squall.

On the north side of Chicago the high wind snapped trees and brought down wires. It broke off a tree in front of 2915 Argyle street. This tree, said to be 465 years old, was believed to be one of the tallest in Illinois. In the 500 block in Fullerton parkway a large tree fell, barricading the street against trafic.

The experiences of the north side of the city were duplicated but with less severity on the west and south sides. In those districts trees were also felled, wires pulled down, and windows broken. In general, however, property damage was slight. This was noticeably true at the World's Fair grounds, the only damage resulting occurring to temporary stands and such. Only one case of personal injury was reported. The victim was Elmer Radlein, 18 years old, 601 Belden avenue, who was cut on the face and arms when the plate glass window in Sang's drug store at 2919 Broadway caved in.

Drouth Makes New Bid.

Most of the midcontinental area was in the grip of intense heat yesterday. Kansas City, Mo., had a high of 108, the hottest on record there. It was 102 at Omaha and 100 at St. Louis, at Des Moines, Ia., and at Quincy, Ill. Several points in southern Minnesota reported maxima of more than 100.

Rain fell at only a few points in the corn and wheat belts. The ravages of the drouth, given a setback by the storm of Friday, again began to appear in the east central states.

There has been a deficiency of rain in Chicago since June 1 amounting, until last night's precipation began, to 1.57 inches. At the same hour, the deficiency from normal since Jan. 1 totaled 9.44 inches.

Reports yesterday disclosed a new menace to supplement the drouth and the chinch bugs in afflicting the corn crop. Army worms, more numerous than in many years, were attacking the growing plants in Illinois, Missouri, and Iowa.

At Springfield the state department of health reported that rainfall in the far southern part of the state had been sufficient in the month of May to maintain the water supplies of several cities which had been fearful of shortages.

RAINS HEARTEN 30,000 RELYING UPON GARDENS

Relief Plots Now Promise Winter Supplies.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Recent rains brought new hope to the 30,000 people who depend upon the 700 acres of relief gardens to supply vegetables. With normal rains during the summer and fall months these gardens now assure plenty of fresh vegetables in season and a surplus to can and store for winter use.

A survey of the gardens yesterday revealed that the three rains of last week stimulated germination of seeds that had lain in the dust for several weeks. In the twelve gardens, chiefly in the Cook county forest preserves, the 6,000 family plots are streaked with rows of tiny green plants that have just broken through the ground within the last forty-eight hours.

W. G. Baird, chairman of the subsistence garden service, said yesterday that although the drouth was severe and extended over a long period, it did not seriously affect the relief gardens. The relief gardens were planted somewhat later than commercial gardens which suffered a setback in the dry weather.

Entire Families in Fields.

Twice as many acres are being cultivated this year as last, when more than a million pounds of produce were raised in the field and home gardens.

Besides 6,000 families working relief field gardens this season there are 10,000 families with home gardens. All of them receive seed, plants, and scientific supervision free from the subsistence garden service, according to J. F. Machotka, director.

Yesterday thousands of men, women, and children toiled under the direction of P. J. O'Malley, field superintendent.

"During the last two weeks many of them became discouraged because their vegetables had not come up," Mr. O'Malley said, "but practically all of them continued to report according to schedule to keep the weeds and grass under control.

"Before the recent rains several of them came to me and said, 'No rain, no work.' My stock answer was, 'You are at least 40 years old, but you've never seen a year when it didn't rain.'"

Produce All to Grower.

The relief gardens are in greater demand this year than last. There are between 800 and 900 families on the waiting list. The only chance they have of assignment to a garden is in case some gardener neglects his plot. By neglect one forfeits all rights to a garden.

Each gardener has a plot 50 by 100 feet. All of the vegetables belong to the gardener, who is forbidden to sell the surplus. Plans are under way to operate canning centers again this year.

Yesterday dozens of gardeners were pulling radishes in the relief garden at 1st avenue and 16th street. Sweet corn is more than a foot high in the 104 acre garden at Irving Park and Cumberland street.

Within the next few days the superintendents of the gardens will begin scoring the different plots on the way they are taken care of by the gardener.

TRY TO IDENTIFY BODY.

Dixmoor police were trying last night to identify the body of a man about 60 years old found yesterday under a water tank beside the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific tracks at 145th street and Hoyne avenue.

SOCIETY CHEERS HORSE SHOW AT ONWENTSIA CLUB

Lake Forest Folk Out at Benefit Event.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Lake Forest society gathered in force yesterday afternoon to view the fourth and last session of the horse show held at the Onwentsia club. The winners in the various events were applauded freely and the gayety of the occasion was augmented by the bright sunshine. Most of the feminine spectators were clad in bright summer frocks and hats.

The showing of Arabian horses aroused enthusiasm. In this class Albert W. Harris, riding his gray stallion Kemah, took the blue. The same owner's Niht was second and Saera from the Sunset View farm was third.

Mrs. Albert B. Dick's Seaton Newsboy was first in the harness horse stake and Mrs. A. C. Thompson's Pride of Onway and Queen Elizabeth were second and third. Mrs. Thompson's Globe Trotter was adjudged the best in the harness pony class.

Harry A. Lowther's Eddie Curtis was first in the class for ladies' hunters, with Bey Hodder, owned by Edith Kendall Weil, second, and Pandora, from the stables of William B. McIlvaine, third.

McIlvaine Wins Hunt Event.

Three horses from the McIlvaine stables, ridden by Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, Mrs. W. B. McIlvaine, and Miss Jean Schweppe took first place in the hunt team event.

The hunter stake went to Bey Hodder. Thamesford, owned by Donald B. Douglas, was second, and Ethel Kendall Weil's Flying Andy third.

The adults who won ribbons were a little casual about the way in which they took care of their rosettes, but there was nothing casual about the way in which the youngsters who rode in the morning guarded their blue, red, and yellow ribbons. They clutched them all during the performance and managed somehow to juggle pop bottles and ice cream cones without putting down the precious rosettes.

Little Helen Niblack, daughter of the Austin Niblacks, won a blue ribbon in the walk and trot class for children of 10 years. Hope Landis, who lives and rides on the south side of Chicago, won a red ribbon in the event. Elizabeth King, always called Blissy by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Andrews King, and her friends, carried away the yellow in this class.

Mother and Daughter Win.

Marie Merrill Hubbard was the winner of the red ribbon in the walk, trot and canter for children from 11 to 14, and her mother, Mrs. Merrill Hubbard, added a red one to her collection in the medium weight hunters' class.

Sitting with Mrs. Hubbard were Dr. and Mrs. Paul Magnuson, whose Pond Gate farm entries won several ribbons during the show. Standing nearby leaning on the rail and watching with great interest were young Paul Magnuson and his fiancée, Miss Marianne Stevenson, who is just back from six weeks with the Frontier Nursing service in Kentucky.

Miss Jane Ripley gave her usual fine performance and carried off a ribbon in almost every class she entered. At least half the audience at the morning performance were youngsters, some in riding habits and others in cooler and more comfortable looking togs.

Little Ginevra Mitchell was a cunning sprite in bright red jersey slacks and a navy blue shirt. Her mother, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, was lovely in tailored white silk with a scarf, hat, and shoes of navy blue.

Mrs. Bennett in Stands.

Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, who would have been in the ring if she hadn't been injured in a spill two days before the show, was an interested spectator, watching the events from a wheel chair which she moved around, vainly following the shade. It was very hot in the sun. One of the most striking costumes seen in the morning was that of Mrs. Champ Carry, who was wearing a pale green frock, a strawberry pink hat, and a coat of the same vivid color thrown over one arm.

Among others in the boxes in the morning were Mrs. Robert N. McCreary, I. Newton Perry, Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, Mrs. Vaughan Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. J. Andrews King and her father, Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. James B. Forgan Jr., Mrs. T. Philip Swift and her sister, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr., Mrs. Samuel J. Walker, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, Mrs. George F. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. John Payne Kellogg, and dozens of children.

Mrs. Howard Linn attracted the eyes of every onlooker as she walked around to the box she occupied, so distinctive and stunning was she. Her white curls were topped but far from hidden by a large natural straw hat worn at quite an angle, and her frock was a simple one of white pique as decollette as the most formal evening gown or the most abbreviated bathing suit. She had ridden Friday and Saturday morning, but she was not entered in any of the afternoon events.

Proceeds Go to Hospital.

The proceeds of the show will be given to the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest. Last night two hundred and thirty horse show guests dined and danced at the Onwentsia club.

Joseph M. Cudahy is president of the horse show association; William McCormick Blair, vice president, and Donald B. Douglas, secretary and treasurer.

LONDONER FILES $250,000 AMEBA DAMAGE ACTION

A $250,000 damage suit was filed yesterday in the United States District court against the Congress Hotel company and all its officials on behalf of J. W. Shillan, British industrialist and general manager of the British Motor Boat Manufacturing Co., Ltd. of London, England. The suit charges that such a sum is sought because of losses suffered by Shillan accountable to an attack of amebic dysentery allegedly contracted while he was a guest at the hotel last summer.

M. W. Meek, of the law firm of Jacob, Dahlin, and Sullivan, who filed the bill, said his client was in such bad physical condition when he started his return trip to England last year that a New York physician accompanied him to London. There, he said, Shillan was treated by Lord Dawson, the King's medical aide, who would furnish depositions in support of his diagnosis of the disease.

Mr. Shillan charges in the petition that he is still disabled and suffering from the disease "contracted through the negligence of the hotel" and in addition has incurred substantial losses through the inability to complete a sales program with the management of Luna Park in Paris.

HAMBURG ORDERS 761 PERSONS TO BE STERILIZED

HAMBURG, Germany, June 23.—(AP)—The local eugenics court reported today that sterilization operations had been ordered in 761 of 770 cases decided since the court opened early this year. There are still 555 cases on the docket for disposition.

An unusual feature of the report was that more women were operated on than men. The total number of women was 209 and of men 155. The report did not divide cases on which operations have been ordered but not yet performed.

FINDS GERMANS GETTING WEARY OF NAZI FRENZY

Revolutionary Zeal Dying Out in Reich.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN, Germany, June 23.—Adolf Hitler's third reich may or may not be wobbling in its boots, as some European chancelleries believe, but any tourist can see for himself it is getting tired in the elbows.

Fourteen months ago when this correspondent was traveling through southwestern Germany the Nazi salute—right arm extended stiffly to form an obtuse angle with the body—was a public act of faith which every patriotic German delighted in making at the slightest provocation. A good German's arm just wouldn't stay down.

Salute Phone Instruments.

Now the gesture has become so official that police officers are even supposed to salute telephone instruments when making a report to headquarters. In addition to saluting the flag and Nazi leaders, German citizens are instructed by law to give one another the Fascist salute in all official contacts and to say "Heil Hitler," instead of "Guten tag" and "Auf wiedersehen."

But despite propaganda, the salute seems to be less general than it did a year ago. What is even more striking is the way it is given when it is given at all.

Some one with a passion for reducing things to mathematical formulas easily could calculate the decline of revolutionary enthusiasm in Germany by comparing the angles of right arm elevation of a given number of Germans in 1933 and 1934. Today very few Germans, even Brown Shirts, seem to be able to manage much better than a feeble right angle for ordinary purposes. Even then the elbow sags visibly. Likewise, the ringing "Heil Hitler" of a year ago now is delivered in the tone of a court clerk swearing in a witness to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

Snap Is Missing.

This refers to the official salute while standing up. Naturally, if one is sitting in front of a stein of beer, this is not appropriate, so a less formal short arm salute has been worked out. It is less strain on the elbow. Even so there are notable variations of the standard—which this correspondent bases on the form of seated storm troopers greeting a superior officer at close range.

While the elbow is flexible in the short arm salute, the wrist should be stiff and the forearm should be raised with a brisk snap. The civilian population visibly has not much snap in the forearms these days. The hand dangles and often the salute is only a languid slip of the wrist like some one starting to catch a fly and then giving up.

The authorities are worried about these languid wrists.

Imported from Italy.

Naturally, the decadence of the Fascist salute is not in itself an important symptom of decline in zeal—rather it is a symbol. The Fascist salute is an Italian importation which never has really taken root in this nordic land. Many ardent Nazis gradually are slipping back in private life to the old-fashioned handshake and old-fashioned "Good day" and "Good-by," not because they have lost faith in their leader, but because the salute is beginning to look a little foolish to them.

The question of the salute only takes on importance in connection with a number of other seemingly trivial changes in the aspect of the country.

Where are the flags, for instance? A year ago the streets of Frankfurt and the fields of the Rhineland were ablaze with swastikas. Now one hardly notices them except in front of local Nazi bureaus of one sort or another.

Then there is music—four days in Germany, wandering around all day and all evening and I haven't heard the Horst Wessel anthem once.

Propaganda Speeches Wane.

Nor has my digestion been paralyzed in the middle of a meal by those propaganda speeches over the radio which once gave me nightmares.

In cafés and beer halls storm troopers or boys in Hitler Youth uniforms do not come around as often as they once did selling the party's propaganda publications and when they do come nobody seems to buy.

Even the auxiliary Brown Shirt policemen, who used to get such a great thrill from walking around with pieces of field artillery on their hips bossing people and being generally officious, now seem as bored as if they had been pounding the pavement for ten years. Foreigners do not seem to interest them any more. This is a relief as I still have vivid memories from last year of being hauled off to the Frankfurt police station for questioning as a suspicious character.

General Weariness Shown.

When one talks to citizens of the third reich—even some who wear uniforms—this surface impression of revolutionary backsliding and general lassitude becomes much stronger. There does not seem to be any general dissatisfaction, but there is a general weariness. A large section of the population is so saturated with propaganda that it does not react any more and the revolutionary fever is slowly dying down.

As it dies down the critical spirit which disappeared completely in the first months of the revolution begins to revive. As in all countries where the press and speech are muzzled, the people let off steam by telling jokes on the leaders or on the régime. These stories circulate by word of mouth across the whole country.

Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia and reichs minister of air, is a favorite target for jokesters. One story pokes fun at his love for theatrical effect. It relates how he failed to show up at a big ball in Berlin and policemen, after a long search, found him seated in the bronze chariot of victory at the Brandenberg gate on Unter den Linden.

None Joshes Hitler.

All other Nazi chiefs come in for a joshing—except Hitler. Nobody tells any stories about "der Fuehrer" and if there is any weakening of devotion of the masses to their chancellor, or of confidence in him, it is not apparent to a stranger.

Brown Shirt authorities appear to be disturbed by the decline in the country's morale. The present campaign against critics and pessimists reflects this in a manner which is very uncomfortable for the rest of the population.

While the lawless terror, which prevailed the first days of the revolution has vanished, strictly legal terrors are intensified a hundredfold. Germans who are not fanatical Nazis live in constant dread of being denounced as enemies of the revolution. They are afraid to be seen in public with foreigners; will not talk on the telephone. They carefully shut the windows of their houses if they receive you in their home. They imagine spies are everywhere. In this respect things are much worse than last spring.

NAZIS TO PLACE FLAGS AT HALF STAF; MOURN VERSAILLES TREATY

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, June 23.—Flags on all government buildings in Germany will be placed at half staf Thursday on the fifteenth anniversary of the signing of the treaty of Versailles.

The order of the reich government, issued today, said that action should be taken "as a demonstration of the rejection of the dictates of Versailles and of the sorrow the German people still suffer under the heavy burden."

Minister of Propaganda Goebbels, speaking yesterday at Halle, added another attack on the treaty to the long list of Nazi philippics on the subject.

"The day has gone," he asserted, "when the German government curtsied before every dictate. Germany today is a Germany of manly honor and heroic pride."

PAPEN PLEDGES ALLEGIANCE TO LEADER HITLER

Pays Glowing Tribute to German Chancellor.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 23.—Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, who took the Nazis to task for their "arrogance and excesses" in a speech at Marbury university last Sunday, today pledged his loyalty to Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

His glowing tribute to "Der Fuehrer," created almost as great a sensation as his biting criticism of certain policies of the all powerful National Socialist party.

Von Papen's pledge of loyalty to Hitler was expressed in an address to 2,000 women from the Saar basin who are on a visit to Berlin.

"Still Much to Be Done."

"Chancellor Hitler is forging Germany into a nation of honor and liberty," the vice chancellor said. "He is building a united nation in which all class differences have been swept away.

"None knows better than Hitler and the German cabinet that there is still much to be done until the chancellor's great work of reconstructing Germany is complete. It is Hitler's greatness that united the reich and saved it from collapse. In Berlin one is bound to feel how his will is forcing Germany ahead to the goal of unity and strength."

While Von Papen was announcing his allegiance to Hitler and leading his audience in cheers for the chancellor, storm troop leaders throughout the land were expressing their rage against "attempts of reactionaries to falsify the Nazi revolution."

A warning was sounded to the Silesian storm troopers by Edmund Heines, their commander, at one of the so-called "revolution fires" in the Nazi festival of the "Victory of the Sun Over Winter."

Says Fight Has Not Ended.

"You must stand guard and watch the fires," he said. "We must be on the lookout to prevent outsiders from swinging our revolution off its original course. Our duties have not been completed. The fight is not over. We must clench our fists. Only storm troopers can complete the revolution."

Meanwhile, the officers of Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia and reichsminister of aviation, spiked reports that there had been a mutiny among his personal bodyguard of 400 men.

It was announced that the bodyguard had been incorporated into the Field Hunters' corps. The Field Hunters are the Nazi military police, a special group created to supervise and control various Nazi organizations. The announcement said the shift was the result of "organization reasons."

Compulsory labor service of one year was introduced today for all citizens between the ages of 17 and 22 years in the Magdeburg-Hale-Merseberg district.

The Nazi government in the Free City of Danzig has also introduced a compulsory year of labor service.

Cabinet Split Three Ways.

BERLIN, June 23.—(AP)—A division of the cabinet of Chancellor Hitler into three groups became evident today as discussions based on Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen's criticisms of some Nazi policies continued.

One group would have the government adopt even more radical measures than the present policy; a second favors the reforms suggested by the more conservative Von Papen, and the third is ready to follow Hitler, but hope he will be influenced by the conservatives.

Von Papen, who is tied to President Paul von Hindenburg by close personal friendship, will visit the president's country estate at Neudeck next week. This will give the country more time to think about his advocacy of a free press, free speech and non-interference in religious matters.

Goebbels Heads Radical Group.

The cabinet has met repeatedly to discuss the speech since its delivery Sunday.

Outstanding in the "radical" group in the cabinet are Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, who suppressed Von Papen's speech; Walter Darre, commissioner of agriculture, and Ernst Roehm, minister without portfolio, and one of the organizers of the storm troops.

These men believe the government has not gone far enough in suppressing opposition, in the press and church as well as in other phases of life, and impressing Naziism on the whole German people.

With Von Papen in advocating conservatism in economic matters and more freedom for critics of the government are Franz Seldte, minister of labor; Franz Guertner, minister of justice; Konstantin von Neurath, minister of foreign affairs, and Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of defense.

Those who would follow Hitler blindly, while hoping he will see fit to become more conservative, include most of the other members of the cabinet, one of whom is the influential minister of aviation and premier of Prussia, Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

Whatever happens, well informed observers said, it will not come until after Von Papen talks to the president and probably not until after Hitler makes a second visit to Neudeck.

MANY ARE INJURED AS FRENCH RADICALS RIOT IN TWO CITIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 23.—Severe rioting broke out tonight in Lorient, Bittany naval base, and Anzin, nea Lille. Communists and socialists battled police and mobile guards in both towns. In Lorient 15 mobile guards, four policemen and four firemen from the naval base were injured.

The rioting started early in the evening in protest against a meeting of the Fascistlike Croix de Feu, although the city authorities had been promised by leaders to the left that no trouble would result. The communists and socialists tried to force a way into the meeting and started the fight.

The riots were calmed with the arrest of twenty Reds, but shortly afterward new fighting started and lasted until midnight.

At Anzin 2,500 socialists and communists jammed the streets in protest against a theatrical gala and a torchlight procession in celebration of the bicentenary of the discovery of soft coal. They charged the festivities had a political character. The Reds tried to storm the theater, but several charges by horse guards cleared the public square.

Roaming Preacher Freed in Poison Murder Trial

Pampa, Tex., June 23.—(AP)—The Rev. Louis H. Shockley, roaming preacher, accused of fatally poisoning three relatives, was freed by a district court jury today after one hour and 15 minutes deliberation. The deaths of W. T. Hudgins, Shockley's father-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Rewin had been laid to Shockley, through poisoned flour that later was made into bread.

100,100 AT FAIR; BEST SATURDAY SINCE OPENING

Greek Envoy Honor Guest Today.

Attendance figures for A Century of Progress 1934, compared with figures for the 1893 and 1933 Expositions, follow:

Saturday, June 23, 1934	100.100
Saturday, June 24, 1893	133,878
Saturday, June 24, 1933	95,810
Totals to date:
June 23, 1934	2,263,050
June 24, 1893	3,125,545
June 24, 1933	2,290,573

The 1893 Columbian Exposition opened a month earlier than the 1933 and 1934 Fairs.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Attendance at A Century of Progress Exposition yesterday topped the 100,000 mark with the biggest Saturday crowd since opening day. At midnight 100,100 visitors had passed through the turnstiles—a marked increase over the attendance of 82,849 on June 15, 77,974 on June 9, and 63,055 on June 2.

Late comers poured in steadily as the day's heat waned and surpassed figures for the corresponding day last year—95,810.

Fair officials were preparing for heavy attendance again today when Charalambos Simopoulos, Greek minister to the United States, will be the guest of honor as hundreds of his countrymen celebrate Greek day at the Exposition.

15 Gun Salute Planned.

The diplomat will be greeted by a salute of fifteen guns as he enters the Court of Honor at the 14th street entrance, and will review the troops from Camp F. D. Roosevelt as the opening event in a day of official ceremony.

The highlight in the events of the day will be the dedication of the Greek pavilion in the Court of States. Friendship between the Grecian and American nations will be the theme of the ministers address in presenting the pavilion to the exposition.

Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair, will reply and welcome the distinguished guest to Chicago and the exposition.

Other speakers will include Lorado Taft, sculptor, and John D. Dritsas, Greek consul general in Chicago. In the pavilion visitors may trace the development of Greek art and culture.

Get Copy of Noted Statue.

When the exhibit was planned it was the hope of Greco-Americans with the full coöperation of the Greek government proffered, to exhibit the famous statute of the Hermes of Praxiteles. It soon became apparent that the removal of this ancient work of art from Olympia would be impracticable and highly dangerous to the sculpture itself. The Greek government has presented a reproduction of the statute, and the unveiling of the work by Mr. Taft will be one of the features of the performance.

The dedicatory services will start at 3 p. m. in addition to the formalities of the day entertainment native to Hellenic culture will be provided by a classical ballet and Grecian music by George Grachis and his orchestra.

With thousands of Americans of Greek descent in Chicago, officials are confident the special day will draw as big an attendance as any day of the Fair. The Greek colony in Chicago has worked for several weeks past on the program.

ANCIENT ROMAN COLUMN TO RISE AT WORLD'S FAIR

A marble column, recently found at Ostia, ancient Rome's seaport, will be erected in front of the Italian pavilion at A Century of Progress July 15 which is Italian day at the Fair, it was announced yesterday by John Sbarbaro, former Municipal court judge. Mr. Sbarbaro, who will preside at the dedication, said that the column has been sent to Chicago by Premier Mussolini as a commemoration of Gen. Balbo's Atlantic flight last year.

The column was delivered to the city last month by Prof. Guido Calza, Italian archaeologist. It is 32 feet tall, 10 feet in circumference and weighs about 4 tons. It was precious in antiquity, and the quarries where it was found in southern Greece have been exhausted for centuries.

This column and another one of identical style and size were found a year ago at Ostia. The two columns once served to ornament the main street of Ostia at the point where it reached the sea.

Boy Hauls Red Flag from Water Tower in Royalton

Benton, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Royalton was aroused tonight by the hoisting of a red flag on top of the water tower. As trouble was feared, Sherif Browning Robinson hurried to the scene. A small boy climbed the 188 feet and brought the flag down. A meeting of the idle is scheduled at Royalton tomorrow afternoon.

TRAIN FOR SYMBOLIC DANCES

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

One of the most interesting and at the same time most amazing spots in the world today. That was the brief description of A Century of Progress given by Mrs. James Oliver Curwood, widow of the novelist, who visited the Fair yesterday, concluding a six months' trip around the world. She was accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen Ford Curwood of Owosso, Mich., and Miss Blanche Ford of White Sulphur Springs, Mont. "The world is full of delightful and educational places," Mrs. Curwood said, "but Chicago has assembled more of them in one location than I believe has ever been done before."

The shell torn village in front of the building housing the Pantheon de la Guerre at 24th street will be dedicated in a ceremony this afternoon. A military program will be given by the drum and bugle corps of the St. Charles post of the American Legion.

An amateur photographers' contest for the most beautiful picture of the Cascades fountain in the north lagoon was announced yesterday. The contest opens July 2 and closes at midnight July 15. A silver loving cup donated by John R. Thompson Jr., president of the national restaurant system bearing his name, will be first prize. Second and third prizes will be cameras presented by the Hall of Photography in the Science building. Photographs may be mailed or brought personally to the Hall of Photography, where the judging will take place.

The first of a series of concerts by Illinois artists, with music by Illinois composers, will be given this afternoon in the Illinois Host house at 5 o'clock. Dorothy Lea Jones, pianist of Springfield; James Arthur Edmunds, baritone of Chicago, and Harry Pusey of Chicago, will be presented. Concerts will be given the first and third Sundays of each month at 5 p. m. and the second and fourth Wednesdays at 7:30 p. m.

Preliminaries of the employés' beauty contest, which is being conducted by the Special Events division of A Century of Progress, will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights, with the finals on the Midway board walk at 8:30 p. m. Saturday. All contestants must be employed on the grounds by a concessionaire, exhibitor, or by the Fair, and each must wear the costume or uniform she wears in her daily work.

Allan King, animal trainer who has just returned to the Fair from several days in a hospital after being mauled by a lion, will add five tigers and 16 lions to his animal troup. The purchase of the new performers will bring the total of animals in the act to 48. The new lions never have been used in an act.

Rainbow Girls' Day at the Fair will be marked by a special program of music and drill beginning at 1:30 p. m today in the Hall of States. Mrs. Mary S. Abt, supreme deputy of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls, will give an address on "Idealism."

A party of 1,000 Plymouth employés arrived in Chicago late Friday night and visited the Fair yesterday. They came in on a special train of 17 cars on the Illinois Central railroad. They will spend today at the Fair and leave tonight.

The Aziz Saaouche collection of Carthaginian, Tunisian, Roman, Moslem, and Arabian coins, costumes, pottery firearms and gold and silver inlaid ornaments, cases and chests arrived yesterday from Tunis and was displayed last night at the Tunisian village. It is considered one of the finest and most valuable private assemblies of ancient and rare cultural objects in the world.

The Nightingales, 62-voice chorus of Chicago women under the direction of Helen Leefit, will be presented in the floating bandshell on the Swift Bridge of Service today at 2 and 6:30 p. m. The two programs will run one hour and fifteen minutes each, and will include a wide range of songs from Mozart's "Hear Us, O Lord" to Nacio Brown's novelty number, "The Woman in the Shoe."

Virginia Pavelka and Fred Vlach, both of Cleveland, were married yesterday in the Protestant room of the Hall of Religion. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Warren M. Clark of the First M. E. church of Berwyn. The couple arrived in Chicago yesterday from Cleveland where the bride's father is a meat packer.

A number of New York newspaper and magazine editors and representatives were guests of A Century of Progress at a luncheon in the Directors' room of the Administration building yesterday.

Among the visitors were Samuel T. Williamson, editor, News Week; Edmund Bartnett, city editor, New York Sun; H. I. Brock, Sunday magazine and feature writer, New York Times; Mrs. Edna Woolman Chase, editor in chief, American, British, and Paris Vogue, and Mrs. Helen Appleton Read, art editor, Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

LEAVES FOR KILLER SUSPECT.

VISITORS FLOOD CITY FROM ALL PARTS OF NATION

Hotels Predict a Record Week-End Trade.

Railroads, bus lines, airways, and hotels yesterday reported an ever increasing influx of out of town visitors to the city and the World's Fair. Bookings and estimates of officials all indicated the busiest week-end since the Fair was opened.

Hotel managers are preparing for at least fifty organized tour and convention groups of from 25 to 1,000 members, while all railroads and air lines reported the addition of extra equipment.

Week-End Rush Starts.

Vanguards of the week-end visitors actually began to pour into the city and into the hotels Friday night when a party of 1,000 employés of the Plymouth Motor company of Detroit reached the Morrison. On their heels came a group of 150 Wayne county (Detroit) employés and a third group of 61 composing the Detroit Mack Avenue Business Men's club.

A total of twenty-one Fair tour parties, totaling about 2,500 persons, are in the Morrison hotel over the week-end, according to W. M. Rutzen, secretary to the general manager.

Frank Bering, general manager of the Hotel Sherman, reported at least 1,500 visitors, most of them in organized tour groups, are registered.

Make Long Stays.

Frank R. Florentine, general manager of the Congress, reported that 300 furniture dealers, buyers, and manufacturers, due to arrive beginning today, had made reservations to stay in the city from June 25 to July 14.

"There has been a decided pickup since last week," said W. P. Barnes general manager of the Blackstone hotel. "It looks as though we are going to be packed right through the summer."

H. E. Newcomet, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, reported putting on seventeen extra trains and 200 additional coaches and sleepers on the line to care for increased week end demands. He said bookings showed this to be the largest week-end passenger business for the Fair so far this year.

Railroads Get Boom.

A similar report was made by R Thomson, passenger trafic manager for the Chicago and North Western railway, who said the week-end trafic indications were 15 per cent above normal. Ten organized tour groups from California, Colorado, Minnesota being brought in over the week-end.

F. J. Bixler, division trafic manager of the Northwest Airways, and R. W Ireland, assistant trafic manager for the United Air Lines, both reported increased bookings.

Ten new planes, of which one was put into service last week and two to go in next week, were being added to the Northwest Airways, Mr. Bixler said. Between Chicago and New York alone the United Air Lines have increased their planes from eight to thirteen, said Mr. Ireland.

A substantial business pickup was reported for the American Airways by Charles A. Rheinstrom, general trafic superintendent.

Sentenced for Stabbing Jehol Temple Lecturer

Tom Moy, 36 years old, 1422 Morse avenue, a Chinese, was fined $50 and sentenced to the Bridewell for five months yesterday by Judge Francis Borrelli in the South State street court for stabbing Albert Lau, a lecturer, in the Jehol temple at the World's Fair. Moy testified in broken English that he considered Lau a traitor to China. Lau replied in perfect English that Moy stabbed him after being rebuked for smoking in the temple.

ENDS LIFE WITH GAS.

Charles Miller 66 years old, 1320 Welfram street, committed suicide early yesterday morning by inhaling gas in the kitchen of his home, despondent apparently over ill health.

EX-ALDERMAN'S NEPHEW ADMITS SALOON SLAYING

Richard Rogers, 38 years old, 17 North Kostner avenue, a nephew of former Alderman John Rogers, was arrested early last evening and confessed shortly afterward at the detective bureau that he shot and killed Joseph O'Connor, a city garage employé, in a saloon at 3447 West Madison street early Wednesday morning.

Witnesses told the police immediately after the shooting that Rogers and O'Connor, who were strangers, quarreled in the saloon and that Rogers drew a pistol and began shooting. At the detective bureau the killer confirmed this statement. He had gone to the place, which is conducted by Frank McGovern and James B. Murphy, with Mrs. Iris Claypool, 832 George street.

"O'Connor came over to our table and tried to break into the party," said Rogers. "I warned him to get away. He was drunk and wanted to fight. I had to shoot him in self-defense."

Rogers said that he formerly was wealthy. He was near the bus station at Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue when he was taken into custody by Detectives Thomas Shea and Arthur Neville.

FIND AMMUNITION AND 3 RIFLES IN ROADSIDE DITCH

Three Browning automatic rifles and a quantity of ammunition to fit them were found late yesterday in a ditch along 22nd street near the Des Plaines river, in North Riverside. Laddie Burian, a boxer who was doing road work, made the discovery and notified Chief of Police Arthur Beltz, of the suburb, who took possession of the guns and cartridges. Apparently the arms had been in the ditch only a short time, as they were little rusted.

CUBA PUTS DOWN NAVY REBELLION; SEIZES LEADER

Mutiny Is Aimed Against New Chief.

BULLETIN.

HAVANA, June 23.—(By Radio and Long Distance Phone from Antilla.)—Capt. Evaristo Ulloa, captain of the cruiser Cuba, tonight hoisted the white flag of surrender after six army bombing planes had dropped eight bombs around the cruiser following the mutiny aboard. Heavy seas rocked the gunboat so much that it was unable to train its anti-aerial guns on the planes. No one was injured.

HAVANA,, June 23.—(AP)—United States naval officers shortly before midnight tonight began rounding up all sailors on shore leave and sending them aboard the U. S. S. Richmond. All shore leaves were canceled. No reason was given for the action.

HAVANA, June 23.—(AP)—A mutiny on the gunboat Cuba, largest unit of the Cuban navy, was suppressed quickly and without bloodshed late today. The Cuba's commander, Capt. Evaristo Ulloa, was placed under arrest.

Capt. Ulloa had sent a message to the new chief of the navy, Angel Gonzalez, stating that he did not recognize the chief's authority.

Within three hours the secretary of the navy, Felix Granados, announced that new officers sent to Antilla, where the Cuba lay, had taken charge and that the mutiny was over.

Crew Congratulates Chief.

The crew of the Cuba, after their captain was arrested, Chief Gonzalez said, sent him a message congratulating him on his appointment as chief.

Capt. Ulloa, a member of the old Havana aristocracy, apparently was taken into custody by two army officers who flew to the scene. It was announced that he was being brought to Havana by airplane.

Ulloa was an officer under former President Machado, was dismissed after the revolution and later reinstated. Gonzalez rose from the enlisted ranks.

A detachment of soldiers had been sent from San Diego to Antilla before the mutiny was suppressed.

Investigation Is Launched.

Naval officials said they did not know how many of the 150 men and officers on the Cuba were involved in the defiance of authority, but that there would be a thorough investigation.

The Cuba is the largest unit of the Cuban navy, having displacement of about 3,000 tons. The total strength of the navy is 2,000, and radical elements are understood to have made more progress with propaganda among the sailors than in the other services.

Gunmen Raid Radio Station.

HAVANA, June 23.—[U.P.]—A group of unidentified persons, armed with machine guns, broke into radio station CMQ at Vedado late tonight, kidnaped three speakers attacking the powerful ABC party, and forced them to drink heavy doses of castor oil.

Government spokesmen asserted tonight that there was no sign that the mutiny was spreading to other units.

VIENNA COP PICKS UP A BOMB AND LOSES HIS HAND

VIENNA, June 23.—(AP)—Three persons were injured by bombs in Vienna today. A police captain lost his left hand when a bomb he had picked up in the business district exploded. Two pedestrians were hurt in other explosions.

At Ernstbrunn, Lower Austria, the mayor's home was damaged by a bomb, and a priest's house was similarly attacked at Tweng.

Authorities today ordered the agricultural college, closed since a bombing on June 16, reopened Monday. Only students with passes will be admitted, and there will be periodic searches for bombs and weapons.

DOUBT KIDNAPING OF RADIO SINGER FOUND IN TEXAS

San Jose, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—Chief of Police J. N. Black announced today investigation of the disappearance of Mrs. Sibyl Fidanque, found yesterday in El Paso, Tex., has convinced him the radio singer was not kidnaped. Chief Black said results of the federal agents' work on the strange case would be announced later, but cited as partial basis for his doubt of the attractive matron's story of being kidnaped, information obtained from a San Jose bus station and a beauty parlor in Santa Monica, Cal.

Frank Good, agent at the San Jose bus station, previously had declared he recognized the woman pictured in newspapers after her disappearance last Saturday as the one to whom he sold a ticket to San Francisco. Today, he declared he later remembered she had bought a ticket for Los Angeles, and that returned stubs from Los Angeles, giving the exact time of their sale, confirmed his memory on the point.

The police chief said Mrs. Fidanque's brother, Basil Maduro of Hollywood, had gone with investigators to a beauty shop in Santa Monica where attendants related a woman resembling Mrs. Fidanque had come in to have her black hair dyed red.

He said Maduro's description of his sister convinced attendants the woman was Mrs. Fidanque.

Acquisition of Tammany Renamed 'Larceny Park'

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Marine park on Jamaica bay, Rockaway, acquired during the good old Tammany days at a cost of nearly $450,000, today was christened Larceny park b, Mayor La Guardia. The mayor, accompanied by Park Commissioner Robert Moses, made a trip to the park Friday. He said he had observed to his amazement that the land was wholly under water at high tide and that even at low tide part is under water.

CHOOSE CLERGYMAN TO MARRY ASTOR III., ELLEN TUCK FRENCH

Newport, R. I., June 23.—(AP)—The latest obstacle in the somewhat rocky road of John Jacob Astor III. to matrimony—deciding on a minister to officiate at his wedding—was smoothed today as the Rev. Harold St. George Burrill of Emanuel church here was chosen to marry him to Miss Ellen Tuck French on June 30.

The Rev. Stanley C. Hughes of Trinity church had been announced as the officiating pastor, but yesterday he found he could not perform the ceremony because of a previous engagement to marry the daughter of a boyhood friend at Ann Arbor, Mich. So for a while the scion of one of America's most wealthy families and the daughter of the socially prominent Mrs. Livingston French of Newport and New York and Francis O. French of Dedham, Mass., found themselves without a clergyman for their wedding.

The Rev. Burrill said that the rector of the Episcopal church at Rhinebeck, N. Y., home church of the Astor family, had been invited to assist him at the ceremonies.

Tonight armed guards surrounded the French and Astor residences as costly wedding presents began to arrive for the couple.

Former Congressman's Daughter Weds in East

Falmouth, Mass., June 23.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Delano Fort, daughter of Franklin L. Fort, former representative from New Jersey and former first chairman of the Federal Home Loan bank board, today became the bride of William Bull Church, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Howell Church of Washington. The ceremony was performed at St. Barnabas' Memorial church by the Rev. Leslie F. Wallace, rector.

All White Wedding Held in Church in Winnetka.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A fashionable north shore wedding yesterday was that of Miss Joy Elizabeth Fairman, daughter of the Fred W. Fairmans of Winnetka, to Edward F. Hamm Jr., son of the Edward F. Hamms of Kenilworth. It took place at Christ church, in Winnetka, and was an all white affair from the white and green decorations of the church to the white of the bridal gown and the attendants' dresses.

Promptly at 4:30 o'clock the bride came down the aile on the arm of her father to join the bridegroom at the altar where they repeated the wedding vows after the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, rector of the church.

Wear Charming Gowns.

The bride's gown of ivory satin had a tulle yoke edged with a thick ruching of tulle. The long train of the gown al was edged with the tulle ruching. Tulle leaves weighted the edges of the billowing tulle veil that was attached to a tiny cap. White orchids and lilies of the valley formed the bridal bouquet.

Her attendants were all gowned alike in white organza with white picture hats. They carried lilies of the valley. The skirts to their dresses were fashioned with a deep flounce at the bottom that swept into a train behind, and the little capes that fastened high up on their necks were finished in a deep flounce.

Reception at Home.

The attendants were Miss Anne Small, maid of honor; Mrs. William S. Miles Jr. [Ann Winifred McKeown], Mrs. Frank G. Osborne [Ann Robinson], Mrs. R. Hampton Ripley, Miss Veronese Beatty and Miss Harriet Hamm, bridesmaids.

Frederick B. Hamm served his brother as best man, and ushering were Mr. Ripley, Mr. Osborne, Fred W. Fairman Jr., Cameron Eddy, Thomas Eddy Jr., William Drake and Robert Biggert.

A reception followed at the Fairman home on Ash street. Mrs. Fairman, at the head of the receiving line, wore a chartreuse green gown with brown accessories and brown orchids, and the bridegroom's mother wore gray, with orchids. Mr. Hamm and his bride went west on their wedding trip and will be at home after a month in Winnetka.

DIES OF NAIL WOUND.

Frank Mizafka, 39 years old, 3537 Wood street, fell on a nail on June 8. He died yesterday of blood poisoning.

HERE'S THE WAY TO SEE HALL OF SCIENCE AT FAIR

Pilgrim Advised Not to "Look at Everything."

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The trouble with many visitors to the Hall of Science at the World's Fair is that they allow themselves to be swamped by the multitude of momentous exhibits in that vast wonderland.

They try to look at everything, with the result that, in the sense of genuine assimilation, they see nothing.

For these baffled pilgrims Dr. Carey Croneis, professor of geology at the University of Chicago and director of the Fair's division of basic sciences, has found the way to real enjoyment and comprehension of marvels housed in a building covering more than eight acres. His scheme illustrates an utterance of sententious Robert Harshe, director of the Art institute's World's Fair show, who says:

Suggests All Buy a Handbook.

Dr. Croneis would have his visitors start by spending 15 cents for the "Official Handbook of Exhibits in the Division of Basic Sciences."

This is a remarkable publication and its preparation probably cost every penny of its price. Bound in a substantial paper cover of white and blue, it contains 184 octavo pages, 34 illustrations, a double page plan of the hall's main floor, an 18 page index, and 4 blank leaves for notes. On page 14 are the 14 eloquent inscriptions which adorn the east wall of the main hall and which some visitors, not knowing that they are to be cheaply obtained in print, laboriously copy. Every one of them is a treasure of wisdom.

And step by step, since time began,
I see the steady gain of man.

"I think," said Dr. Croneis, "that the 'Handbook' is a fine, friendly gesture to the public. We worked hard to keep its price down. The tendency has been to make purchase of these aids a hardship for the visitor who must count his pennies. That is precisely what we have tried to keep away from."

Uses Nontechnical Language.

The special value of the "Handbook" is that under subheads in bold faced type it has something compact, and as far as possible in nontechnical language, about everything you are to see in the Division of Basic Sciences.

But do not try to see everything in one, or two, or a dozen trips.

On your first trip Dr. Croneis would have you give 120 minutes to 8 groups of exhibits, most of them spectacular and some of them sensational in the enlarged conceptions of the world we live in which they give the layman spectator.

Test of the Handbook.

Viewing them with reference to the 15 cent "Handbook," such a spectator will not merely gawk but will assimilate and will have at the close of his two hours impressions to retain and to cherish. After one such trip and one such testing of the guidebook he can easily map other trips for himself.

Dr. Croneis, who is that treasure among men—a university pundit who knows what a newspaper reporter wants and what a newspaper article will hold—helped me to prepare a specimen trip, together with location of each group of exhibits, time required to view it, and the page reference to it in the white and blue guide.

Having finished the outline, we checked and rechecked all its data and we think it well worth clipping from THE TRIBUNE—and following.

Here it is:

I—The Microvivarium: Gigantic microscopical show full of drama and excitement. Should be, says the guide, the first point visited by all intending to go through the biology section because it gives a vivid, animated portrayal of living cells and will make much easier the visualization of higher animals made up of millions of these fundamental units. The word microvivarium is a compound of the Greek "mikros" [little] and the Latin vivarium" [a place for the keeping or raising of animals]. Exhibition given under the friendly tutelage of Dr. Georg Roemmert of Carl Zeiss, Inc. Location: South end on main—or second—floor of the "great hall," where the inscriptions are, of the Hall of Science. Time required: 20 minutes. Page references in "Official Handbook": 97-98.

II—The Robot: A mechanical man not to be confused with the glass man —10 feet tall, who reveals to you by means of his ingenious patent insides and his patent voice the processes of digestion. A most comprehensive and instructive exhibition. Location: Just opposite Microvivarium. Time required: 18 minutes. Page 96. You can sit down to this show.

III—Various Exhibits in great hall: A: Periodic table of the elements, which may be called an encyclopedia-at-a-glance, so much information does it briefly and clearly convey about the ninety-two elements of which the earth is composed. The labels are models of erudition made easy. Location: South end of great hall. Time required: 5 minutes. Pages 20-28. B: The heavy hydrogen and heavy water exhibit. This display is of great dramatic appeal and scientific value because Dr. Harold C. Urey's discovery of heavy water, which is expected to win him a Nobel prize, enormously increases the number of possible compounds in organic chemistry. Location: East wall of great hall. Time required: 5 minutes. Page 32. C: Model of vastly magnified molecule of table salt. Squint your eyes to get more accurately what the movement of the electrons would be, as to swiftness, if the movement in the actual molecule were visible to the naked eye. Location: East wall of great hall. Time required: 5 minutes. Page 31. D: Exhibit of the equipment for last year's Settle-Fordney ascension of eleven and a half miles into the stratosphere, where there are no vertical air currents, no dust, no moisture, and no clouds. This exhibit features cosmic rays. Location: Center of north end of great hall. Time required: 5 minutes. Pages 28-30. Total time required for exhibits A, B, C, and D: 20 minutes.

IV—The Geological Time Clock: Drama of the chronology of our two billion year old world. Every tick of the clock marks the passing of ten million years. An exhibition not to be missed. Location: North end of great hall. Time required: 10 minutes. Page 30.

V—Light: Of the six sections on physics be sure to go through at least the section on light because, as the pithy handbook says, "by means of light we see and by means of sight we learn more than we do by our other senses combined." Location: Just beyond north end of great hall, west side. Time required: 20 minutes. Pages 65-70.

VI—The Fallacy of Perpetual Motion: Here are shown some of the best known "perpetual motion" machines that never worked. Nothing can move without friction and friction absorbs energy. Hence to keep up movement more energy must be supplied, a fact that defeats perpetual motion. An absorbing drama. Location: Turn east from No. 5—Light—and pause just west of north rotunda of great hall. Time required: 10 minutes. Page 41.

VII—The Geology area: Here the three most arresting and spectacular things to see are: A: Lake Michigan sand dune phenomena. Page 124. B: The stream table showing the deformation and erosion of land by rivers and streams. Of intense practical value to Americans owing to our deforestation madness. Page 124. C: The pressure box showing how mountains were made. Page 128. Location: To reach these three exhibits continue through north rotunda of great hall into the northeast wing of the building. Time required: 10 minutes for all three.

VIII—Human embryos: Loyola university's great exhibit which shows, among other marvels, complete and functional gill slits in the early stage of the human embryo, thus demonstrating man's relation to the fish group. Location: Descend one flight from main floor to ground floor and proceed to the central portion of western side of building. Time required: 12 minutes. Page 153 under the heading, "Loyola university."

Two Stimulating Hours.

Thus have your two hours gone and probably you have learned more—or at least received a greater number of stimulating impressions—than ever you did before in an equal period.

In addition to the data in the "Official Handbook," some of these exhibits have guide demonstrators in attendance; some are self-explanatory, some actually talk, and all are abundantly labeled. You cannot be at a loss for specific and compactly put information.

The Hall of Science opens at 10 o'clock in the morning and closes at 10 at night. Admission to everything in it is free.

Fallacy of Perpetual Motion.

Among the new exhibits in Dr. Croneis' specimen tour are [III B] heavy hydrogen and heavy water; [III D], the stratosphere equipment, and, [VI], the fallacy of perpetual motion. None of these was shown last summer. Most of the exhibits in mathematics are also brand new and have been made possible through the generosity of Henry Ford.

Dr. Croneis is deeply interested in the response of visitors to exhibits and is cheered by that response. Attendance includes old men in wheel chairs and boys and girls of primary school age. Comments are both sagacious and silly, but mostly sagacious, and questions are surprisingly to the point. Stupid and facetious questions are the exception.

"By and large," said the director, "the most intelligent visitors we ever had—at least among the hundreds of public personages—were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover. They asked more significant questions and went through the exhibits more thoroughly than any others. It was most heartening. She was vivacious and responsive. He thoroughly understood all he saw, but could not be responsive—not even to the extent of bowing his acknowledgments to the greetings of the onlooking crowds."

"The man is emotionally muscle bound," I interjected.

"That tells it precisely!" exclaimed Dr. Croneis.

The Modern Schoolboy.

Despite the charge of lawlessness frequently directed against the American schoolboy, that turbulent youth, once having got going in the Hall of Science, pleases the director.

"The modern schoolboy," he said, "assimilates better than the adult does. These boys have been fussing around building radio sets and airplane models, repairing automobiles, and making experiments in chemistry and biology. Many of them have an easy familiarity with the microscope. At the turn of the century biology was almost taboo in the average high school, partly because it was thought that it revealed facts which a boy was safer for not knowing. That was particularly true in those biological lines which have to do with man's relationship to the other animals and his slow but steady advance to his present position as homo sapiens.

"Nor have we dodged the controversial things.

"Take our geological time clock [No. IV in the specimen tour] as an illustration. It gives the people the startling concept that the earth is two billion years old. Certainly this is a far cry from 17th century Archbishop James Usher's calculation in his famous 'Annales Veteris et Novi Testamenti' that the world began on a morning of the year 4004 B. C. I think the learned Protestant prelate even specified the day of the week. In any case, his chronology was long accepted and his dates used to be printed on the margins of reference editions of the authorized version of the Bible."

Today clergy of all denominations view without resentment the time clock which shows the birth of the earth from the sun two billion years ago, and Roman Catholic teaching sisters are among the most receptive of the devotees who stand reverently before this altar to the ages.

No Complaints.

"Nor," continued the director, "have we had one formal complaint on the exhibit called 'The Face from Fish to Man' [page 140 in the 'Handbook'], which reveals the development of the human countenance. A few years ago there would have been protests. People seem to think that what is in the Hall of Science is right and that it represents careful, honest thought.

"Especially gratifying has been the reception of Loyola university's wonderful exhibit of human embryos [No. VIII in the specimen tour]. Few physicians even have ever before seen so complete a sequence of embryos. By laymen, from old folk to little girls, they are examined without any self-conscious snickers. I like the serious, intent attitude of these visitors. There is no spoofing, no wisecracking. Instead, the exhibition lays awe upon them. One phase of it—the complete and functional gill slits in the early stage of the human embryo showing its relation to the fish group —would have been simply hair raising to the orthodox a few years ago. Somebody would have had the law on u Of course the truth in this matter was known about the time of our civil war as a result of the researches of the German naturalist Haeckel, but it was not studied even in colleges until the last part of the last century. I may add that the embryos in this exhibit are not models but actual. And yet they are not revolting, so beautifully have the Jesuit scientists done their work."

Of the robot that tells the story of digestion [No. II in the specimen tour], Dr. Croneis said that there are 4,900 electrical impulses per cycle in the mechanism of this vivid model, and on the periodic table [III A] of the 92 elements which compose the world we live in he made this comment:

Man Is Yet Young.

"Here have specimens of all the foundation stones of the earth been gotten together in one place. Some of these elements are so rare that there was great difficulty in assembling them. Many of them the experienced chemist has never handled. A great deal of work was expended on this periodic table to keep it simple."

Of the mighty lesson of the time clock he said:

"How it cheers up the spectator! Man is young yet. There is hope."

"If," said the director, "there are 200,000 people on the Exposition grounds on a given day, 160,000 of them will find their way into the Hall of Science. In other words, we get about 75 per cent of the total gate. Of last summer's 23 million visitors to the Fair, from 17 million to 18 million came to the hall. That ratio is being equaled this summer."

Last year there was much complaint that it was impossible for large groups of visitors to get close to a popular exhibit at one time or to hear the accompanying lecture. This difficulty has been corrected by increasing the space around the exhibits, sometimes as much as fivefold.

Fifty Student Guides.

Fifty guide demonstrators explain the exhibits without charge. They are recruited from the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, the University of Illinois, Armour institute, and from other institutions of higher learning as far south as Tulane university in New Orleans. Nearly all of them are graduate students and some have received the degree of Ph.D. They receive a wage of $100 a month from the Fair. Before the depression some of them held important teaching positions or were in the research departments of big firms. One man in the laboratories, which are run continuously for the renewal, repair, and remotorizing of delicate exhibits, was a finalist in the Prix de Paris contest in the Beaux Arts and was a gold medalist there.

Thoughtful persons should take account of the fact that the Hall of Science is the last opportunity of the kind that the general public will have until the next great exposition. They may get bits of such opportunity in museums, but not the harmonious sequences showing the unity of all science. Above all, they will not get the dramatic and spectacular appeal of many wonders telling their story in motion.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY CUTS PRICE TO TVA

Revises Offer on Sale of Distribution Plants.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 23.—[Special.]—A revised offer for the sale of the Alabama Power company electric distribution facilities in northern Alabama was received today by the Tennessee Valley authorities following further negotiation.

David Lilienthal, TVA power director, Thursday had advised Tuscumbia, Sheffield, and Florence, Ala., to press their dealings with the Civil Works administration for funds to build municipal power distribution plants, since "negotiations with the Alabama Power company have fallen through."

Terms Price Too High.

Mr. Lilienthal had said that he regretted very much that the power company asked more than the authority believed the property, counting depreciation, was worth. He said he felt that if the TVA could purchase the properties it would avoid expensive competition.

His statement regarding the revised offer follows: "After further negotiations the TVA today a revised offer was received for the sale to the TVA of the electric distribution properties of the Alabama Power company in northern Alabama.

"The price fixed is one with which the authority is in substantial though not entire, agreement, provided the final figure likewise is agreeable to the municipalities involved, inasmuch as the plant contemplates resale of these properties to the communities.

Conference Planned.

"The authority will confer with them at an early date to learn whether such a program is acceptable, or whether they prefer to press their applications for loans from the PWA with which to construct new plants.

"The authority believes that the purchase at a fair price will be in the public interest, as it will eliminate the delay involved in completing new distribution systems, and will avoid substantial losses to investors arising out of competition."

LEGION STUDIES PLANS TO ASSIST DISABLED VETS

Edward A. Hayes, national commander of the American Legion, declared in a Chicago address yesterday that intensive study was being given the problems of veteran rehabilitation and that when the Legion at its next convention adopts a policy it will be a fair one and easily understandable. This statement was made at a regional conference of the Legion, held in the Morrison hotel. Delegates came from 13 midwestern states.

The conference decided a committee of three Legionnaires and three physicians appointed by the American Medical association should work out a plan for the coöperation of physicians in rehabilitation work.

Watson Miller of Washington, D. C., chairman of the national rehabilitation committee, asserted that greater facilities should be assigned for the care of veterans who have become insane. He suggested that the government might transfer some beds in tuberculosis sanitoriums to the use of the mentally ill, as there has been a decrease in tuberculosis among the veterans, while neurotic ailments are increasing.

Courtney Aid Captures Burglar Hiding Next Door

Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Spiro was reading a newspaper in his home at 8014 South Peoria street late Friday night when he heard Mrs. Albert L. Braunhold, his neighbor at 8012 South Peoria street, screaming. Mr. Spiro seized a revolver and dashed over to the Braunhold home. There he forced Francis Hogan, 26, 5617 South Sangamon street, a burglar, to come out of a closet where he had hidden himself. Mr. Spiro turned his prisoner over to the police.

TOUR OF STATE BUILDS G. O. P.'S HOPES FOR FALL

Sees Election of 17 to 20 of 27 Congressmen.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Chairman Justus L. Johnson of the Republican state central committee returned to Chicago yesterday after a week of downstate roundups, brimful of confidence that on Nov. 6 his party would at least double the number of seats it now holds in the Illinois delegation in the national house of representatives.

"We shall elect at least 17 of the 27 congressmen from Illinois," he said, "and our total may go as high as twenty. If present trends continue, it is almost certain to reach that figure."

At present the Republicans hold only eight seats to the Democrats 19, but Chairman Johnson said all the signs pointed to the recovery of most of the losses of 1930 and 1932, if not all of them. In those two elections the G. O. P. dropped two congressmen-at-large and 11 district congressmen, eight of the latter from downstate.

Visit North Central Area.

He based his opinion largely on information gathered during his week of congressional district roundups in company with Perry B. McCullough, chairman of the executive committee, and Don Garrison, executive assistant. The trio conducted meetings at central points in ten districts covering a belt running across the north central part of the state.

They were districts 11 to 19, inclusive, and the 21st district. Six of these are now represented by Democrats and four by Republicans.

"They all look Republican now," Johnson declared, "and the tendency, they tell us, is growing stronger every day. About one-third of the Republican vote went Democratic in 1932, but about two-thirds of those Republicans are now back in the party.

See Victories "At Large."

"In addition there are about one-third of the Democrats, the old line, nonsocialistic men and women who are against the present administration's extreme policies. They also will be with us in the fall.

"We are claiming the state for the Republican ticket, including the nominees for congressmen at large, Brooks and Jones, and we count on carrying every one of the ten districts we visited in the last week.

"Next week we shall visit another string of districts and our information from a number of them with which we have been in touch is that they will replace Democrats with Republicans in November.

Find Democrats Worried.

"We have been met with full cooperation everywhere. Old factional lines have been forgotten. The people have begun to realize that this is the most important election since '60 if American liberty is to be saved from destruction."

Johnson said that the Democrats have become so worried about the swing of the state since it was announced that Henry P. Fletcher, Republican national chairman, will keynote the campaign at the state fair on Aug. 9 that they are doing their utmost to persuade Postmaster General Farley, Democratic chairman, to speak at Springfield some time in July.

Campbell Takes to Field.

Chairman Johnson said that a party of Democrats somewhat similar to his Republican group has also been touring the state, but has been spending its time in hotel rooms receiving and attempting to placate irate members of the party who have been promised jobs, but instead of employment have received only a series of letters "stringing them along."

The Democratic group consists of Bruce A. Campbell, state chairman; John Stelle, nominee for state treasurer, and Michael L. Igoe, nominee for congressman at large.

"It is significant," continued Johnson, "that county chairmen of more than half of the counties in the state —fifty-two to be exact—have been deposed by their organizations in patronage rows.

How Salve Is Spread.

"That was to be expected when the state organization accepted 150,000 applications for jobs and there are still 130,000 of them on hand with not more than 3,000 more jobs available.

"These 130,000 have been kept quiet to some extent by letters, one acknowledging the application, another saying the application had been passed upon favorably by the patronage committee, and another saying the applicant is receiving consideration.

"But apparently the managers don't know what to write next, so they have sent out peacemakers to soothe the discontented ones, possibly with promises of some of the thousands of census taking jobs to be given out just before the election."

ARTISTIC BOAT PROPELLER

O. T. Kreusser, director of the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park, displays a boat propeller as an example of artistic beauty produced by the machine age. A preview of the machine age art exhibition will be held tomorrow evening. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Industry Art Display Offers Proof of 'Machine Age Beauty'

The formal answer of industry to repeated complaints that the machine age, by standardizing everything, has destroyed the beauty given to the past by individual craftsmanship was being prepared yesterday at the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park.

It is Chicago's first exhibition of machine art, and it will be ready for a critical preview tomorrow night. It is visual proof that the industrial age and beauty are really united; that prosaic utility in most cases enhances rather than interferes with the artistic qualities of objects.

Already, under the hands of workmen, the strange art exhibit has taken form. Shining pots and pans, graceful springs, fragile, transparent electric light globes; paper cups of delicate design, a lustrous kitchen sink, and a silver propeller from an outboard motor are being hung and placed with the care that might be lavished on the works of Praxiteles or Rodin.

Strange Neighbors at Show.

For neighbors these objects have glass torts, plumb bobs, protractors, torsion balances, ebulliometers, diaphots, aplanatic magnifiers; bright, compact things that even the museum officials cannot explain, but yet are as much a part of modern life as spoons or stoves.

The assortment of more than 100 objects, at least in the eyes of O. T. Kreusser, director of the museum, is not to be regarded from the functional standpoint at all. It is taken for granted that the clocks will keep time and the bulbs will light and the other pieces will fulfill their utilitarian tasks. They are to be regarded as objects of beauty; as if they had no other earthly use but to brighten a room or an art gallery.

Only incidentally should the knowledge of the use of the articles on display enhance their aesthetic value.

Industrialists who have contributed their products to the exhibit have gone so far as to contend they are superior to sculpture and painting and other forms of artistic expression.

In 1934 they quote Plato as follows:

Quote Plato on Beauty.

"By beauty of shapes I do not mean, as most people would suppose, the beauty of living figures or of pictures, but, to make my point clear, I mean straight lines and circles, and shapes, plane or solid, made from them by lathe, ruler and square. These are not, like other things, beautiful relatively, but always and absolutely."

Carrying out this idea, Director Kreusser asserted that although the beauty of the machine art is a by-product of the function, it is not necessarily a meagre or trivial beauty. He indicated that the beauty of all natural objects is also a by-product— the helix of a snail's shell [and a steel coil], the graduated feathering of a bird's wing [and the leaves of a laminated spring], the rabbit's footprints in the snow [and the track of non-skid tires], the elegance of fruit [and of incandescent bulbs].

The truth of this is easily seen at the museum. A big pottery insulator reposes on a stand like some strange brown flower. Broken cable sections look like geometric designs, or like snowflakes seen under a microscope. A white furnace is as carefully outlined as a pillar from an Athenian temple. A glass flower bowl is as symetrical as anything ever blown in Venice. A dental drill has the rapacious line of a cormorant.

Beauty in a Copper Pot.

In daily life, Mr. Kreusser said, the beauty of these things passes practically unnoticed. A copper pot on the stove is thought of as something with which to cook; on a pedestal in the exhibit it becomes an article of beauty.

"It is not enough that we have bound Frankenstein and made him do our bidding," the director stated, "but now we are able to prove we have transformed Frankenstein into a thing of beauty."

One of the things its sponsors hope will come from the exhibit is a public appreciation of logical beauty of machine art, dependant upon lines and masses and colors and textures and not upon unnecessary ornamentation. With this appreciation, they believe, will come a demand for increased beauty in all industrial products.

The show will be open to the public from Tuesday, June 26, until Sept. 15.

RFC BARES BOLD PLAN TO DICTATE TO U. S. INDUSTRY

Loan Conditions Reveal New Attempt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—A new and bold attempt to saddle government dictatorship on industry through the medium of federal easy money loans was disclosed today when the Reconstruction Finance corporation made public the conditions on which it will lend funds directly to businesses.

The RFC demanded the right to pass on all salaries and dividends by companies receiving loans as long as the loans remain in effect. The RFC, in addition, claimed the right to send its examiners into the borrowing companies at any time to go over their books and records.

Waves NRA Banner.

To route the RFC easy money into the pockets of those friendly to the New Dealers, the RFC also dictates that no loan will be made to any business not complying with NRA and, further, that no borrower may use the easy money to purchase materials not made in compliance with the Blue Eagle.

The RFC's conditions were regarded here as a bid for government supervision over a larger segment of industry. The RFC has 300 million dollars which congress appropriated for direct loans to industry, and, because of a $500,000 limitation on each loan, this fund will give the RFC power over at least 600 business concerns.

In addition to the 300 millions to be disbursed in easy money loans through the RFC, the 12 federal reserve banks have also been given 280 millions for the same purpose by congress. If the reserve banks are persuaded to adopt the same rigid conditions as the RFC, the government may increase the total of its dependent industries to approximately 1,500.

Appears in Small Print.

The most sweeping regulatory power laid down by the RFC as a condition for the loans, the right to examine the books of an industry at will, was not set forth in the RFC's official synopsis of loan terms. It appeared only in small type in a reprint of the lending law at the end of the synopsis.

Procedure through which industries wishing to borrow money are to go was also set out by the RFC in its circular on direct loans to industry. The circular explained:

1. Industries seeking loans should apply to regional RFC branch office.

2. Loans will be made for periods up to five years, the interest rates will be the same as those charged by banks, the loans must be adequately secured, and the sum must not exceed $500,000.

3. The borrower must be solvent, must comply with the NRA, and must have been in business on Jan. 1.

To Supply Working Capital.

4. Generally speaking, loans will be made only to supply working capital.

5. Loans will not be made to retire indebtedness, pay taxes, finance new construction, pay for consumer purchases, finance foreign trade, develop promotional projects, or revive inactive industries.

6. The RFC will usually accept as collateral first mortgages on real estate, plant and equipment or chattels, assignments of current accounts, trade acceptances, or warehouse receipts, but will not accept second mortgage bonds or stock, franchises, good will, or foreign securities.

7. The RFC shall have the right to examine the books and records of the company when it deems necessary, and can pass upon the salaries or dividends paid by the company as long as the loan is in force.

WICKERSHAM, LOWDEN DECLINE POSTS WITH NATIONAL G. O. P. CLUB

New York, June 24.—(AP)—Two of the Republican party's elder statesmen sent word today to Col. Theodore Roosevelt, president of the National Republican club, declining appointments to the national affairs committee of the organization because of their age.

The two were Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois and former candidate for Republican nomination for the presidency, and George W. Wickersham.

"The time has come when the younger men in the Republican party must assume responsibility and with that idea in mind I ask you to name some younger man in my place," wrote former Gov. Lowden to Col. Roosevelt.

"I feel," wrote Wickersham, "that the work on the committee on national affairs should be undertaken and carried through by the younger men of the club. The fact is that we have come to a time when young Republicans must assume the burden that was carried by men of my age a generation ago."

Boston Manufacturer's Son Drowns Fixing Boat

Sunapee, N. H., June 23.—(AP)— Howard Coonley Jr., 33, son of the president of the Walworth Manufacturing company of Boston, drowned early today in Lake Sunapee while repairing a motorboat in which he was taking a party of friends for a ride. Coonley was associated with the New York offices of his father's company. His father, widely known in industrial circles, was reported aboard a train bound for Chicago.

PAGEANT-DRAMA WILL TELL STORY OF IRISH NATION

A dramatic spectacle depicting Irish culture, legend and history from pre-Christian times through the ages, is being planned by Chicagoans of Irish birth or extraction for presentation in Soldiers' Field Aug. 28 and 29. It will be called "The Pageant of Ireland."

An organization known as Irish Historial Productions has been formed to sponsor the pageant, with Attorney John V. Ryan as president. Mary A. Purcell is secretary, Dr. Alexander Pope is treasurer, and Matthias J. Harford and James E. Sanford are vice presidents. The executive committee includes many judges, professors, clergymen and other Irish leaders of Chicago.

The pageant, under professional direction, will be presented by a cast of almost 2,000 actors, dancers and musicians. It will be in pantomime but will be interpreted by a narrator.

Bandits Rob Ice Cream Plant of Swift & Co.

Two bandits stole $200 in cash and $1,300 in drivers' checks last night in a robbery of the ice cream plant of Swift & Co., 7409 South State street. The robber pair with a third man appeared at the rear entrance of the plant, captured Charles Lehman. Two of them forced Lehman to take them into the office. The third robber remained outside. In the office the gunmen menaced Edward Charlton, manager, and Joseph Horsch, a driver, and robbed them.

Italian-American Civic League Convenes Here

Three hundred delegates registered at the Stevens hotel yesterday for the convention of the Italian-American Civic league. The delegates toured the city, and attended last night a dinner dance at which Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul-general, Dr. John B. Cipriani of the faculty of the University of Illinois college of medicine, and Judge John J. Lupe of the Municipal court, spoke. A session this morning will adjourn in the afternoon to visit A Century of Progress.

BRAIN TRUSTERS TOIL SECRETLY ON RADICAL PLANS

Program Will Depend on November Vote.

utilities is expected to be advanced at the next session of congress, and according to authoritative sources is but a forerunner of government ownership of many other industries.

The Tennessee Valley authority, without specific authorization by congress, already has begun the seizure of privately owned power plants and distributing companies at prices which do not even reimburse the owners of the properties. Joseph B. Eastman, the New Deal's railroad czar, is known to be devising legislation by which the government will take ownership of the transportation systems of the country.

Rail and water and highway transportation is to be brought more closely under the thumb of federal control, and if his program does not produce the results desired by the brain trust, it is said, the government will proceed to direct ownership and operation.

Similarly, the powers given to the new communications commission to control the radio, telephone and telegraph companies, is expected to be extended to produce monopolies in each group, and possibly eventual government ownership. There is some dissension among the leaders of the brain trust as to the speed with which all these and other changes in the American system of government shall be attempted.

Tugwell Would Go Slowly.

Some, and their spokesman is generally Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, want action quickly while the people are believed to be under the spell of the Roosevelt popularity. Others, and these include Prof. Tugwell, think more ground can be gained by a gradual movement toward their ends, so gradual as to bring the public irresistibly and almost without their comprehension of what is happening, toward the goal.

Relief Administrator Hopkins has under consideration plans for the purchase by the government of textile and lether industries, and their operations by workers drawn from the unemployed. Mr. Hopkins, it is said, is opposed to a continuous application of the dole to the millions still without independen. means of support, and despite the corruption of the ill-fated CWA, which he administered at a cost of a billion dollars of public funds, Mr. Hopkins believes the federal government can give millions work by "making" work.

In the same way, it is reported, the brain trust will renew efforts to have the government set up and operate industrial plants at the sites of the subsistence homesteads which now are being set up all over the country. In many of the locations of these homestead projects no employment by private industries is available for the homesteaders, and it is not believed that the brain trust will consent to the abandonment of the scheme because the subjects of their experiment cannot find work. The government, it is expected, will give them work if it means government ownership and operation of industries in competition with private enterprises.

Rigid Government Dictation.

The brain trust's program for "voluntary" control of agricultural production already has given way, in the case of cotton and tobacco, to rigid government dictation. The brain trust divests itself of responsibility for this development, crediting it to the southern senatorial clique headed by "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina, but it is conceded that if Secretary Wallace and Prof. Tugwell can make the compulsory plan work with cotton and tobacco it will be extended without delay or hesitation to wheat, corn, and other basic crops.

Secretary Wallace has given indication that despite the blocking in the senate of his amendments to the farm act, which would have given him increased powers over agriculture, he will continue to assume the powers anyway. But it is expected that the next congress will be asked to pass the defeated amendments and others besides.

The oil production control bill which went by the board in the desires of the administration to wind up the last session will be reintroduced in the next congress, it is believed.

Must Grope with Problem.

The next congress also must grope with the problem of what to do with the NRA, whose lease on life expires June 16, 1935. Although many leaders in the administration are discouraged with the failures of the NRA, it is expected some scheme will be proposed whereby its principal aims might be perpetuated. Favorable comment among the brain trusters has greeted a suggestion that the NRA be radically simplified to embrace all of industry in not more than 30 "master" codes governing the various groups of industry.

Control of the commodity exchanges of the country, forestalled at the last session, is regarded a certainty for adoption at the opening of the next congress.

David Lilienthal, radical Wisconsinite, who is in practical control of the Tennessee Valley Authority, already has disclosed that he is planning for the government to take over other great water sheds whose privately operated utilities will be gobbled up as he is seizing those in the Tennessee valley and whose people will be subjected to the laboratory methods of civilization designed by Mr. Lilienthal.

Great schemes for the federal control of land and water power reclamation projects are being hatched in the administration, and the President is expected, early in the next session, to produce a nationally comprehensive land and water power program.

Although the banks and the credit systems of the country already are well under the control of the federal treasury, the reserve board and the Reconstruction Finance corporation, it is expected the brain trust will pursue that control still further, toward a goal of a unified banking system, under federal domination.

That all of these projects will cost an aggregate of money which will make the expenditures of the first years of the New Deal seem tame in comparison, is to be expected.

No Balanced Budget In 1935.

No one in the administration now looks for an actual balancing of the federal budget in 1936, as the President hoped. Most of the brain trusters, it is declared, do not expect to match expenditures with income for many years to come, but they are planning, it is said, to seek constant increases in taxation. As quickly as industry and commerce revive from the depression—and they assume the revival will continue—the purpose is to put on heavier and heavier taxes, so that revenue for the carrying out of their paternalistic schemes may be at hand.

Motorship Can Pass Under Michigan Avenue Bridge

CITY SHUTS TAVERN FOR HIRING M'FADDEN, EX-TOUHY GANGSTER

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday ordered the closing of the Club café, a tavern at 1754 West Madison street, following the discovery that Edward [Father Tom] McFadden, a member of the Touhy gang, had been managing it. The tavern's license will be revoked, Allman said.

McFadden appeared before Judge Frances Borrelli in the Des Plaines street court on Friday on a charge of disorderly conduct after the police arrested him in the tavern on Thursday. He was discharged when the policemen in court said that he had been arrested only for questioning in connection with the shooting of Robert Berg, a clerk for the HOLC.

Yesterday Capt. Charles McGurn of the Warren avenue station said that he could not understand why the policemen had not informed Judge Borrelli that McFadden was working in the tavern. The tavern is owned by Nick Leone, a friend of McFadden.

McFadden was indicted with Roger Touhy and other members of his gang for the kidnaping of John Factor. The state nol prossed the charge. He was rearrested at the request of Wisconsin authorities on a charge of possessing a machine gun. His petition for a writ of habeas corpus was denied and he has appealed and is at liberty on bond.

MOUNTAIN SINKS IN HONDURAS; CROPS VANISH

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, June 23.—(AP)—The 8,000 foot mountain Erapuca, in the Copan zone, was reported officially today to be sinking alarmingly.

A government announcement said more than 625 acres of cornfields on the slopes already had disappeared and that other agriculture on the mountainside was being wrecked.

An official commission of engineers has been ordered out to investigate the phenomena.

TAVERN OWNER ROBBED.

Thomas Morris, part owner of a tavern at 4058 West Harrison street, was robbed of $550 by three bandits who forced his automobile to the curb with their car at Fillmore street and Springfield avenue yesterday.

"SENSATION" IN "HETTY GREEN'S" WILL PROMISED

Seattle, Wash., June 23.—(AP)—G. H. Rummens, attorney, said today he will file the will of eccentric, wealthy Mrs. Sarah Smith-Scollard here Wednesday, and it will be "sensational."

Reese B. Brown, Yakima capitalist, friend and business manager of the "Hetty Green of La Salle street," obtained "all but a fraction" of the wealthy widow's vast holdings, valued once at $14,000,000, before she died in Montreal, Rummens said today. The Scollard interests have filed several suits, one for $5,000,000, against Brown's estate, contending he took her money before he was killed recently in an accident.

Meanwhile Mrs. Brown, after electrifying a court hearing at Yakima by producing what are believed to be the ashes of the wealthy widow and telling the court that Reese Brown kept them concealed while lawyers and federal agents sought Mrs. Scollard, came to Seattle and secluded herself in the mansion of her son.

LA SALLE RADIO STATION MOVE TO NORMAL IS O. K.'D

Bloomington, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—The federal radio commission granted operators of radio station WJBL, La Salle, Ill., permission to move to Normal, Ill., according to a report received here today. The new station will have its transmitter in Normal and its studios on the campuses of Illinois Wesleyan university and Illinois State Normal university.

There will be no change in time or power assignments, commission officials said. The station will continue to operate on 1,200 kilocycles and 100 watts and will share time with a station in Decatur.

The station comes to Bloomington-Normal because of the large amount of talent in the two cities. This is to be found at Normal and Wesleyan universities and in the numerous musical organizations and dramatic clubs of the cities.

SHIP SETS OBJECT LESSON AVOIDING TIEUP OF BRIDGES

Points Way to $800,000 Saving for City.

The motorship Material Service, loaded with gravel, makes daily passages through the Chicago river, passing under all the standard clearance bridges and serving as an object lesson to Chicago, according to city officials. If all navigation concerns used similar equipment, it is said, the city would be saved an expense of $800,000 a year, the cost of operating its lift bridges, and a time saving to vehicles and pedestrians totaling 136 eight hour days a year would be effected.

Spans Lifted 18,740 Times.

The sixteen downtown bridges were raised a total of 18,740 times in 1933, the waiting time averaging about 3½ minutes, according to the records of Harbormaster William J. Lynch. The cost of operating the city's 54 bridges, including those on the Calumet river, was $729,237 during 1933.

The Material Service, which has been in operation about five years hauling gravel from Lockport to various yards on the Chicago river, the Sag canal, and Calumet river and nearby points, has a cargo capacity of 2,400 tons. Since it is operated by a diesel engine it has no stacks and there is no superstructure, excepting the A-frame of the patented self-unloading equipment, which collapses.

Clears Without Ballast.

Loaded, the motorship clears under all the standard clearance [16½ feet] bridges and only a small quantity of water ballast is required at normal river levels when it is empty. At present, due to the low stage of the river, the vessel clears without ballast.

During May the vessel made 33 round trips between Lockport and the yards in the Chicago river and South Chicago.

The Material Service is owned by the Leathem-Smith Navigation company and operated for the Material Service company.

PRESIDENT PUTS OFF 'INTERESTING ANNOUNCEMENT'

Keeps His News Story for a Dull Day.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 23.—[Special.]—A 24 hour postponement was announced late today by President Roosevelt of the "interesting announcement" which he mentioned yesterday to newspapermen accompanying him. And thereby hangs a revealing story concerning the highly skilful manner in which news is dished out to White House correspondents.

Veteran newsmen smiled in knowing fashion when informed that there would be no statement from the President until tomorrow. It had been obvious when the chief executive promised a "good story" yesterday that he and his advisers were anxious that the statement be given the most prominent publicity. The delay until tomorrow was due to nothing more than the well known fact that the Monday morning papers, hungry for news after the usually dull Sunday, undoubtedly will give the story more publicity than they would on Sunday morning.

Surrounded by "Artists."

Every good press agent knows that Sunday evening is the time to issue statements. And the President of the United States has surrounding him some of the most polished propaganda artists in the country. Their operations on this excursion have proved interesting, amusing, and provocative of thought to a reporter following the President for the first time.

In their frantic efforts to prevent what might be interpreted as unfavorable publicity concerning the President, these attachés have no scruples in resorting to tactics which amount to a censorship of news.

When the President made his speech to Yale alumni last Wednesday, he referred to the "ribald laughter and comment" which had been occasioned in some parts of the country by the workings of the brain trust in Washington. The official stenographer who follows the President and takes down all his utterances later issued copies of the talk to newspapermen in which this phrase had been altered to "a certain amount of comment."

Cause Inaccurate Version.

It was felt, apparently, by the propaganda boys that the chief executive had been indiscreet in his admittance that criticism of the professors at the capital existed in the union. Whether or not the President is consulted when his own words are twisted was not learned. The result, however, was that a great many newspapers of the country did not give to their readers an accurate version of the speech when they printed the official text as sent out by the news associations.

The President motored to his home here today from New London, Conn., where yesterday he saw the crew of his alma mater, Harvard, beaten by Yale in the annual regatta on the Thames river.

Thrills Stand Owner.

He stopped on the way for hot dogs and beer at a roadside stand, bringing a thrill into the life of the owner and giving him something to talk about to his neighbors for the rest of his life. The wooden ladle which spread the mustard on the presidential frankfurters, was laid carefully aside to lend circumstantial color to the narrative.

At his home, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt met, for the first time, their daughter-in-law, Ruth, wife of Elliott Roosevelt, and their grand-daughter born a few months ago. Elliott was married for the second time last summer in Burlington, Ia., after a divorce from his first wife.

PRINCE OF WALES 40; BRITISH WONDER IF HE INTENDS TO MARRY

LONDON, June 23.—[U. P.]—Passage of the prince of Wales 40th birthday today brought a revival of conjectures whether he will marry or become a bachelor king of England.

The prince had lunch with his parents, King George and Queen Mary, at Windsor castle, but otherwise the day marking his becoming of middle age was like any other. There were no ceremonies and the prince, long a dashing international figure fluttering feminine hearts in many lands, spent most of the time reading innumerable messages of congratulation.

Few believe now that he will ever marry. The prince, his intimate friends insist, prefers his freedom and prefers to play a round of golf than go out with women. It has been some time now since his name has been linked with any eligible girl. The conviction is growing that he will not only refrain from matrimony, but step aside when the time comes and permit his youger brother, the duke of York, to become king.

HE PREFERS JAIL TO VACCINATION FOR HIS CHILDREN

Carlisle, Pa., June 23.—(AP)—Seven months in jail—and his willingness to stay there for the rest of his life if necessary—have proved unavailing to John Marsh in his fight to prevent vaccination of two of his children.

Firm in the belief that they would go blind as a result of vaccination, Marsh went to jail in November for breaking the school laws, and reiterated his defiance 44 times—once for each of a series of five day sentences—before losing out to the law. The children, Daniel, 9, and Lorman, 8, were to have been vaccinated today, but a court order postponed the action until Monday.

William Dosh, justice of the peace, before whom the prosecutions were instituted for violation of the school laws, said Marsh still was liable to imprisonment for 200 days, but that he would be released after the children were vaccinated. Under the law, he said, a parent is subject to five days' imprisonment for each day a child is kept from school illegally.

200 ATTEND SALE OF FARM; JUDGE POSTPONES O. K.

Watseka, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—About 200 farmers gathered in the courthouse today to halt the foreclosure sale of Mrs. Lanise Saindon's 144 acre farm near Beaverville, and a judge agreed to withhold for ninety days approval of the sale to give Mrs. Saindon opportunity to get a federal loan.

L. Z. Lambert and Napoleon Marion, representing the Beaverville state bank, claimed $6,000 was owed on a mortgage. Circuit Judge Claude Saum refused to postpone the sale but agreed to withhold the court's approval for ninety days. The farm then was sold to the plaintiffs for $5,650.

Helvering Quits Aug. 28 as Kansas Democratic Chief

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, will retire Aug. 28 as Democratic state chairman in Kansas. This is in line with Secretary Morgenthau's order that treasury men cannot hold party posts.

Offers $5,000 for Capture of "Baby Face" Nelson.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—The federal government tonight set a price of $10,000 on the head of John Dillinger, currently the nation's most notorious desperado.

Five midwestern states also have announced intention of paying rewards of $1,000 each in the event of Dillinger's capture. The governors of Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, and Minnesota have authorized the rewards.

Acting under the terms of a new law passed by the last congress, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings offered $10,000 for the capture of Dillinger, and $5,000 for information leading to his arrest. It was the first reward posted by the federal government in recent years for a bandit.

At the same time Attorney General Cummings offered $5,000 for the capture of Lester M. Gillis, alias "Baby Face" Nelson, Dillinger's right hand man. Information leading to Gillis' capture will be rewarded with $2,500.

Chief Targets of Crime Drive.

By singling out Dillinger and his lieutenant for the first posting of rewards, Attorney General Cummings tonight made them unofficially public enemies Nos. 1 and 2, respectively. Theoretically they become the chief targets of what the attorney general calls the federal government's renewed crime drive, launched under a dozen new criminal statutes passed by the last congress.

The government's action was tantamount to setting a price of $15,000 on the heads of the two notorious criminals whose stamping ground has been the Chicagoland states. The attorney general's statement, however, did not include the famous phrase "dead or alive."

The new federal reward law reads that if the criminal is killed in the capture, the attorney general may, in his discretion, award only a part of the money offered. This proviso was written in at Mr. Cummings' request; he declared to congress that he much preferred to dispatch criminals through the courts rather than at the point of a smoking gun.

Cites Two for Bravery.

In formally offering the reward, the attorney general specified that his decision shall be final in settling any conflicting claims. Simultaneous with the offering of the reward, the attorney general cited Paul Walker and Emil Steffin, two Waterloo, Ia., policemen, for bravery "in their encounter with the notorious Tommy Carroll."

"I wish to express my gratification," Mr. Cummings said, "to the many local and state authorities who have entered so wholeheartedly into the nation wide hunt for Dillinger and the members of his gang. I desire especially to point to the valor exhibited by Paul Walker and Emil Steffin, two police of Waterloo, Ia., in their encounter with the notorious Tommy Carroll."

Proclamation by Cummings.

"I, Homer S. Cummings, attorney general of the United States, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the act of congress approved June 6, 1934, and by virtue of all other authority vested in me, do hereby proclaim and offer the following rewards:

"1. For the capture of John Dillinger, $10,000.

"2. For information leading to the arrest of John Dillinger, $5,000.

"3. For the capture of Lester M. Gillis, alias 'Baby Face' Nelson, $5,000.

"4. For information leading to the arrest of Lester M. Gillis, alias 'Baby Face' Nelson, $2,500.

Will Settle All Claims.

"All claims to any of the aforesaid rewards and all questions and disputes that may arise as among claimants to the foregoing rewards or any of them, shall be passed upon by me, and my decisions shall be final and conclusive. The right is reserved to divide and allocate portions of any of said rewards as between several claimants.

"No part of the aforesaid rewards shall be paid to any official or employé of the department of justice."

HULL CONSIDERS LATIN AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP TOUR

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[U. P.]—Possibility that Secretary of State Cordell Hull might visit Central and South American countries in line with his personal desire to cement friendship with countries to the south was indicated by state department officials today.

Hull recently expressed a desire to travel the Pan-American highway, particularly through its section from Texas to Mexico, now in the process of completion near Mexico City. Although officials emphasized that such a trip had not yet reached the planned stage, they ventured the possibility he might continue southwards.

It was recalled that in connection with his attendance at the recent Montevideo conference, Hull visited Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, Peru, and Panama, and that in view of his friendly overtures to those countries, he is considering visits to other Latin-American countries when the opportunity presents itself.

SHERIDAN TRAFIC TO BE DIVERTED TO BROADWAY

Maj. James U. Sammis, commanding the Lincoln park police, announced yesterday that after 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning all southbound trafic south of Berwyn avenue on Sheridan road will be diverted to Broadway. This arrangement will continue for one week, during the repaving and widening of Foster avenue, which is one block south of Berwyn avenue.

The best way for motorists in this vicinity to reach the outer drive during this period will be by Lawrence or Wilson avenues. Drivers coming from the north would be wise if they avoided Sheridan road entirely, Maj. Sammis said, and proceeded at once to Broadway or Ashland avenue.

WOMAN ADMITS PART IN INVALID'S AUTO SLAYING

Oneonta, N. Y., June 23.—[U. P.]—Mrs. Martha Clift, 28, signed a confession today, District Attorney Donald Grant said, admitting she drove an automobile over the prostrate form of a 49 year old semi-invalid—for payment of $200 by Mrs. Eva Coo, 45.

Before the victim, Harry Wright, was run over several times, according to the alleged confession, Mrs. Coo struck Wright on the head twice with a mallet.

The slaying occurred Thursday night, June 14, on lonely Crumhold mountain near here. The motive, Grant said, was several thousand dollars insurance on Wright's life, of which Mrs. Coo was said to be beneficiary.

Winston-Salem, N. C., June 23.—[U. P.]—The fight of 3 year old Anne Cannon Reynolds II. for half of the $25,000,000 estate of her father, the late Zachary Smith Reynolds, will begin here Monday.

Superior Court Judge Felix E. Ulley will hear a motion to set aside a judgment signed in August, 1931, which gave the child a $500,000 trust fund and barred her from seeking a share in her father's estate, part of the enormous Reynolds cigaret fortune.

Victory for the plaintif would mean that Anne Cannon Reynolds may share and share alike with Zachary Smith Reynolds Jr., 16 month old son of Libby Holman Reynolds, the tobacco scion's second wife and Broadway actress.

In November, 1931, Anne Cannon Reynolds divorced Smith Reynolds and a few days later Reynolds married Libby Holman. Reynolds was shot to death at his estate near here in July, 1932.

BARUCH URGES U. S. THUMB ON INDUSTRY IN WAR

Conflict's Aftermath Is Called Lesson.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—A dictatorship over the nation's entire industrial man power and industries in wartime and the elimination of all profit from war through stringent federal control were advocated today by Bernard M. Baruch, international financier and chairman of the war industries board during the world war.

In an address before the army industrial college, Baruch pictured the world war and its destructive economic aftermath as a horrible object lesson. He advocated complete national control of all industry in the event of another war.

Baruch said virtual conscription of the nation's resources as well as its citizenship was vitally essential to win a war and to prevent a repetition of the "prostrating economic and social aftermath of the war."

Cites War's Aftermath.

"Today we are suffering from the economic, social, and moral aftermath of the war," Baruch said. "We try to pay for it and get rid of it, but, after 16 years, we are just seeing our way out. It is our purpose and our duty to see that it does not happen again.

"Society demands the elimination of profiteering and, above all, the profit incentives of war," he continued, arguing that all industry during wartime should be sharply limited to a bare margin above actual manufacturing cost.

Outlining his formula for eradicating war profits, Baruch said:

"It means the recapture of all profits, in bulk, made by all industries engaged in war supplies above a small and reasonable return on the investment. This recapture can only be done through control of prices and increased taxes in wartime."

Hits at High Profits.

Profits in all industry, Baruch added, must bear comparison with sacrifices made by men in the field. By eliminating huge profits, he continued, it would not only meet requirements of social justice but prevent "vast and unnecessary expansions that played so large a part in bringing about our present post-war confusion."

"I want to put a ceiling over prices and profits," Baruch said, "above which no prices and profits may go. Thereafter, a tax program must be enacted that will take away, in totality, the spread between selling prices and costs plus a reasonable return. There will then be far less profit in war than in peace.

"By parallel planning, there must also be control over all prices, goods, foods, rents, wages, services; in short, of all activities that yield a profit. All must be denied the right to enjoy a joy ride at the expense of the nation. Control of dollars must be made applicable to the entire citizenship regardless of their classifications."

G. O. P.-DEMOCRATIC FUSION TICKET RULED OUT IN MINNESOTA

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—(AP)—Any attempt at fusion of Republicans and Democrats on the general election ballot would be illegal, Atty. Gen. Harry H. Peterson ruled today.

The attorney general, who handed down an opinion because of interest with which possible fusion is being discussed in the Republican and Democratic parties, held that state statutes bar the way.

Candidates may file by petition in the general election, however, either as an independent or file any party not now represented on the ballot, he said.

Although there has been talk of fusion by the two parties to run a combined candidate against the Farmer-Labor chieftain, Gov. Floyd B. Olson, neither the Democratic nominee, John E. Regan of Mankato, nor the Republican nominee, Martin A. Nelson of Austin, have signified any intention of withdrawing. The candidates were nominated in a state primary Monday.

FOUR ROBBERS GET $395 LOOT AT ICE CONCERN

Fred Spurwold, 5653 North Talman avenue, manager of the Jefferson Ice company, 2320 North Damen avenue, and eight drivers employed by the concern were herded into the plant from the loading platform early yesterday morning by four bandits who took $85 from the safe and $310 from John Kauer, 1437 North Mansfield avenue, business agent of local 702 of the ice wagon drivers' union. Kauer had collected dues from other members of the union and when the bandits entered he tossed the fund behind a cake of ice. One of the bandits, however, saw it.

CONGRESS VOTES MEMBERS RIGHT TO U. S. LOANS

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—In a six line amendment to the housing bill, congress voted itself the right, hitherto denied, to borrow money from the Home Owners Loan corporation and various farm loan agencies.

This proposal originally was killed when it appeared as a separate bill. The amendment changes an act enacted this year to enable members of congress to receive government benefit payments for crop reduction. It nullified provisions of the criminal code which subjected members of congress to a $3,000 fine if they entered into contracts with the government.

The result of the amendment would be to allow members who wish to claim they are in distress and cannot pay the mortgages on their homes to obtain loans from the Home Owners' Loan corporation. Similarly members now may borrow under the several farm relief acts.

PWA MEN FORCED TO PAY FOR JOBS, G. O. P. CHARGES

Ask Ickes to Sift Farmer, Labor Activity.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 23.—(AP)—Charging that men employed on federal public work projects "have been forced to contribute to the Farmer-Labor association," Republican leaders today requested Secretary Harold L. Ickes, Public Works administrator, to investigate the handling of federal funds in Minnesota.

At the same time Ward F. Senn, chairman of the Hennepin county [Minneapolis] Republican committee, demanded that Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Labor, submit to the taxpayers of Minnesota "a detailed statement" covering the expenditure of $24,000,000 in federal funds which, G. O. P. leaders claim, passed through the governor's hands.

Photostatic Copy of Letter.

The request for an investigation by Washington officials came as the result of charges that men hired for conservation work in Minnesota had been working for the Farmer-Labor party. The Republican leaders sent Secretary Ickes a photostatic copy of a letter sent to all rangers by Grover Conzet, a copy of a statement by the state conservation commissioner and newspaper clippings on the case.

"We feel that the letter and statements were an admission that the practice was going on," Senn said, in a communication to the Public Works administrator.

"It is common knowledge and admitted fact, that nobody could get a job unless he or she was a member of the Farmer-Labor association.

Must Be Farmer-Laborite.

"The Farmer-Labor chairmen have a definite rule that they will not approve anybody unless they are members of the Farmer-Labor association. We have reliable reports from many sections of the state that men working on federal financed projects were forced to contribute to the association."

Republican leaders, through Senn, proposed that instead of having Gov. Olson handling federal projects and funds under the plan calling for approval by county Farmer-Labor chairmen, that the responsibility be turned over to "a disinterested, nonpolitical group."

CONGRESS BALKS AT ALL BILLS TO REFORM ITSELF

Beats Moves to Cut Out Perquisites.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—The 73d congress which passed so many bills intended to reform the country failed—in the same old way common to antecedent congresses—to reform itself.

The perquisites of dead congressmen, it is true, were curtailed. Congressional committees appointed to honor the dead were cut down in number. But live senators and representatives showed the usual firmness when it came to taking away their privileges.

Still Draw Travel Allowance.

Members of congress still draw a travel allowance of 15 cents a mile from and to their homes when attending a session or when on official business. It makes no difference that the member may have established a home in Washington. Even though he stays in the capital, he gets his allowance based on the distance to his political residence.

The first special session of the 73d congress, for example, convened only five days after the adjournment of the 72d congress. Some senators and representatives living near by made hasty trips to their homes, but a great number remained in Washington. Despite this fact, the report of the secretary of the senate shows that $34,433 was paid out in senators' mileage allowances.

Numerous attempts were made to divorce lawmaking from politics but each attempt met with defeat. Senator George W. Norris [Rad. Rep., Neb.] persuaded the senate to adopt an amendment removing partisan politics from appointments to the home owners' loan corporation, but the provision was stricken out in the house.

Measure Is Shelved.

Senators Norris, Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], and James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.] introduced resolutions aimed at keeping politics out of congress and congress out of politics, and to prohibit party office holders from holding government office and lobbying around the departments. But the measures were quietly shoved into committee and shelved.

HELD FOR SMASHING WINDOW.

William Hynes, 40 years old, 7409 West 57th street, was held by Chicago Lawn police yesterday on a charge of smashing a window in a grocery at 2627 West 57th street and stealing several cans of beans while intoxicated.

"Newspapers are the sentinels of the liberties of our country."—Benjamin Bush.

TOWARD GREATER POVERTY.

Statement made by L. A. Hawkins, executive engineer of the research laboratory of the General Electric company, Sept. 26, 1933:

Labor has been taken away from human beings and given to machines to do. That change is an important new factor in the depression of the last four years, but we are not going back to muscles instead of machines. The human race never has known happier times than in Athens of old, when slaves did all the work. Now we of today must learn how to use our slaves—the machines.

Mr. Hawkins praised President Roosevelt for trying to apply in economics the method which has brought the great achievements of modern science—experiment. He said further:

Three-quarters of a century ago 80 per cent of all labor was required to produce the necessities of life. Now 33 per cent of labor is sufficient to produce all the necessities. So it came about that now a great share of labor is devoted to nonessential industries. Hence the position of a greater fraction of labor now is more precarious. In the old days labor cost was the large item in production and expense could be reduced by reducing production. But today the large item is interest on investment. That item cannot be reduced by decreasing production. So now capital, just the same as labor, is in a more precarious position as a result of the development of automatic machinery. But we are not going to reverse the industrial process. We are not going back to hewing our own wood. We electrical engineers have been a chief factor in taking over work from human beings. Electron tubes are going to take over still more work. Where simple visual or auditory stimuli are involved tasks are better done by electron tubes than by human beings. They have speed and sensitivity that human operators cannot approach. We must learn to use our slaves, the machines. We must iron out the hills and valleys of prosperity and depression. And economics, still in great confusion, must acquire the greater certainty of science. Our trouble has been that economics has not yet learned to use the experimental method. But at last we are making a beginning in experiment in political economy. The word "experiment" is the keynote of the Roosevelt administration.

The foregoing statement has been forwarded to us by Mr. William E. Sweet, former governor of Colorado and now a functionary of the National Recovery administration. He asks that we place it at the head of one of our editorial columns and comment on it. This we are delighted to do.

The points made by Mr. Hawkins are not novel. They constituted the background of the case made by the technocrats a year or two ago.

It is true, of course, that the rapid introduction of labor saving machinery has created problems of technological unemployment, but the menace has been greatly exaggerated, as numerous painstaking studies have shown. Mr. Hawkins himself points to the record of increased productivity over a period of seventy-five years. Over that period the standard of living rose with few interruptions and at the end of it was immensely higher than at the beginning. Machines have not been a menace; why go in terror of them?

We have no quarrel with Mr. Hawkins when he argues for the experimental method. We do quarrel with those like Mr. Sweet who believe that the NRA and all the other New Deal experiments in restriction of output are in any sense hopeful. The astounding progress of the last seventy-five years may be attributed in large part precisely to the fact that there were few such restrictions. Mr. Sweet may regard a reversion to medieval economic organization as a hopeful experiment in government and economics, but it is difficult to believe that any one with any sense of history can follow him.

In its own experience THE TRIBUNE can refute the medievalists, and for purposes of comparison we do not have to go back to the civil war. Twenty years ago THE TRIBUNE was published in only three editions daily. Today it is published in seven. In the intervening years the printing processes have been greatly improved, and each improvement has been accompanied by additional employment. The greater use of color in the run of the paper was one such improvement. Color rotogravure was another. Rotogravure itself was still another among many. The recent introduction of air conditioning in Tribune Tower is still another evidence of the march of progress which the experimenters of the New Deal are seeking in one way or another to curb. They talk about "ironing out the hills and valleys of prosperity and depression," but in practice they propose to lop off the hills, leaving only the dead level of the valleys of depression. There is no hope in that kind of experiment.

In the decade between 1923 and 1933 the number of employes on THE TRIBUNE increased by 20 per cent. The pay roll increased by 16 per cent. The daily circulation increased by 39 per cent. The year 1933 was a year of extreme depression. In face of that record can Mr. Sweet seriously expect this newspaper to put much faith in his prophet of doom or the nostrum of regulation and restriction which he recommends?

THE AMERICA'S CUP RACE.

Any international contest is assured of a public interest out of proportion to its importance as an event in sport, and no contest borrows so much from national pride to incite the interest of the public as a race for the America's cup. Individuals who don't know a buntline from a bowsprit and never had a breath of salt air will follow the developments of the coming race with all the eagerness of a yachtsman. Most American youths know the story of the first race for the cup and remember with appropriate patriotic emotion how Queen Victoria, hearing of the victory of the American yacht, asked, "What is the second yacht?" and was told "There is no second."

The cup race in fact is the greatest of our international sporting contests, but it has become a peculiar affair. The first race was in 1851, when the cup was won in English waters and brought to America, where it has remained. The winner, which gave her name to the famous trophy, crossed the Atlantic under her own sail, and that has been a condition imposed on the challenger since that day. This gave an increasing advantage to the defender which came more and more to be designed to meet the conditions to be expected in our waters. America was a normal yacht and was used for many years as such. But as time passed both contestants came to be designed for this race alone and some were junked when it was over. They became mere racing machines and at least one race was called off because the contestants were too fragile to encounter the violence of the weather. Probably this experience, widely commented on, brought a reaction in favor of more normal design, but it did not go far. Rules were changed in order to remove some of the disadvantages complained of by the British yachtsmen and when Mr. Vanderbilt put machinery for controling the sails in the hold of his racer the device was vigorously protested and has been ruled out.

The result is that, although a contender is not allowed to build the fastest sailing machine he can devise, he is still free to build one which is nothing but a racing machine and is well-nigh, if not wholly, worthless after this contest is over. This peculiar development has drawn attention and popular approval to another international contest, the race of the Canadian and Gloucester fishermen. This contest is restricted to boats actually employed on the Grand Banks as commercial fishing craft. It is cynically remarked that rivalry in this now famous contest has had some influence on the designs of the craft expecting to compete, but, even if this is true, the change is not great enough to prevent the contenders from being used in their ordinary vocation. Both the undefeated Blue Nose and her rival, Thebaud, both seen at the Fair last year, are practical fishermen still engaged in commercial fishing and battling the storms of the open Atlantic. In fact, the fishermen's race has taken a good deal of the bloom off the America's cup race in spite of the latter's historic prestige. Whether the experiments in design and equipment and the experience gained in the many contests have added anything of substantial advantage to marine design or the art of sailing we leave for experts to testify. To a landlubber it must seem improbable, but the repeated efforts to take the cup back to England will always hold the keen interest of yachtsmen and landsmen in both countries. The yachts contesting may be freaks, but the contest is between English and American ingenuity and skill and the cup race still remains the chief international contest in the sport of the two chief sporting peoples.

NO BARS AT THE FAIR.

The determination of the A Century of Progress management to adhere to its rule against bars at the Fair is sound. The protesting concessionaires were wholly in the wrong. They knew the rule when they signed their contracts. Their argument that the presence of bars will make for sobriety because people who drink standing will drink less is patent nonsense. The real purpose of the concessionaires is to sell more liquor and to sell it at less cost to themselves for service. They are justified, of course, in seeking to reduce their costs and increase their profits, but they are not justified in seeking to do so at the expense of order and decency within the Fair grounds.

Regardless of the presence or absence of bars, 99.9 per cent of those who attend the Fair will behave themselves. The remaining one-tenth of 1 per cent will be a problem in any event, but they will constitute a much greater problem and a much more serious nuisance if there are bars where the tanking up process can be completed in the shortest possible time.

TRAILING THE AWAKENING SONG.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

Noble Rollin, British naturalist of Glanton, Northumberland, has set for himself the engaging task of following the dawn around the world and registering, as he passes, the songs of birds that greet the sun. We precede him in thought and prepare for him a warning of what he will hear, or at least of one great and continuous note that will assail his ears in almost any reasonably temperate clime on either side of the world or in any of its quarters.

What he will hear almost continuously at the breaking of dawn anywhere, wherever he halts to listen and identify and record, and from dawn to dark, will be the chatter and wrangle of myriad sparrows—English sparrows—that his native land has given the world and that the world might well wish England had kept at home. For just as the sun does not set on the British flag, neither does it set on the English sparrow.

Even so, the task to which Mr. Rollin will apply himself will be entertaining as he tries to separate the tones of beauty from the chaff of chatter of excited English sparrows on dawn frontiers the world around.

We commend to his attention a dawn in Missouri, or any other American state that has climate attractive to bird life. We would like for him to hear some of the beauties of sound that raise themselves above the hullabaloo, even in our cities, but better in our suburban places and better still out where nature communes with the dawn without distraction other than the accepted interference by the sparrows. We would have him hear the long and varied repertory of the mocking bird and his clownish, though capable, understudy, the catbird; our thrushes and thrashers, the doves and even the raucous and quarrelsome jays. He must hear the heartening call of the bobwhite quail on a frosty morning to appreciate the coming of a brand new day; and that of the field lark, which not only greets the day but sings to it by the hour.

We have birds and the songs of birds too numerous to mention even if we knew them all or could identify their songs. So we must believe that Mr. Rollin, enraptured by the notes of the morning, might very easily forgive us our sparrows. We would do away with them, if we could, and give other bird life peace and longer life, but we can't. Nor, in cities, can we sleep late of mornings.

DRIFT OR MASTERY?

BY DR. FRANK A. FETTER.

[Emeritus Professor of Economics, Princeton University.]

Today in Washington, as elsewhere, the minor socialites of a particular brand of the New Deal declare that the abuses of capitalism could not have been avoided—they were a natural and inevitable development; neither can they now be corrected except by some vague scheme of national planning which can be conceived only by the trustful brains of the brain trusters. So far as thus revealed this version of the New Deal is mostly the old deal of special privileges to some classes at the expense of the rest of us. Their brilliant proposal is to create prosperity by replacing an economics of production and plenty with an economics of willful restriction and scarcity. To those of us brought up in the liberal and progressive political economy of the past generation this all seems much like what Alice saw through a looking glass.

There are many signs that if the present so-called capitalistic system breaks down it is destined to be replaced, not by democratic socialism, whether mild or radical, but by an autocratic oligarchy of big business. Under the name of fascism such a system is already far developed in Italy, Germany, and Bulgaria, and is beginning to appear in many lands. A generation ago Jack London, proudly beloved by his socialist comrades, shocked them greatly with his romance of "The Iron Heel," in which he pictured a tyranny of organized industrial plutocracy lasting for many centuries. He suggested that this, rather than the quick and easy triumph of social democracy, was to be the next stage in political change. That was most unorthodox socialism, yet Jack London's fiction seems today in several countries to be a prophecy in process of fulfilment. We have had a touch of it here in recent legislation to legalize monopoly and deprive the public of the protection of the anti-trust laws. So-called self-government of industry, model of 1933, is but a deceptive term for monopolistic price fixing. This policy has been the most disappointing and disastrous feature in the recovery program. It advanced industrial prices faster than wages and consumers' demand. It thus retarded rather than expedited recovery. It is not industrial self-government but government of the nation of consumers by the dominant industrial producers. Allowed to develop to its logical conclusion, it would put an end to economic freedom and with that to political and spiritual freedom as well. The worse enemies of capitalism are not the socialists, but greedy capitalists. The present enormous structure of corporations, built up into combinations, trusts, mergers, holding companies, and empires of Insull, is not capitalism in the original and true sense of a system of private property and individual enterprise. It is corporationism, which is undermining and threatens to overwhelm the whole individualist capitalist system.

A wise observer just returned from wide travels, foreign and domestic, reports a general lack of enthusiasm for democracy among the youth of all countries, and even in the colleges of England and the United States he found much cynicism concerning democratic institutions. That liberal democracy which appeared in the eighteenth century and was vigorously flowering in the nineteenth century seems to be weakening and to be losing the faith of the masses thus early in this twentieth century.

It could not well be otherwise when the giant growth of corporations is allowed to go on unhindered and even fostered by our public policy. Modern democracy was built on the economic foundations of a rather simple capitalism—a system of widely [illegible] private property, of individual enter[illegible] of decentralized industry. So far in [illegible] history, democracy never has been [illegible]ess apart from a pretty widely di[illegible]al private property and managem[illegible] to function, democracy does not r[illegible] equality and diffusion of property, [illegible]re is a limit of toleration beyond w[illegible] survive when small property and th[illegible] classes come under the dominance of hi[illegible]centrated wealth, monopoly, and special privilege. That is as much a fact of human nature as the timber line on the mountain side is a fact of physical nature. For more than a half century the growth of great industrial corporations and the concentration of a more or less irresponsible financial control have been steadily overshadowing and destroying our system of private property and individual enterprise. As the great estates destroyed Italy, so, unless our people will and choose otherwise, big business will destroy free America.

Can it be doubted that in the United States democratic institutions have been approaching the timber line and at some points have crossed it in recent years? If one hesitates to make such a statement at this time it is not because it is startling or radical but because it is becoming a self-evident truism. The recent most astounding political developments throughout the world force us to see that human nature among democratic peoples is not an inert and static element but is an unstable compound of powerful forces easily exploded. Even American democracy is still an experiment and never more than now has there been cause to fear for its future stability and permanence.

The world is young and science tells us that this globe will go on circling the sun and being warmed by its rays for billions of years to come. Presumably, too, human beings will be here for untold ages and will be making and remaking the forms of human society. Social institutions, like plants or physical structures, must grow from beneath upward, not start in the clouds and grow downward toward the earth. This, in short, is the philosophy of individualism in political and economic affairs. Rightly conceived individualism is the doctrine that human nature is the basic fact in social institutions. Individualism is not selfishness, greed, and conflict. In human nature is the strong instinct of self-preservation, to be sure, but there are also family affection, sociability, friendship, loyalty, sacrifice, and idealism. Individualism is the doctrine that government must be supported by the people, not the people by the government. It is the doctrine that an all-wise and beneficent government cannot magically create itself or be created out of foolish, selfish, and ignorant citizens. Socialism is the perpetual motion theory in politics. It hopes by rearranging the springs and wheels of government to make a machine that will generate in itself surplus energy, not merely apply and transmit what the citizens put into it.

Democracy and free individual enterprise, twin children of enlightenment and liberation, grew and developed through ceaseless struggles against feudal tyranny, status, and privilege out of the dark ages into modern liberalism. Freedom of conscience, thought, speech, teaching—these are the greatest cultural achievements of the last thousand years—greater by far than the physical triumphs of technology in the continuing industrial revolution of the last two centuries. Brave men in other lands, forced to choose between material ease and spiritual freedom, are at this moment living in exile or dying in martyrdom, repeating the immortal words of Patrick Henry, "Give me liberty or give me death." At the same time whole nations are being regimented under a fanatical philosophy of national egotism and an educational policy of goose step unmatched in the annals of human society. It is a frightful spectacle. Can such things conceivably happen in America? What can prevent? Nothing but our scale of human values; nothing but the American social philosophy, the most precious heritage of our racial and national experience.

Education [illegible] as an accumulation of knowledge can [illegible] in this emergency. Science and knowledge tend to outstrip too far the faith of men in the purposes of life. Without a guiding social philosophy the factual education represented by many a college diploma is a boat without a rudder. Without it we drift, "as idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean." But with it "man is man and master of his fate." Drift or mastery? This is the [illegible] question for the individual graduate, [illegible], and for the nation, at this as in every [illegible] in human history.

WHY WORRY?

CERTAIN persons worry subconsciously, some worry consciously [and are proud of it], others worry obviously, and still others vociferously. The quiet worrier who nurses real or imaginary trouble may lay and frequently does lay a foundation for disease of severe character. Few persons are able to adopt a philosophy of life that eliminates worry. Too often there is a tendency on retiring at night to think over every act and every word of the day, not realizing that the day is past, that it is water over the dam, and that the night is made for rest in preparation for another day. The mind is unusually alert following restful sleep, but what mind can meet the problems of a new day if the body has spent a restless, tossing, worrying night? There is an old saying, "Put off thy cares with thy clothes; so shalt thy rest strengthen thy labor, and thy labors sweeten thy rest."

Anxiety is a killer of human efficiency. It puts the nervous system on edge and prevents clear thinking. There are, of course, many situations where anxiety cannot be avoided, but a ceaseless round of worry rarely helps the individual to find a way out of a perplexing situation. Physical rest may mean little unless it is accompanied by mental rest. To really rest one must rest in body, mind, and soul, and unhappiness and ill health frequently result because one or more of these phases is lacking.

Body rest should mean mind rest. A serious problem for which there seems to be no solution may after an hour's nap become simple and clear. The vicious cycle of worry sometimes leads to a lowering of body and nervous resistance to a point that approaches mental instability. An exciting evening where the individual may sparkle with wit and vivacity may leave that person poorly prepared for restful sleep. It takes time for a highly emotional nervous system to quiet down. We must not cheat the old adage "eight hours for work, eight hours for play and recreation, and eight hours for sleep." Booth Tarkington, in his "The Hopeful Pessimist," has the patient who has suffered a physical and nervous breakdown say to his family doctor, "I have been in a hurry for twenty-five years," to which the doctor replies in a kindly vein, "Twenty-five years is too long for a man to be in a hurry."

That great Philadelphia physician, novelist, and poet, S. Weir Mitchell, would take the worrying type of business man and the nervous, jittery, scolding woman, and, in many instances, succeed in restoring tired, frazzled nerves to normal stability. He did this by means of rest, proper food, congenial surroundings, and ofttimes with nothing but a change of scene or of occupation. Many a woman with three or four children on her hands and all the duties of the household is so fatigued at the end of the day that she is ready to scream. This tired, worrying sort may sometimes be transformed into an optimistic, happy individual through a readjustment of household routine following a week or more of complete rest from home and family.

Perhaps worry is not the essential cause of high blood pressure. It is at least a significant factor. Poise is observed only in those with adequate body and nervous resistance. If worry accomplishes nothing, why worry?

TUBERCULAR GLANDS.

Mrs. R. E. R. writes:

1. What causes tubercular glands?
2. Is there a cure and what is the best treatment?
3. Can one be an arrested case of consumption and yet have tubercular glands?

REPLY.

1. Infection with tubercle bacilli through drinking raw milk from tuberculous cows, or through infected tonsils, or infection elsewhere.
2. Treatment by exposure to sunlight or lamplight cures most cases in which suppuration has not taken place. The suppurating cases are apt to need operation. The body must be built up by right living in either case. The cause should be found and removed if possible.
3. Yes. The glands may be diseased even though the lungs are healthy or in reasonably good condition.

SLEEP REQUIREMENTS.

Mrs. K. G. W. writes: Why is it that I require so much sleep? I am 25 years old and doing housework from seven to seven. My average sleep is from eight to nine hours every night. However, I can take a nap some afternoons and sleep three hours more. Occasionally I get only six hours at night, but will sleep three hours that afternoon in preparation for the evening. I have a score of friends who are less healthy than I who require only six or seven hours' sleep and they always seem to have lots of pep.

REPLY.

People vary in their sleep requirements. You are on safer grounds than your friends who sleep but six hours nightly. I expect you will see them go on the rocks if they continue as they now do.

SHANGHAI. — The Sino-Japanese battle for the railways of Manchuria, which was largely responsible for Japan's occupation of China's northeastern provinces in 1931, is still in progress. But the struggle has now broadened and is continued by the Japanese and Red Russians.

For several years prior to the Mukden incident, Sept. 18, 1931, the Chinese, under old Marshal Chang Tso-lin and his son, Chang Hsueh-liang, strove to break the Japanese monopoly in south Manchuria. The battle was for the 660 mile South Manchuria railway [S. M. R.], half of which is owned by the imperial Japanese government.

In one decade the Chinese built about 1,800 miles of new roads, some of which they financed with loans obtained from the S. M. R. The Japanese were willing to help the Chinese finance new lines to compete with the Russian owned Chinese Eastern railway, which crosses north Manchuria. But the Chinese suddenly linked up various branches and then began construction of a new harbor at Hulutao on the gulf of Liaotung, which threatened to become a competitor of the Japanese port of Dairen on the southern tip of the Liaotung peninsula.

Although still unfinished, the harbor was dedicated early in 1930 and ocean going ships had just begun to call for cargoes of soy beans, chief Manchurian crop, when the Japanese put a stop to it by occupying Manchuria. Since that time the new Chinese railways in Manchuria have been amalgamated with the Japanese S. M. R. line, expanding that system to more than 2,500 miles, and in addition the Japanese army has constructed more than 500 miles of new lines in the vicinity of the soviet border, so that the Japanese railway system in Manchuria today probably exceeds 3,000 miles.

The new battle of railways between Japan and the soviets which began immediately following the Japanese occupation of Manchuria, is concentrated along the extensive border between the Japanese protected state of Manchukuo and soviet controled Siberia. The Japanese, on their side of the line, have two objects in view, the ham-stringing of the soviet controled Chinese Eastern lines and to provide railway communication with the Siberian border for possible military activities.

The Russians have a single objective, the double tracking of the Trans-Siberian to facilitate the transport of armies and war materials to the far eastern front in the event of war with Japan. The Russians are working night and day double tracking their main line from Urusha to Bochkareva, the junction point for Blagoveschensk on the Amur. In addition the Russians are building another entirely new line, a reserve route, which extends around the northern shore of Lake Baikal and thence eastward to the Amur. The Russians also are building a further line eastward from Irkutsk, the destination of which is not disclosed.

Aside from the railway which the Japanese are driving to Taheiho, opposite the Russian terminal at Blagoveschensk, the Japanese are building still another which will link up their new port of Rashin on the northeastern Corean coast with Sansing on the lower Sungari river. This will enable the transport of troops into the hinterland of the soviet port of Vladivostok and will cut off Vladivostok from the products of eastern Kirin province. The Japanese are building another line to connect Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo directly with Tsitsihar, the object being to send troops to the west of Harbin and thence to the border regions. A still further extension from Solun to Hailar and Manchuli has a similar objective. Finally, the Japanese army is pushing through another line in Jehol province which will facilitate troop transport westward along the great wall into Chahar province and thence into inner Mongolia, the hope being to outflank the soviet position in outer Mongolia. The South Manchuria line already has been double-tracked from Dairen to Hsinking.

PETTY RACKETEERS.

Chicago, June 14.—[Friend of the People.]—Will some one please tell me who is in command of the New City police district, the police themselves or the panhandlers and the lowly members of the roving bottle squads who infest this district? I am becoming so exasperated at the utter indifference shown toward the lowly members of this repugnant class of vagrants and pests, who approach and solicit 3 cents, 5 cents, or most often, "can you let me have 7 cents for carfare?" This situation is highly intolerable and can't go on forever without arousing the indignation of all decent citizens of this section.

A. N.

Please be advised that numerous persons have been arrested for this offense and during the last week members of this command brought in seventeen for intoxication and begging on the street. This complaint has been brought to the attention of every member of this command, with instructions to keep bringing them in and vigorously prosecute them in court.

JAMES P. ALLMAN.
Commissioner of Police.

EXECUTING DEED.

Chicago, June 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a wife has her property [real estate—land] in her name, and she wants to deed it over to her husband, is it necessary for her husband to sign her deed, in order to make it legal?

J. M.

Even after the transaction the signature of both parties would be necessary in order to convey title clear of dower and homestead. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing what object you expect to accomplish.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DISTRIBUTION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, June 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died a year ago, leaving a will which has been probated. I asked the lawyer regarding his fee and he stated [1] "he expected the court to allow him about $400 and he would double that." The estate only amounts to about $6,500 or $7,000 and is spent three ways [two minor children and two adults]. The bills are all paid and [2] only one trip to court was necessary. 3. Is he allowed to do this? 4. There has been no expense connected with the proceedings, not even carfare.

R. D.

1. If he means that he expects to collect more than the court allows we see no basis for such a claim.
2. No probate can be completed with only one hearing.
3. See 1.
4. We are confident that you are mistaken on this point also.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROPERTY PURCHASE.

Chicago, June 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A real estate man wants to sell me a cottage. There is a judgment against the place and a mortgage of $2,500. Foreclosure suit was started last November. Taxes have not been paid for three years. The party formerly owning same went through bankruptcy about six months ago and now the real estate man says he will take care of all this and give me Torrens title to the cottage. Would I have a clear title and would I be liable for any of these debts?

J. F. F.

If the Torrens certificate contains no reference to outstanding liens or encumbrances, this means that the title is clear, except that you should secure a tax search. If the broker is representing any adverse interest we advise you to be independently represented in order to protect yourself against being overreached in the tax settlement, etc.

FROM A FARMER.

Milledgeville, Ill., June 20.—Your editorial in Sunday's TRIBUNE stating that the government forced the farmer to curtail his wheat production is a misstatement of facts, as the complete program was optional. THE TRIBUNE as a newspaper is in a class by itself when it comes to quality of makeup and news service, but this continual harangue against the AAA by your trained reporters, editorials, and Mr. Orr's cartoons is having a cheapening effect. Various of your articles written for city consumption by prejudiced reporters certainly give us farmers a laugh. They show about as much knowledge of the farmers' actual condition and problems as a jack rabbit would know about navigating State street.

It takes several years to develop Hi-bred seed corn, and various farmers are exploiting Secretary Wallace's corn cross-breeding results. In fact, I tried the plan in a small way about twelve years ago, after reading the results of these experiments in Wallace's Farmer. This spring we planted four bushels of this Hi-bred corn contracted for last fall from a firm at Galva, Ill.

It is natural for city people to want cheap food, cheap raw material and quantity production for processors and commission merchants, but low priced grain and meats never put the farmer where he could buy the results of city labor.

The $11,000,000,000 loaned Europe during the war was possibly excusable, but the additional 5 to 8 billion dollars of private money loaned during 1925 simply sold out the producers' market that much further and was not excusable.

Cancellation of all foreign obligations on some basis and taking out of production the forty million additional acres put under cultivation during the war will help the farmers, and as all new wealth comes from the soil, giving the farmer cost of production plus a profit from his cultivated acres is the only thing that will get this country back to normal conditions.

VERNON TODD.

RESPECT FOR THOSE ENTITLED TO IT.

Chicago, June 19.—It seems to me that the World's Fair managers, the Black Horse troop, and others who turn out in style to meet and honor important visitors to the Fair might save themselves much expenditure of time, energy, and money if, in the future, they met only those who honor us as a country. Insignificant little Finland is the only European country which respects us as a nation and its own financial integrity sufficiently to pay its debt to us in full. Why not welcome important Finns visiting us this year gladly and enthusiastically, but let visitors from repudiating countries come and go in well deserved obscurity without official notice?

PAVING INSPECTION.

Chicago, June 15.—Does Chicago have such a thing as paving inspectors, in fact? The new asphalt paving under the State street viaduct at 63d street, has been down almost a week now, and is already full of waves which are rapidly being pounded into chuck holes.

FOREST PRESERVE COMPLAINTS.

Berwyn, Ill., June 19.—Saturday, June 16, I went out to Maple lake in a county forest preserve with my family, taking the canoe along which we had used in the river several times. We thought we could use it in Maple lake. To our surprise, as we stopped, a man pulled up in a car and told us we were not allowed to use our boat there. As there were no boats on the lake at the time we did not question him, but stayed off.

As we left we saw a boat on the lake, so I started wondering. I walked to the beach and there were sixteen boats for rent at 50 cents per hour, with a 50 cent deposit. Unless I am mistaken the very same man was sitting in the stand where the boats were rented.

This water is free to swim in, free to fish in, but it seems because some man is renting boats for 50 cents an hour it is not free to boat in. Are the waters of our forest preserves for the use of the public or for men like this to make use of?

I would like to know if there are any restrictions on using your own boat in Maple lake or in any other forest preserve where there is water?

A friend told me he had to pay 20 cents to fish in McGinnes slough in another forest preserve. Why is this?

EARL KELLINGTON.

Chicago, June 19.—This year as in previous years the forest preserves are crowded with many families on their Sunday outings. Each family has its favorite spot. In our case it is in the vicinity of 95th street and Keane avenue. Lo and behold, when we got there last Sunday we could not find a table in the vicinity, the result being that we had to sit on the ground. We had our aged grandmother with us, who could not possibly sit on the ground; thus we had to let her sit in the car. She could not get the fresh air and the sun for which we brought her.

Going home, we found to our surprise in the vicinity of Archer and Keane avenues hundreds of benches, many of which were vacant. We knew that they were moved from other places to this. Why? There is only one reason that we can see. There are about eight taverns in this vicinity, and they must have moved those tables to accommodate their patrons.

FLOWERS.

Chicago, June 14.—In behalf of the national flower and garden show committee of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, I desire to express our great and sincere thanks for the splendid page of flowers in color, published by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on Sunday, June 10.

We are sure this coöperation will prove an important contribution toward the success of our World's Fair exhibition and the purpose for which our committee is organized—the promotion of public interest in an appreciation of flowers and gardens.

AN EXTRAORDINARY DEFENSE.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 18.—I think you owe Gov. Olson of Minnesota an apology. He wanted to call out the Minnesota militia for the protection of citizens, but his suggestion was rejected by the employers' committee. Only after a terrible riot in which two special deputies were killed was the governor of Minnesota allowed to call out the National Guard.

SOUTHERN TIDE RISES AGAINST NEW DEAL DOLES

Handouts Destroy Morale, Gov. Talmadge Says.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rome, Ga., June 23.—[Special.]—The south, ancient stronghold of the Democrats, now is witnessing a rising tide of criticism of some of the Brain Trust operations under the New Deal.

Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia holds that the "bread and circuses" social welfare work of Nero, Caligula, and other Roman emperors was a cause of the decline and fall of Rome. The same policy of handouts under the brain trust, he argues, is a menace to the institutions of free born Americans.

Assails Encroachments.

Leading issue in the governorship primaries set for Sept. 12 is Gov. Talmadge's attacks upon government in business and the encroachments upon private enterprise by pay roll burocrats subsidized by federal tax money. The governor is seeking re-nomination, which is equivalent to reëlection. His foes are assailing him as a "wild man" while his friends argue that he is a conservative defending fundamentals of American government from approaches to a dictatorship.

President Roosevelt himself appears undiminished in popularity, but all through the south the Brain Trusters are being dusted off, especially in Georgia.

"If the government continues going into all kinds of business," said Gov. Talmadge the other day in his state house office at Atlanta, "the ultimate result will be chaos.

"Government Should Umpire."

"The government ought to assume the rôle of umpire and not take active part in the game. When the government goes into private business, it's just as if an umpire tried to tag a base runner with the ball as he slid for the plate.

"Government ought to get out of business; we all are faced with this problem; either have a rich government and poor people, or happy, prosperous people and a poor government. The only way to keep government honest is to keep it poor.

"A prosperous, happy people is one that is not highly taxed. Reduce the cost of government, chop down the pay rollers and the burocrats, and get the government out of business, and reduce the taxes.

"Dole Encourages Idleness."

"The federal dole and relief work are encouraging idleness at the expense of the taxpayers. The CWA gave so much easy money it drew labor from the farms. What is needed is aid to make men self-supporting and self-sustaining. But that isn't done by giving a man gratis more than he would make by working. It saps morale."

Gov. Talmadge has been applying his theories to the state government of Georgia. To put through his platform promises he used the big stick, the hammer and tongs, and the ax on the legislature. He had pledged himself to reduce the automobile tag tax, to reorganize the highway department, to reduce rates of public utilities and railroads intrastate, and to chop down the pay roll and taxes. Within a year he had put much of his stuff across. When the legislature bucked, he rode it cowboy fashion instead of employing gentle suasion and judicial argument and getting nowhere.

The legislature adjourned without having reduced the auto tax. One minute later Gov. Talmadge, by executive order, cut it to $3. The lowest previous rate was $11.25 for the smallest cars. He figured it saved car owners 3½ million dollars.

Defies Deficit.

Although facing a deficit, the governor, by executive proclamation, ordered a 20 per cent reduction in general taxes. To balance things up a bit the highway pay roll was cut and personnel was reduced. When the highway board refused to eliminate five road engineers in an economy move he fired two board members. When the ousted members tried by injunction to tie up two million dollars of funds the governor called out the militia and moved the money to the state treasury.

The Georgia Federation of Labor charged that the state public utility commission was neglecting its duty in the reduction of utility rates. Talmadge told the commission to reduce rates or resign. The commissioners said they were elected by the people and would break no orders. The governor ordered a hearing before himself and threw the five commissioners out on their ears. Appointing a new set, he told them to get busy or out they would go. The new boys issued orders reducing rates—telephone, railroad, telegraph—and at once there was litigation tying up most of the new rates in the courts.

The governor himself negotiated a new rate with the Georgia Power company, a 20 per cent cut. The Tennessee Valley Authority claims credit for this, but Atlantans chalk it up to Talmadge.

When three federal judges enjoined the utilities commission from reducing some of the rates, the governor criticized them for acting "contrary to the spirit of the law." He said his attitude was identical with that of President Roosevelt when governor of New York.

"We can't have business out of line," said the governor the other day. "Railroad rates are out of proportion to other industries and distribution is stifled.

"Some of those busted railroad presidents who have been appointed receivers haven't brains enough to be peanut sellers or news butchers on the trains they operate."

Judge Assails Talmadge.

Talmadge and two opponents for the governorship nomination now are rampaging over the state. One of them, Judge Claude C. Pittman, is accusing Gov. Talmadge of opposing the recovery program at almost every turn.

"He opposed the cotton plowup plan and the cotton acreage reduction plan," says Judge Pittman in his speeches. "He opposed the Bankhead bill; he vetoed the $75,000,000 public works bill, passed almost unanimously by the legislature, which would have provided federal funds for public works in our towns as in other states; he opposed CCC and CWA activities, the farm credit aid to distressed farmers. Finally he criticized the President's program in several speeches by saying the administration is "running a mad house at Washington.

"The things Talmadge is saying, however, seem to find echoes in other states in the south."

Governor Unafraid.

"Both my opponents won't carry six counties between them," remarked the governor the other day.

The movement for reduced railroad rates in the south travels hand in hand with dissatisfaction of the National Recovery administration and the Agricultural Adjustment administration.

Differentials in wages and freight rates form a subject of strong criticism. Traveling up through Houston, New Orleans, Jackson, Miss.; Birmingham, Montgomery, Atlanta, Knoxville, Nashville and Chattanooga, strong currents of complaint are found that under NRA codes northern industry has sought to take the south for a ride.

By making wage differentials too low, the criticism is, northern industry has sought to destroy some of the advantages held by the south in climate, geography and labor levels.

In the south it costs less to live, and southern industry has been based on a lower wage scale. Under the codes, a southern view is that the New Deal has sought to establish too close a parity of wage scales, north and south.

Codes Small Bother.

Not that the codes seem to bother employers much, except in some of the basic industries. For wherever one goes, main street echoes the same story that employers observe such portions of the codes as they deem satisfactory and ignore the rest, especially on wage rates.

This was chronicled on a southern tour last October. It now seems to be a generally established custom. When questioned about code observation, business men and others throughout this trip in almost every instance have declared codes have been violated wholesale, especially as to wages—for instance, in restaurants where waitresses now are charged for meals and uniforms, which previously, in many cases, went with the job.

Evade Code Price.

On prices, too, the codes are being honored in the breach. Automobile men say the code turn-in price for used cars is so low that sales of new cars suffered, so ways have been devised for traveling around this obstacle.

In New Orleans, under NRA, the cleaning of white suits went up to 40 cents from 25 cents. Customers adjusted themselves by wearing a linen suit twice as long as before, so the trade suffered. In retail stores the show windows exhibit garments with code prices. But the merchant often offers pre-NRA goods at prices away below the code, saying the garments are not subject to the fixed price.

The criticism as to wage differentials finds expression in the movement to get railroad rates reduced. A general southern viewpoint, at least so far as this tour has disclosed, is that through the codes the north seeks to put southern industry on the spot by trimming down the wage differential while at the same time railroad freight discriminations are favored which permit shipments of products to the south at cheaper rates than from the south to the north. This is being hammered upon in editorials, radio speeches, and in protests filed with the interstate commerce commission in Washington.

As to the AAA, it seems to be a general target in Dixie, especially on the 40 per cent cotton acreage reduction, which it is figured will take work from 30 per cent of the $50 to $100 a year cotton workers and pile up the rosters of the federal dole next winter.

Work was started on the project last summer. The present thoroughfare replaces a dirt road and runs through the Dan Ryan woods of the forest reserve, starting at Western avenue. Approximately 1,000 persons gathered to witness the ceremony.

CLEANING SHOP OWNER KILLS MAN TRYING TO ENTER

Leo G. Proch, 32 years old, 918 North Ashland avenue, married and a father, was shot and killed early today when, apparently intoxicated, he tried to enter a cleaning shop owned by Gus Zumaras at 855 North Ashland avenue. Proch and two other men smashed a front window of the shop, police said, and later tried to enter it. When Zumaras, who is 60 years old, threatened them with a gun, Proch's companions fled, but Proch continued his efforts to get in. As he crawled through the broken window Zumaras fired and struck him in the head.

STATE ORDERS 2 STORAGE HOUSES HERE CLOSED UP

The Illinois commerce commission has ordered two Chicago storage concerns to cease doing business for failure to answer notices to comply with the law governing the storage of personal property, according to an announcement made yesterday in Springfield by B. F. Lindheimer, commission chairman.

The concerns are those of George Edler, 5826 North Clark street, and Steve Harris, 5809 Division street. Mr. Edler asserted that he had not received any notice to close, but that he had complied with a notice to provide bonds.

The law, which the commerce commission has launched a campaign to enforce, provides that the operators of storage houses must make applications for licenses, furnish bonds, and provide adequate insurance. Notices have been sent, Mr. Lindheimer said, to owners of large storage houses throughout the state to comply with these provisions.

Police Investigate Death in Uptown District Hotel

SPARK THAT SET OFF WAR KINDLED 20 YEARS AGO

Thursday Is Anniversary of Sarajevo Affair.

BY GUY MURCHIE.

Twenty years ago this week two murders took place which have already had more far reaching consequences than any murder in the history of the world!

At half past eleven Sunday morning, June 28, 1914, an automobile rumbled slowly along Appel Quay in the town of Sarajevo, capital of the Province of Bosnia, Austria-Hungary. In the automobile, in full uniform with all his decorations, sat Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir presumptive to the throne of Austria-Hungary, bowing to the gay crowds of Serbs and other Slavs who had come into town for St. Vitus day, hoping to catch a glimpse of the man who might soon be their emperor.

Next to the 52 year old Archduke sat his stately wife in her wide hat and white summer dress, while on the seat facing them was Gen. Potiorek, the military governor of Bosnia, pointing out objects of interest along the way. All three were a little nervous. Barely half an hour before they had escaped a bomb hurled by an assassin named Chabrinovitch.

Missile Rolls Away.

The missile fortunately bounced off the car's folded hood before exploding. Gen. Potiorek and the Sarajevo chief of police thought it very unlikely that any second attempt at murder would be made the same day, but Count Harrach now stood on the left running board as a gesture of protection—just in case.

When the laboring automobile reached Franz Joseph street, the chauffeur started to make a right turn, following the mayor's car, which was leading the procession. But this was not the route advised by the chief of police, and Potiorek called out, "That's the wrong way! Drive straight down the Appel Quay!" The chauffeur put on his brakes, preparatory to backing up.

Precisely at this fatal halt, out from the crowd on the right hand side of the car stepped Gabriel Princip, a Serbian student holding a pistol. Taking careful aim at the archduke, the youth fired. He had evidently been told that the Austrian wore a bullet proof vest, for his bullet pierced the archduke's neck.

Second Shot Kills Duchess.

Again he fired—this time at Gen. Potiorek. But a bystander, yanking his arm, sent the bullet into the body of the screaming duchess.

Turning jerkily, the terrified chauffeur sped over the Latin bridge to the Konak—while in the back seat the archduke, blood spurting between his teeth, groaned to his limp wife, "Sophie, Sophie, do not die! Live for our children——"

Both of them were dead when the car got to the hospital.

Thus was fired the opening shot of the most devastating war this earth has ever known!

Brought to the police station without delay, the youthful murderer claimed to be an independent anarchist. "I am not sorry!" he cried. "I have cleared an evil out of the way. He [the archduke] is a German and an enemy of the south Slavs. He treated them badly. . . . Every day a high treason trial. Every day it went worse with our people. . . . For union [of the south Slavs] one must sacrifice many lives. . . . I am a nationalist. I aimed to free the Jugoslavs. For I am a Jugoslav. . . . As far as Serbia is concerned, it is her duty to free us, as Italy freed her Italians."

The Black Hand.

It soon became apparent that Princip was actually in close partnership with the bomb thrower, Chabrinovitch—and that both were members of a secret Serbian organization which called itself the Black Hand. This secret society was later found to have included many prominent Serbian officials, among them Dragutin Dimitrijevitch, who was advanced in June, 1913, to the position of chief of the intelligence department of the Serbian general staf.

The fact that the Serbian government officers knew of the Black Hand plot enough ahead of time to have put a stop to it had they wished is now pretty well established by the revelation of one of them, M. Ljuba Jovanovitch. Writes this Serbian: "At the outbreak of the world war I was minister of education in M. Nikola Pashitch's cabinet. . . . I do not remember whether it was at the end of May or the beginning of June, when one day M. Pashitch said to us that certain persons were making ready to go to Sarajevo to murder Franz Ferdinand, who was to go there to be solemnly received on St. Vitus day. . . ."

Serbs Feared Archduke.

For year it had been the common feeling among the Serbians that Archduke Ferdinand was their enemy—and perhaps he was. Certainly the archduke remains, both in life and in death, one of the most enigmatic of the world's political figures. His own fellow countrymen held contradictory views as to whether he was eager for a "preventive war" against Serbia, whether he was a pacifist, or whether he really hated the Magyars and favored the Serbs. From trustworthy sources he has been credited with having in mind a plan for giving to the Slav nationalities of his empire an equal political recognition with that enjoyed by the Germans in Austria and by the Magyars in Hungary.

This would have meant a "trialism" in place of the existing "dualism" [of Austria and Hungary]. However just this proposal may have sounded to Austrian ears, it could never have satisfied a hot headed nationalistic Serb who remembered the grand Serbian empire of Stephan Dushan in the fourteenth century, extending all the way from the Gulf of Corinth to the Danube.

Looked for Red Help.

Feeling their people had little to lose, and much to gain—with war the quickest way to gain it—the Black Hand plotters may reasonably have sentenced Ferdinand with full intent of precipitating an Austro-Serbian war. Backed also were they by the knowledge that Russia [with hungry eyes on the straits at Constantinople, and consequent jealousy of her rival Austro-German combination] would be more than anxious to help them.

At any rate—as the world will never forget—the archduke's death brought forth from Austria an ultimatum to the Serbian government so savagely exacting in its demands that no self-respecting nation could have thought of complying. Hastily Serbia sought advice from France and other sympathetic powers, and in less than two days sent back a reply to Austria. This answering message from Serbia was a masterpiece of propaganda to the world, perhaps even more so than was realized by the man who framed the original Austrian ultimatum and who described the reply as "the most brilliant example of diplomatic skill I have ever known."

Poor, Helpless Serbia.

Actually Serbia offered practically nothing to Austria, and even went so far as to order mobilization of the whole Serbian army before submitting her reply. Yet at the same time the reply itself was couched in such subtle language that it brought the sympathy of the whole world on "poor, helpless Serbia," a sizeable factor in the great events to come.

The succeeding links in the rapid chain of happenings which inaugurated the war hardly need to be repeated. Austria, refusing Serbia's proposition, marched to attack. Russia mobilized to rescue Serbia. Germany backed up her partner, Austria, by counter mobilization against Russia. Two days later came the fatal Franco-German declaration of war, France being committed as Russia's ally. And at midnight on the day following, Great Britain too had joined France, Belgium, Russia, and Serbia against the central powers.

Thus it came about that eight million young men marched to their last agony in the ugly wilderness of war—writhing, gasping, burning their boyish lungs with deadly gas—sinking into blood drenched mud to be sucked by rats and germs.

And there stands, today—as you read these words—a memorial tablet in Sarajevo. It is handsomely engraved, occupying a conspicuous position in the heart of the town. Its inscription reads: "At this historic spot Gabriel Princip proclaimed liberty on June 28, 1914."

MISSING GERMAN VET, CAPTURED 19 YRS. AGO BY RUSSIA, BACK HOME

ORTELSBURG, Germany, June 23.—(AP)—The return of Wilhelm Zapka, listed among the world war's missing for more than 19 years, was marked by happy festivities here today.

Balked in his attempt to escape from Russia, where he was taken prisoner in 1915, Zapka tried in vain for many years to communicate with the German foreign office. Letters he wrote home did not reach their destination.

Two weeks ago the announcement of his impending return was made. Village authorities planned a happy homecoming which culminated in a ceremony in which the burgomaster erased Zapka's name from the war memorial in the nearby village of Montwitz, in the presence of the whole community.

Zapka wept as he stood watching the scene with his 19-year-old son by his side. The son was six months old when his father left for the war. Zepka's wife and father had died during his long absence.

BLAME DIVORCE FOR SUICIDE OF K. B. MAC KENZIE

His divorce of less than two weeks ago was revealed at an inquest yesterday as the evident reason for the suicide of Kenneth B. MacKenzie, 35 years old, publisher and former University of Chicago full back. MacKenzie died in St. Luke's hospital Friday evening after hanging himself in his private office at the Welding Engineer Publishing company, 608 South Dearborn street.

In two minutes on the witness stand, Mrs. Evelyn Lyman MacKenzie, 26 years old, the former wife, told the coroner's jury of the shattered romance. Mrs. MacKenzie, who was represented by Attorney Daniel Costigan, lives at 7456 South Shore drive. She met MacKenzie in the summer of 1931 and they were married Dec. 6 the same year.

"Yesterday he called me four times and asked me to come back to him," she testified in answer to a question. "I couldn't because I wasn't willing." In reply to another question, she said quietly, "Yes, he said he didn't want to live without me." Mrs. Gertrude Hungerford MacKenzie, 7321 South Shore drive, owner of the publishing company, declared that her son had taken his divorce "terribly hard."

LOSS OF BLUE EAGLE MAY SHUT HOSIERY MILLS

Action of NRA Threat to Jobs of 653.

The company, through its counsel, J. Asbury Wright Jr., told NRA officials that unless the Blue Eagle were restored the plant would close Tuesday, eliminating work for its present 653 employés.

Lack of business was the reason advanced for the threatened shutdown. Since removal of the firm's Blue Eagle April 20 on the finding of the national labor board that it had violated collective bargaining provisions guaranteed labor the drop in orders was described as a virtual boycott.

Pennsylvania Cancels Order.

The state of Pennsylvania alone was reported to NRA as having canceled a relief order for 30,000 dozen pairs of hose which would have been paid for partially with federal relief money. Government funds may go only for Blue Eagle products and services.

The situation outlined by Wright immediately was taken under consideration by A. R. Glancy, an NRA administrator.

He said the mill had not been running full force lately but attributed it to a seasonal slump.

Simultaneously, it was reported in labor circles that Wright's latest reconciliation offer was not as acceptable as previous offers made by the Harriman mills.

Up to Johnson.

NRA's attitude was that it did not want to see 653 employés lose work if it could be avoided. The final decision was up to Hugh S. Johnson, who was confined in a hospital with an abscess.

Senator Wagner of New York, the labor board chairman, also has referred the case to Attorney General Cummings. Johnson said recently he awaited a ruling from Cummings.

The Harriman mills strike was called Oct. 26 after alleged dismissals of employés for union activities. Both the national and Atlanta labor regional boards attempted to settle the dispute. On Jan. 10 the labor board said the company had promised "to bargain collectively with the representatives chosen by its employés."

Scored by Labor Board.

Early in February the labor board in a statement said the company's rejection of an agreement with its employés "impugns the good faith of the company and is indicative of a desire to perpetuate discord, foster industrial unrest, and to obstruct the forces of recovery."

In March, the board said, "the Harriman Hosiery mills has infringed the rights of its employés to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, as recognized by section 7A of NIRA, by entering into negotiations with bad faith with the definite intention not to make any agreement with the representatives of its employés." The finding was transmitted to Johnson and Cummings and Johnson later ordered the Blue Eagle removed.

The company contends that of 350 employés who walked out, 149 have been reinstated while 80 other workers have been taken on the pay roll.

FARM OWNER WHERE STILL IS RAIDED PULLS OFFICERS FROM MUD

Evansville, Ind., June 23.—[Special.]—What appears to be an example of "turning the other cheek" is being told by two federal agents who raided the Dubois county farm of Ben Albert and Leo Hackman, near Huntingburg late Thursday, dumping 650 gallons of mash, 240 gallons of whisky and destroying a 125 gallon still. Then the storm broke. They found their car mired on the farm four miles from the paved highway. They asked aid of the men they had embarrassed a short time before and got it.

The brothers hitched a span of mules to the car and hauled it to the highway. Said one of the brothers in response to expressions of gratitude: "No trouble at all; we are glad to get rid of you."

SIX IN LANGER'S CABINET REVOLT; SUPPORT OLSON

Refuse to Recognize Governor's Rule.

Bismarck, N. D., June 23.—(AP)—Six members of Gov. William Langer's cabinet, all elective officials, revolted today and joined Lieut. Gov. Ole H. Olson, who claims he is legal governor.

The six refused to recognize Langer's authority because of his recent conviction, with four others, on charges of defrauding the United States through solicitation of federal employés for political contributions.

Action Marks Climax.

Today's action was a climax to a series of events which began last March when opponents of Langer engineered a split in the nonpartisan league, a Republican faction.

Langer's conviction a week ago was in the immediate foreground of today's developments, which came at the height of the campaign for the state primary election Wednesday, two days before the chief executive is scheduled to appear for sentence. He faces a sentence ranging up to two years imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both.

Term Him Disqualified.

In a statement announcing their position today the state officers said they believed Langer's conviction automatically disqualifies him from holding office.

The revolters, in addition to Lieutenant Governor Olson, are John Husby, commissioner of agriculture and labor; Robert Byrne, secretary of state; Alfred Dale, state treasurer; S. A. Olsness, state insurance commissioner, and Fay Harding and C. W. McDonnell, members of the state railroad commission.

In their statement they expressed fear that acts performed in conjunction with Langer might be illegal, and declined to participate until the courts have clarified the question of his right to hold office.

CONGREGATIONAL PEWS ARE FOUND 70 PCT. VACANT

Church Receives Report from Babson.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oberlin, O., June 23.—[Special.]—Just what is happening to church attendance throughout the country is the problem confronting Congregational Christian leadership at the general council of that church in session here today. Statistical research made by Roger W. Babson during the last four years was presented to the council's seminary on church attendance. This study shows pews of Congregational churches to be 70 per cent vacant.

Mr. Babson said he had obtained accurate figures from 1,000 churches representing various areas of the country, Sunday by Sunday since Jan. 1, 1930. His investigation also indicated that 58 per cent of the members of the churches are supporting their church neither through personal attendance nor active encouragement.

One in 10 Go to Church.

Estimates concerning the whole of Protestantism presented before the seminar pointed out that but one Protestant in ten goes to church services. Mr. Babson summarized his congregational statistics as follows:

"Congregational churches investigated have, on the average a membership of 322 people per church. They have, on the average, sufficient seating capacity for 370 persons per service.

"1930, 114.4; 1931, 117.1; 1932, 119.1; 1933, 117. The proportion of actual church members who attend church—as against seating capacity of churches—was more encouraging, Mr. Babson disclosed. He said that about 42 per cent of local memberships of churches attended regularly. But Mr. Babson also pointed to wide disparity between rural and urban church going.

Rural Attendance High.

"Churches in unincorporated areas had an average attendance of 71 per cent of their members," said Mr. Babson. "In incorporated villages under 2,500 the average attendance of members declined to 66 per cent, in cities of 10,000 to 50,000 attendance receded to 46 per cent while in cities of 50,000 or more the average attendance was 30 per cent.

"In a comparison of regions the lowest average attendance was found in the urban states from New York to the District of Columbia. The average attendance of a group of selected churches in places of all sizes in these states was 36 per cent. The highest attendance was in the rural southeastern states where the average was 78 per cent."

List 17 Points to Aid Church.

Among Mr. Babson's "17 points" for improving church attendance are these: "Each church develop a definite spiritual and intellectual goal and develop a clientele accordingly.

"Work for the economic well being of the people.

"Insist on rigid standards for church membership.

"See that sermons are vitalized.

"The influence of the home must be for church attendance."

The bankruptcy of liberalism in theology was pointed out in the seminar on current theological questions this morning as one cause of church attendance decline. This seminar is led by Dr. Douglas Horton, pastor of the United church of Hyde Park, Chicago. Dr. Horton said that the theology of Karl Barth of Germany, "if liberalized, would make the faith of a modern man."

Klutas Gangster

EDWARD DUROW.

Edward Durow, alias Eddie Wagner, said to be the last of Theodore [Handsome Jack] Klutas' kidnaping gang, was returned to Chicago yesterday to face trial for the kidnaping of James Hackett, wealthy Blue Island gambler. He was captured by state's attorney detectives in Kansas City Thursday.

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan announced that Hackett and one of his employés, Frank Carney, had identified Durow as one of the kidnapers. Augustus [Babe] Jones, the member of the gang who turned state's evidence, also mentioned Durow, whom he called Wagner, as one of the gambler's abductors.

Durow denied the kidnaping. He was not indicted along with the others, but Coghlan said the facts would be laid before the grand jury as soon as possible.

Frank Souder and Gale Swolley are serving life sentences for the kidnaping. Klutas, the college graduate leader of the gang, was slain by police, and Edward LaRue, another member of the gang, is serving a federal penitentiary sentence.

HEWITT RULING GUARDS CITY ON CONTRACT PRICES

Calls for Adjustment in Falling Market.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, yesterday formulated a new provision that will be written into all city contracts from now on for the purpose of giving the city the advantage of any lowering of prices of materials and supplies throughout the year.

Prices written into the noncompetitive bids being received now by the city are higher than they were last year. Contracts made with firms on the basis of these prices would forestall the city from getting materials cheaper if prices should fall, Mr. Hewitt said, unless the new provision, which specifically gives the city the advantage of lower prices, is written into the contracts.

New Price Provision.

The new provision reads:

"In the event that during the life of this contract the National Recovery administration code provisions effective on the date of receipt of bids are modified, or in the event of a decline in the market or contract price of the commodities herein contracted for, the city of Chicago shall be granted the benefit of any reduction in the cost to the contractor or decline in the prices of such commodities."

"Mayor Kelly approved the idea of safeguarding the city against having to continue to pay contract prices in instances where the prices of the contracted materials have fallen," said Commissioner Hewitt.

Drafted by Sexton.

"For several weeks we have written this idea into new contracts, but the form we have now is the final one drafted by Corporation Counsel Sexton."

This new provision also would protect the city in the event that the NRA collapses with a resultant decline of fixed prices, but none of the city officials would comment on this interpretation of the provision, which came from outside the city hall.

Dillon, "Society Bandit," Denied Parole by Board

The plea for parole of Edward "Toddy" Dillon, so-called "society" bandit who is serving a one to twenty year sentence at the Joliet penitentiary, has been denied by the board of pardons and paroles, it was announced yesterday. Recently Dillon's mother and fiancée appeared before a sub-committee of the parole board to urge that he be liberated, even though he faces a sentence for parole violation at the New York state prison. He went to prison in May, 1931, after pleading guilty to five charges of robbery.

JAPS SUSPICIOUS OF U. S.-BRITISH PARLEY ON NAVIES

Nippon Ambassador Calls Norman H. Davis.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 23.—While the British and Americans are awaiting Washington's reply to the British "technical memorandum" on naval requirements, Tsuneo Matsudaira, the Japanese ambassador, had a long talk today with Norman H. Davis, chief of the American delegation, at the bi-lateral naval talks now going on in London. The Japanese ambassador said he was anxious to make sure that he has been kept fully informed of all that has been going on between the British and Americans during their preliminary naval conversations.

He said he thought so himself, but news came from Tokio that the Japanese foreign office and admiralty are suspicious, and want a lot more information than they are getting.

Favor Naval Alliance.

A sensation was caused in London this morning by the publication by the Morning Post, under approving headlines, of the New York News editorial advocating an Anglo-American naval alliance.

This was discussed in naval circles excitedly. While none goes so far as to accept the idea of a formal alliance, the idea of a naval entente, especially in the far east, which might enable both America and Great Britain to institute large scale economies, undoubtedly is looked upon favorably.

Parallel with the Anglo-American talks, and of great importance in eastern politics, are the conversations which have been going on between Lord Willingdon, viceroy of India, who is now in London on leave, and admiralty experts on the future of the Indian navy. The viceroy wants more ships, particularly fast cruisers and destroyers for India's defense. His naval advisers have told him that the coast of India is highly vulnerable to the Japanese fleet.

Seek Real Defense Force.

The present Indian navy consists of only a few sloops, but the Indian princes, as well as political leaders in British India, are pressing for the building up of a real defense force.

The princes offered to bear a share of the expense. Such a plan, if carried out, would of course upset the balance of the Anglo-American Japanese 5-5-3 battleship ratio and would lead Japan to insist more strongly than ever on an increase in her quota of ships.

It is hoped that Washington's views on British requirements may be available by the beginning of next week. In the meantime no further meetings have been arranged.

Claims Arms Cost Dropped.

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—In a speech at a Conservative meeting in north Worcester urging an adequate navy for the homeland and the empire, Commander Bolton Eyres-Monsell, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty, today asserted that Britain is the only country which has decreased armaments expenditures during the past eight years.

During that period, the commander said, Italy has increased such expenditures 9½ per cent; the United States, 10 per cent; Germany, 12; Japan, 80; France, 100, and Russia, 197 per cent.

England, he pointed out, showed a decrease of 16 per cent during the eight years.

He declared, however, "It is about time we woke up in this country and that we look to our national and imperial defenses because we cannot go on pursuing an international dream of disarmament all alone."

BEG YOUR PARDON

Paving work on North avenue between Crawford and Cicero avenues was opened to trafic June 16, six weeks ahead of schedule, the Robert R. Anderson company, contractors, points out. This project should not have been listed among those which the state highway department promised would be completed within a month or six weeks, as published in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

STOCKYARDS FIRE HERO GETS $100 TRIBUNE AWARD

Lieut. Thomas Morrissey Acclaimed for Rescues.

Chicago's fire department, acclaimed as the greatest in the world after its achievement during the stockyards fire on May 19, earned a collective award for bravery. Dozens of men performed deeds which, in other circumstances, would entitle them to unusual distinction.

Because of the necessity of singling out some individual from an outstanding group, THE TRIBUNE sought the recommendation of Chief Fire Marshal Corrigan and his staf before selection of the person to receive its monthly hero award of $100 for May.

Four Sightseers Rescued.

Lieut. Thomas Morrissey of engine company 65 was universally acclaimed as outstanding because of his leading rôle in the rescue of four panic stricken sightseers who were trapped on the roof of the Stockyards Exchange building. He put his teachings into practice as calmly as if there were no danger involved.

"He was as cool as if he were performing at the drill school, where he used to be an instructor," said Michael Cody, a battalion chief of the 2d division, in paying Morrissey perhaps his greatest tribute. Chief Corrigan echoed the sentiment that the most valuable men on a fire department are those never "fussed" in a tight situation.

It was the Rev. Father William Gorman, department chaplain, who saw the panicky quartet on the roof of the eight story Exchange building. The entire west side of the structure was blazing and the flames had forced the observers to the east side.

Ladder 15 feet Short.

An aerial ladder was raised by Lieut. Fred Strohacker of hook and ladder company 4. Up scrambled Morrissey. The ladder was 15 feet short of the roof, several feet below the eighth story window. Morrissey then hooked his way up, tore out the screen, and opened the window. Meanwhile, the ladder was extended its full 85 feet to the window.

A 16 foot pompier ladder, a skittish piece of apparatus with a single upright, cross rungs, and a large hook, was passed up to Morrissey. On his first try, Morrissey swung the 35 pound ladder over the roof's edge. Chief Corrigan said he never has seen a better throw.

Morrissey straddled the window sill, held the unstable ladder steady, assisted the four trapped observers into the window, and helped them on their way down the aerial ladder.

"There wasn't much to it," said Morrissey, with the modesty which characterized his official report. "O, it was kind of high and a little hot," he added. Others agreed it was a "great piece of work," marked by "rare skill and resourcefulness."

Gives Credit to Aids.

Morrissey gives full credit to the men who helped him and passed up the ladder. Commendation for this goes to Fireman Joseph Reszal of engine No. 2, John Tebbins of hook and ladder No. 8, and Robert Quinn of hook and ladder No. 14. Quinn was the winner of THE TRIBUNE's February hero award.

Lieut. Morrissey is 38 years old and has been a fire fighter since he was 25. He lives at 2949 West 56th street, is married, and has three children. He has been commended for his bravery on numerous occasions. He is a six footer and weighs 190 pounds. Morrissey was off duty when the fire broke out, but rushed to the yards immediately.

Honorable mention for bravery in police work during May: Patrolman Patrick J. Redmond of the 12th district who was killed in a robbery; William Adlam and Alexander A. Dalzell of the 4th district, Jesse C. Igou, retired; Daniel Donovan of the 11th district, John Hickey of the 22d district, Joseph Burzyah, 26th district.

JOBS AND BACK PAY FOR 40 BUS MEN ORDERED

The Greyhound Bus lines of Chicago received yesterday an order from the national labor board at Washington to reëmploy 40 union workers who struck last summer and to give them back pay for approximately seven months. The ruling was based on an agreement with the Chicago regional labor board to reëmploy the men by last Nov. 29.

"The company did not fulfill its agreement," the decision of the national labor board stated. "Few if any men were rehired in November. At least 11 men did not get work until February. When the company's delay was called to the attention of the regional board.

"At another hearing, Jan. 23, the regional board ruled that the company should pay the men from Nov. 29. This seems to us appropriate redress for the company's failure to carry out the original agreement, for which no adequate reason was assigned. The company's default was deliberate. We believe public interest requires the company to fulfill as nearly as is now possible the decision of the regional board."

Some 6,000 furniture dealers are expected to visit the 21st semi-annual market of the American Furniture mart, which opens tomorrow.

Three miles of displays, showing the latest in 1934 styles, are ready in the Furniture mart to be viewed by visiting dealers. Because of the rise in retail furniture sales during recent months, an unusually large attendance is expected, according to officials of the mart.

Both the National Retail Furniture association and the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers have planned schedules of meetings and entertainment for visiting furniture men. On Tuesday there will be a luncheon in the Furniture Mart, with discussions on the trend in furniture styles.

UNVEIL TABLET ON SITE OF FIRST NORSE COLONY

Celebrate Centennial at Norway, Ill.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Norway, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Just at noon here today a little old lady in her best silk dress tugged gently at a gay piece of cloth covering a granite boulder. The cloth slid to the ground, revealing a tablet which marks the site of the first permanent settlement of Norwegian people in America. They came a century ago when this lush, fertile valley was a wilderness.

One hundred years have passed since Cleng Peerson, a hardy Norse adventurer, led six families—62 people—over the Alleghenies from New York state and westward across the prairies of Ohio and Indiana into the pleasant valley of the Fox river. They colonized and tilled the land and their breed multiplied with the years. They spread far into the middle west, but some of the descendants of the Peerson expedition still live and farm near Norway.

Descendant of Peerson Clan.

Mrs. Torber Nelson Ingles, the little old lady who smiled so happily when she unveiled the tablet, is one of the original blood of this tiny community. Her grandmother was Cleng Peerson's sister. Mrs. Ingles is 85 years old and lives quietly on the outskirts of the village, a stone's throw from the site of Norway's first meeting house, built of logs by the Rev. Elling Eielsen in 1841. A bare spot in the field marks where it once stood.

Although Norway has grown little since its founding—its population now is only 80—the fame of the pioneers became legend and today's centennial brought Gov. Horner; Norway's minister to the United States, Wilhelm Morgenstierne; and hundreds of zealous Norsemen eager to honor their forbears. More than 1,500 persons braved the heat to witness the unveiling of the tablet and thousands saw the parade and heard the formal program in Ottawa in the afternoon.

Judge John J. Sonsteby, chief justice of Chicago's Municipal court, presided at the dedicatory program in Ottawa's high school auditorium. The governor and Minister Morgenstierne reviewed three companies of National Guardsmen before the ceremonies, then a parade wound through the streets from the city park.

Eulogized by Chicagoan.

At the unveiling Attorney Marshall Solberg of Chicago, who was born almost on the spot where the marker stands, paid tribute to the Norse pioneers who, from the time of Leif Ericsson, he said, "have exalted the highways of the world, in the words of Ezekiel."

Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, president of the Illinois State Historical society, was to have delivered the dedicatory address but illness prevented his appearance. In his place he sent Paul Angle, the society's secretary, who paid tribute to the natural qualities of the Norwegians which have enriched our country.

At Ottawa Mayor Hubert J. Hilliard gave the official welcome and was followed by the governor, who extended the greetings of the state. State Representative Ole E. Benson of Ottawa was the next speaker and was followed by the minister.

Read's Message from Abroad.

The governor hailed the spirit of the Norwegian pioneers and read a cablegram from the prime minister of Norway in which he conveyed the old country's greetings to the assemblage and told them that Minister Morgenstierne would convey the official compliments.

"I shall report to my government," the diplomat said, "that your gracious welcome has gone to my heart. You have recognized the part Norway has had in the development of this section. Truly, today, Norway and Illinois join hands across the ocean."

Introduced to the audience were Congressman Knute Hill of Washington, a native Illinoisan; State Senator Noah M. Mason of Oglesby and Representative Edmund P. Conerton of La Salle. Judge Sonsteby also presented Thor Sollberg, an aviator of Norwegian descent, who proposes to fly solo from A Century of Progress in Chicago to Norway and has set July 4 as the date of his takeoff.

Comes from Oslo.

Another speaker was Arne Kildal, executive secretary of the Nordmanns-Forbundet, who came from Oslo, Norway, for the ceremonies. Addresses by N. A. Grevstad of the Norwegian-American press, Chicago, and Dr. Laurence M. Larson of the University of Illinois completed the speaking.

The three day centennial will close with services tomorrow in the auditorium of Pleasant View Luther college at Ottawa.

New Bankruptcy Law Is Called Bondholders' Greatest Opportunity

VALUES OF ACT DESCRIBED BY L. D. SWANSTROM

Conservation of Assets Is Spirit of Law.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Bondholders' committees which have been seeking a way to reorganize distressed building properties now have their greatest opportunity under the recently amended federal bankruptcy act, according to Luther D. Swanstrom of the Chicago law firm of Johnson, Swanstrom, Wiles & Clawson. Mr. Swanstrom, in a brief survey of the new law and its advantages to the local mortgage bond situation, yesterday declared that conservation of assets for both debtor and creditor is the spirit of the act, a condition, he pointed out, which usually results in great advantage to them and to society at large.

LUTHER D. SWANSTROM.

"The recent amendment to the bankruptcy act provides a needful protection to creditors and debtors as well as their properties, until they may meet and adjust their affairs in equity, fairness and according to the dictates of good business," he said.

Pioneers Under the New Law.

Mr. Swanstrom's law firm, of which George E. Q. Johnson, former United States District judge, is senior partner, was the first in Chicago to use section 74 of the bankruptcy law, passed March 3, 1933. It also filed the first petition to be approved by Judge Charles E. Woodward of the United States District court, under section 77-B of the bankruptcy law, signed by President Roosevelt on June 7.

Mr. Swanstrom said that section 74, which was for relief of individual debtors, now has been held constitutional by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the matter of Landquist, et al., being a petition filed by an individual owner of a building subject to a bond issue.

Section 77-B is for corporate reorganizations. Under this section a petition may be filed either by the debtor or by three or more creditors asking for reorganization. In either case the reorganization can be effected after the necessary two-thirds in amount of claims of each class of creditors have agreed to the plan.

Calls 77-B More Elastic.

"Section 77-B, the more elastic in its provisions and remedies, is really a companion measure to section 74," said Mr. Swanstrom. "Under the latter section a great number of properties in Chicago have been reorganized during the last year, their taxes paid, and in many cases interest paid to bondholders at a reduced rate under plans confirmed by the court with the consent of the necessary majority in number and amount.

"Committees should find great advantage in these federal acts and find opportunity to dispose of the small dissenting minority and other odds and ends without the placing of a first mortgage ahead of the bondholders' interests for reorganization purposes, payment of fees, buying out dissenting bondholders, etc. The placing of such a first mortgage is condemned as being in many cases unfair to the bondholders and economically unsound.

"What price protection if a small minority might continue to block the reorganization or force the majority either to accept a second mortgage in place of their first mortgage which they now have or to suffer the buildings to remain in receivership and to suffer the loss of ownership management for years to come as they have in the last two to four years?

Always Scattered Bondholders.

"In most large bond issues there are are some 3 to 5 per cent of the bondholders that cannot be located, and some 10 to 15 per cent are so widely scattered that it is almost impossible to get them to agree to any plan of reorganization. Under the new federal law difficulties arising from such situations can now be overcome.

"It is apparent from years of effort that properties cannot be liquidated easily through foreclosures and that reorganizations have been expensive. It also has been demonstrated that the wholesale operation of properties by receivers is detrimental to property values in the community.

"The new federal act permits the property to be operated by the debtor or by a trustee under the supervision of the court during the period of negotiation for reorganization, and if such reorganization is impossible, a method is furnished for speedy liquidation.

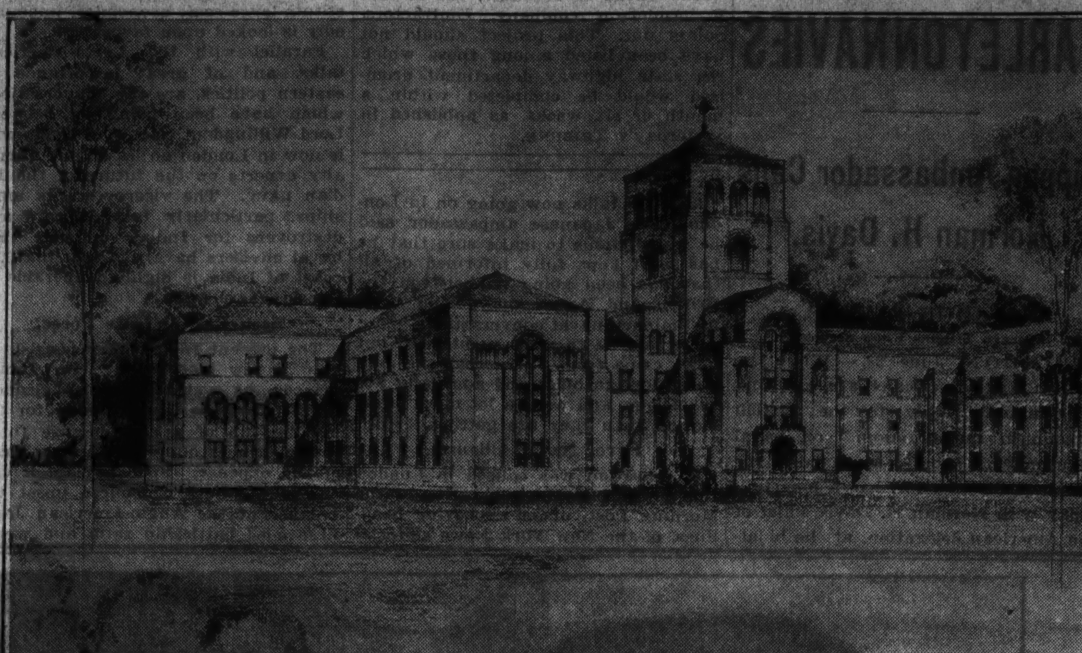
As It Should Be.

"Under the filing of petition under the new federal law, and after the necessary formalities have been attended to by the attorneys and the courts, the major questions of reorganization are left largely to the debtor and creditors. This is as it should be, for such questions are largely financial and business problems best solved by practical business men.

"The law should be as well a great benefit to creditors since its aim is to protect the property for creditors. Nations have from the beginning of history concerned themselves with the rights of creditors in the collection of debts.

"The creditors gained little benefit when they were permitted to dismember the body of the debtor, or sell him into slavery, or to seize and break up his work bench. And in modern times they gain little benefit from absolute liquidation and distribution of the debtor's assets. The spirit of the new legislation is the conservation of assets for debtor and creditor and this usually results in great advantage to both and to society at large."

Roman Catholic Order to Build Novitiate on North Shore



Working drawings are now being made by Maher & McGrew of Evanston for the above novitiate building and aged men's home, to be erected on an eighty acre site just north of the Bonnie Brook Municipal Golf course of Waukegan, by the Alexian Brothers, a Roman Catholic order. The monastery section of the building will accommodate 100 novices. The home wing will house fifty aged men. In the center of the building will be a chapel seating 200. A large central kitchen will serve separate dining rooms for the two wings.

A small hospital will be installed on the fourth floor, under the central tower, to care for residents of the home and monastery. A service wing and employés living quarters and classrooms will complete the main building plan. A separate service building will contain the power generating equipment, laundry and shops. The structure is of Romanesque design, with a massive central tower as the predominate feature. Bids will be taken in about four weeks with completion set for eight or nine months later. The cost will be well over half a million dollars, it was stated.

Reminiscent of Ancient Moscow

Work has started on the above Russian St. George Victorious Orthodox church, at the southeast corner of Wood and Walton streets, with the expectation of having it completed about Christmas. E. F. Bargman, Chicago architect, designed the structure. He consulted with New York and Chicago architects of Russian origin on ecclesiastical features. Alex Wasleff will be in charge of construction. C. Michalchik is chairman of the building committee. The pastor is the Rt. Rev. John Zeltonoga. Details are given in another column.

RUSSIANS BUILD TYPICAL CHURCH IN WOOD STREET

The Russian St. George Victorious Orthodox Church society and parish has started work on a new church edifice of Russian design at the southeast corner of Walton and Wood streets. It is designed in ancient Moscow style with elevated copper roofed belfry—67 feet high—and large, onion shaped, copper covered cupola supported by four arches.

On the front wall, on top of the principal entrance, will be an equestrian figure, ten feet high, of St. George piercing the dragon, which symbolizes enlightenment conquering the forces of darkness.

The altar will have a cycloramic vault with reflected light.

As soon as the new edifice is completed the existing church on the same lot will be remodeled into school, club, and priest's apartment and the whole institution will be called "The Home of the Russians in Chicago."

"The basis of this organization is the respect and loyalty of Chicago Russians to their adopted country—America," said a church official.

Real Estate Still a Good Buy

That fortunes are made by grasping a psychological market condition applies to the real estate market as well as it does to stocks and bonds, according to E. H. Boeckh & Associates, Inc., consulting valuation engineers.

"Speaking technically of present conditions, weakness is registered throughout the entire realty field," the firm states in its weekly cost analysis bulletin. "Sales prices still are far below reconstruction costs, and money still is timid in so far as refinancing is concerned.

"That the realty investor's opportunity to take advantage of the present situation is fast disappearing is evidenced from many sources. There is beginning to be a lack of good rental space in many classes of property. A small amount of mortgage money again is cautiously creeping into the field, through a dearth of investment opportunity elsewhere. This all means an increase in the earning possibility of real estate."

The following index numbers are predicated on Chicago building costs, using as a base an average of prices throughout the country for the years 1926-'29 equaling 100:

DRAW PLANS FOR CATHOLIC UNIT NEAR WAUKEGAN

The Alexian Brothers, a Roman Catholic order founded in the 14th century, operating the Alexian Brothers' hospital, at Belden and Racine, are having plans drawn by Maher & McGrew, Evanston architects, for the erection of a large fireproof novitiate building and old men's home, north of Waukegan.

According to Brother Gerard, C. F. A., provincial superior of the Congregation of the Alexian Brothers, the Chicago institution known as Alexian Brothers' hospital, has cared for more than 175,000 men patients since it started in 1866. About a third were charity cases. The members of the order, who do all the technical and practical work connected with the hospital, will receive their training at the proposed new Waukegan institution.

As so large a part of their work has been done for charity, it will be necessary for the order to make a substantial loan in order to erect this new building, it was announced. Brother Gerard stated that construction work will start as soon as satisfactory arrangements can be made, and the different ecclesiastical and civil permissions can be obtained.

ROUND LAKE AUCTIONS WILL BE CONTINUED

Sunday afternoon public auctions of lakeside homesites are to be continued for a number of weeks at Round Lake beach, Round Lake, Ill., according to L. B. Harris, developer of the community. There are still 392 lots to be liquidated in the campaign to provide funds for the institution of a home building program contemplated by the development company.

"I believe that when it becomes known that we are conducting a legitimate auction at which properties ready for immediate erection of summer cottages or permanent homes are being bid in at a fraction of depression prices, we'll succeed in dispelling the bogey that realty auctions can't be conducted as successfully in the Chicago area as in the east," said Mr. Harris.

He states that there are now 400 completed residences at Round lake beach. Sixteen homes are now under construction. Eighty-six prospective homeowners would build if they could get mortgage money, he adds.

Give Industrial Program at Minneapolis Sessions

Louis B. Beardslee, chairman of the industrial property division of the National Association of Real Estate boards, yesterday made public his program at the Minneapolis convention next week. George E. Smith of Chicago will speak on "The Influence of the Railroad on Industrial Property." K. Lee Hyder of Milwaukee will talk on "The Appraisal of Industrial Real Estate." W. E. Gailliard of New York is scheduled to discuss "The Migration of Industry." George C. Smith of St. Louis also will speak. An inspection trip through the Minneapolis-St. Paul industrial area is planned.

S. CHARLES IVERSEN MOVES; 41 YEARS IN SAME LOOP LOCATION

Rounding out forty-one years of business association with one firm and in one building, S. Charles Iversen has moved from the Guardian Bank building, at the southeast corner of Dearborn and Monroe, across the street to the Westminster building. Mr. Iversen started as a boy clerk in 1893 with the then prominent real estate firm of Hibbard Porter & Bros. in what was then called the Commercial National Bank building. In 1909 he was made a partner, and in 1911 became sole owner.

In 1926 he changed the name of the firm to S. Charles Iversen & Co. and made his son, Stanley Streeter Iversen, a partner. Mr. Iversen was president of the Chicago Real Estate board in 1925. The Guardian Bank building is to be wrecked to make way for a two story taxpayer.

Beverly Shores Has Its First Birthday.

Achieving a sales total of $1,108,900 in homes, riparian rights locations, business property and vacants during the last twelve months, the one year old Robert Bartlett Realty company during the last seven days has been celebrating anniversary week at its Beverly Shores, Ind., duneland development. In addition to this sales total, the company states it has extended the paving of several streets in the forty mile network serving the development and improved the Beverly Shores golf course with a new sprinkler system.

Sixteen Homes Built.

The firm's first year also witnessed the erection of sixteen new homes, two of which will be completed this week. Plans for five more have been approved and will be started this month.

A feature of anniversary week was the formal opening of the new $100,000 fireproof Beverly Shores Hotel, under the management of Edward S. Forry, an Indiana hotel man. This is a two story structure of Italian design. Steel furniture is used throughout.

The botanical garden, conceived and landscaped by Mrs. Louis Van Hees Young, radiates from a central pool, concrete approaches to which are inlaid with colorful tiles designed by her and also baked by her in the ceramics ovens of the Chicago Art institute.

Has $30,000 Log Cabin.

Robert Bartlett's $30,000 log cabin residence was completed in time for anniversary week. This is a nine room home atop a 112 foot dune, affording a view of three states. Floors and wall panelings are reproductions of those in colonial homes of the late 17th and mid-18th centuries. The furniture is early American in design.

"There were some people in the realty business a year ago who out of kindness urged me not to launch a new organization and take over the development of the entire Beverly Shores tract at that time," said Robert Bartlett yesterday. "'The depression is still on, you'd better wait a while,' they suggested.

"I believe, however, that going ahead with development and putting in needed improvements was better than waiting for things to pick up by themselves. Instead of waiting for a general, planned economic system, we planned our own individual business according to surveys and in the light of our thirty years of realty experience."

PART OF MIDLAND CLUB TO BE MADE INTO A HOTEL

The financial district is to have a new hotel. The fourth, fifth and sixth floors of the Midland building at 176 West Adams street, formerly used by the Midland club and containing approximately 100 rooms and suites, have been leased by the newly formed Midland Hotel company. According to E. J. Zuehls of the Midland building, $40,000 will be spent in new furnishings by the leasing company. Later the restaurants and club features may be opened for hotel guests.

Chain Shoe Store Leases South Dearborn St. Shop

Arthur Freer, 140 North Dearborn street, reports two loop leases. J. and S. Ferdman and S. Schuman, doing business as the F. & S. Shoe company, have leased the store at 201 South Dearborn street from Cyrus H. McCormick for a term of years. This will be their third loop store. I. Zimmerman has rented the store at 41 West Adams in the same building for a retail wearing apparel shop. W. A. Heimbeck represented the lessor in both deals. Mr. Freer also leased the store at 1240 Milwaukee avenue to the Dresswell Shirt company for a term of years for use as a men's store.

Andes Candies Opens Unit at 1583 Milwaukee Avenue

Andes Candies, Inc., leased the store at 1583 Milwaukee avenue, in the Flat Iron building, owned by Arthur D. Hill, for five years. It was remodeled from plans by Herbert Beidler in neoclassic design and opened yesterday.

MARION DAVIES' PORTRAIT TAKEN FROM U.S. EXHIBIT

Tempest in an Art Gallery Comes to Peaceful End.

VENICE, Italy, June 23.—(AP)—A tempest in an art gallery came to a peaceful end today as Marion Davies' "Portrait Without a Country" was pulled out of the pavilion of the American exhibit at the Venice biennial exhibit.

The removal satisfied the objections of Mrs. Juliana Force, director of the Whitney Museum of Art, who had ordered the American paintings withdrawn because of the unauthorized hanging of the portrait.

Italians Move Fast.

The Italian officials in charge of the exhibition, who earlier had indicated they could do nothing until next week, moved speedily today in the face of a firm stand on the part of Mrs. Force.

The portrait of the American motion picture actress was moved to the Italian pavilion. Since it was painted by a Polish artist, and at first had been assigned to the Polish pavilion, this action gave the exhibit an unusual international aspect.

When Mrs. Force first ordered the removal of the American exhibit, actuated, she said, by the fact that it was her understanding only Whitney pictures would be shown, the officials refused to let it go.

They also did nothing about the portrait of Miss Davies, except to place by it a sign, in Italian, saying it should not be regarded as a part of the American exhibit.

Communicates with Count.

Commendatore Romolo Bazzione, secretary of the administrative committee of the biennial, communicated with Count Volpi, the president, who is in Brussels. At first it was said that nothing would be done until the count returns, but today the portrait was suddenly moved.

"We have notified Mrs. Force, and trust that she will let the matter rest there," said the secretary.

Action Pleases Director.

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Juliana Force, director of the Whitney Museum of Art, expressed pleasure tonight when informed that the portrait of Marion Davies had been removed from the vestibule of the American pavilion of the Venice biennial art exhibition.

"I am happy to hear it," she said, "but won't believe it is really true until officially advised."

The action was satisfactory, she indicated, and when officially confirmed, will result in canceling her order to withdraw the entire American exhibit.

"It wasn't the question of the picture," she explained, "but a question of principle. It was stipulated in the first place that only American pictures could be hung. I received a great many requests that other pictures be hung, which were necessarily refused.

Disclaims Personal Victory.

"In justice and fairness to all concerned I just had to remonstrate when a picture not belonging there was placed on exhibition."

Mrs. Force disclaimed any personal victory in the controversy, saying it was entirely a matter of principle. She seemed surprised that she was "not the first to know this action was taken. I must have official word before I can actually believe it happened."

Miss Davies "just isn't interested," a spokesman for the film actress said tonight when informed of the action.

"She is in Europe on a holiday," he added, "and is bent on having a good time. She just hasn't any interest in any matter like this."

SHAPE CHARGES AGAINST OWNER IN HOUSE CRASH

Deputy Building Commissioner Robert Knight announced yesterday that action is being contemplated against the owner of a condemned frame and brick building at 2616 Luther street which collapsed Friday, injuring seven children. The Albert Wachowski Loan and Savings company, 3030 Cermak road, acquired the structure six months ago when a mortgage was foreclosed.

"My inspectors state that they twice notified Albert Wachowski that he must either tear down the building or board it up," said Mr. Knight. "I intend to find out why these warnings were not heeded. I have arranged a conference with the corporation counsel's office Monday to determine what charge can be brought.

Five of the injured children were still in St. Anthony's hospital last night. All are expected to recover, it was reported.

PILOT IS KILLED WHEN AIR LINER FALLS IN STREET

Burbank, Cal., June 23.—[U. P.]—A Central Airways passenger plane crashed into a street here and exploded today, killing the pilot, just before it was to pick up passengers at Saugus.

Bucher's plane fell near a fire station, but before help could reach him the ship was a mass of flames.

Two radio police officers cruising near the scene said the plane apparently was having motor trouble about five seconds before it struck the ground. One of the officers said the ship exploded in the air. Other witnesses said the blast followed the crash.

Immediate investigation was ordered by airline officials. Central Airways of Mexico is a subsidiary of Pan-American Airways.

Bucher was married and lived in Los Angeles. He had no children.

WOMAN CALM WHEN TOLD OF DEATH VERDICT

Los Angeles, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—Nellie Madison, 39 year old brunette, was told today by a Superior court jury that she must hang for the murder of her 45 year old husband, Eric, film studio auditor, slain last March 24 by five bullets fired into his back while he was in bed in their apartment.

Mrs. Madison is the second woman in the history of California jurisprudence to face a death sentence, but no woman ever has been legally hanged in this state, the previous sentence having been commuted to life imprisonment.

When the verdict was read Mrs. Madison sat unmoved. Asked whether she had anything to say, she replied in a low voice, "No." Later in the county jail she said: "Just say I'm innocent; that's all. I'm not afraid." Fifteen minutes later, jail matrons said, she was asleep.

Mrs. Madison testified she was not at home when the slaying occurred. The state contended she shot her husband as he was retiring and sat beside his body eight hours, smoking and drinking, before fleeing.

Feeder Bus to Start Run on Archer Ave. Tomorrow

Feeder bus service on Archer avenue between Cicero and Harlem avenues will be started tomorrow by the Chicago Surface lines, according to an announcement yesterday by Ald. John J. Egan [13th], who led the prolonged fight of residents of the far southwest side for such service. Formerly residents of Chicago west of Cicero avenue had to use the Chicago and Joliet railway service as far as Cicero avenue and then to transfer to the surface lines, paying two fares. Beginning tomorrow they will have to pay only one fare, 7 cents, instead of 12 cents.

Anthony Nitti, 25 years old, ex-convict and said to be a cousin of Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti, former Capone gangster, was seized for bond forfeiture in connection with a burglary case in his home at 2851 Wilcox street yesterday. Police said they would also have victims of robberies view Nitti in an effort to identify him as a bandit. A shotgun and pistol were found in his home.

MILLIKAN SAYS FLIGHT PROVES COSMIC RAY IDEA

Presents Report on Settle Trip to Stratosphere.

Berkeley, Cal., June 23.—[Special.]—The message from the interstellar spaces written by the cosmic ray on the self-recording instruments sent up by Dr. Robert A. Millikan on the Fordney-Settle flight into the stratosphere support his original hypothesis that the cosmic rays originate as a result of the building up of matter in space. This was the report presented here today by Dr. Millikan before the closing sessions of the American Physical society, at a joint meeting with the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Millikan, Nobel prize winner in physics in 1923 for his pioneer work in measuring the electric charge of the electron, and pioneer in the field of cosmic ray research in the United States, presented a general interpretation of cosmic ray effects, based on data gathered in a world-wide survey conducted under his direction.

Differs with Compton.

The conclusions reached by Dr. Millikan still differ fundamentally in several important respects from those reached by Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago, also a Nobel prize winner for his discovery of what is known as the Compton effect; by Dr. Thomas H. Johnson of the Bartol Research foundation, Swarthmore, Pa., and a number of others.

All schools agree that the cosmic rays originate far outside the system of which our sun and its planets are a party.

The differences arise on the question of the nature of the original cosmic rays, whether they consist of photons, electrically neutral units of radiation or energy, or of electrically charged particles, such as electrons, positrons, protons, and alpha particles, or of a mixture of all of these.

Belong to Heavy Particles.

Dr. Compton, who had also sent up instruments on the Fordney-Settle balloon, believes that the majority of the original cosmic rays are due to electrically charged particles, many of them of energies corresponding to tens of billions of volts and that those of the higher energies belong to the heavy particles, such as protons or hearts of hydrogen atoms and alpha particles, hearts of helium atoms, and even the hearts of heavier atoms.

The high altitude and latitude survey, Dr. Millikan aded, have enabled him to draw the conclusion that the resistance of the atmosphere to incoming electrons, positive and negative, is close to six billion electron volts. This means that no electron less than six billion volts could penetrate the atmosphere here.

MUSICIANS' UNION ACTS TO FIGHT SCHOOL BANDS

Cleveland, O., June 23.—(AP)—The American Federation of Musicians wants its local organizations to "use their political strength to combat the evils of the high school band."

By "evils," the resolution was taken to mean an encroachment on the business of the professional musicians.

The federation's annual convention adopted this resolution, and then settled a serious problem which has caused much controversy—what to do about traveling bands, including many of the major dance orchestras of the country.

It reduced the present 30 per cent surcharge assessed employers to 10 per cent. It will be collected by the local union, sent to the national office and split, four per cent to the local, three per cent to the national federation, and three per cent to the band.

All officers were reëlected, Joseph N. Weber of New York for his 35th term as president. Members of the executive board are C. A. Weaver of Des Moines, A. A. Greenbaum of San Francisco, James C. Petrillo of Chicago and A. C. Hayden of Washington.

U. S. COURT STRIKES DRY LAW CASES OFF SPRINGFIELD DOCKET

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—[U. P.]—All cases involving violations of the repealed prohibition law in the United States District court had been stricken from the docket today on recommendation of District Attorney Frank K. Lemon.

Forty-eight indictments naming more than one hundred defendants, and twenty-eight padlock injunctions, all the outgrowth of prohibition law violations over a period of years, were involved.

When the national prohibition law was repealed last December the dockets of the local District court were fairly well cleared of prohibition cases, although some districts had hundreds of old cases still on the dockets.

Lemon delayed striking the remainder until given authority to do so by the United States attorney general. He received auhority to proceed with the work this week.

Among the cases nolled were five involving Dominic Tarro, Benld, whose body was found in the Sangamon river north of Springfield in February, 1930. Tarro was an alleged bootleg king of Macoupin county.

While members of Tarro's family identified the body found in the river as his the government refused to accept the identification.

GUARD FACTORY TO FOIL FURTHER RIOT ATTEMPTS

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 23.—[Special.]—The Winters & Crampton Manufacturing company plant in suburban Grandville was heavily guarded tonight by state police, deputy sherifs, and private detectives against an anticipated new outbreak of rioting in which, late last night, several hundred strikers hurled rocks and broke 60 windows.

Grand Rapids city police have been called upon in case of serious trouble. Last night's rioting started at 11 p. m. when the force was shifted and workmen started driving away. Rocks were hurled at workmen's automobiles, breaking windshields and windows. None was injured. Officers fired several shots into the air.

Members of the metal polishers' union, which has been on strike for several weeks, were said to have been leaders of the mob, which included about 30 former Winters & Crampton employés.

Ford V-8 Economy

THERE'S one sure way to get the facts about motor-car economy. And that's to ask the man who drives the car. He hasn't anything to sell and you can depend on him for a straight-from-the-shoulder, honest answer.

We asked Ford V-8 owners for the facts and received 53,448 letters and post-cards. They showed a total of 417,161,640 miles. 91.7 per cent reported complete satisfaction—a truly amazing percentage for any automobile.

34,954 of these Ford V-8 owners had driven their cars 272,815,970 miles without a single penny for repairs. Many of them reported twenty, thirty and sixty thousand miles without trouble or replacements of any kind.

Owners' figures on gasoline mileage are further proof of the economy of the Ford V-8. One owner in every four averaged 18, 19 or 20 miles a gallon. 18,420 averaged 15, 16 or 17 miles.

Where mileage was less than that it was usually due to continuous driving at high speeds, lack of proper care of the car, extra-heavy loads, or many miles of traveling over mountains or in crowded city traffic. Where you drive and how fast you drive has a great deal to do with gasoline mileage.

This data on gasoline mileage is for the 1933 Ford. The New Ford V-8 of 1934 does considerably better than that because of the new dual carburetion, waterline thermostats and new engine refinements. At the same time its power is even greater.

We invite you to drive the Ford V-8 and let it tell you its own story of performance, comfort, safety and economy. You save when you buy and you save every mile you drive.

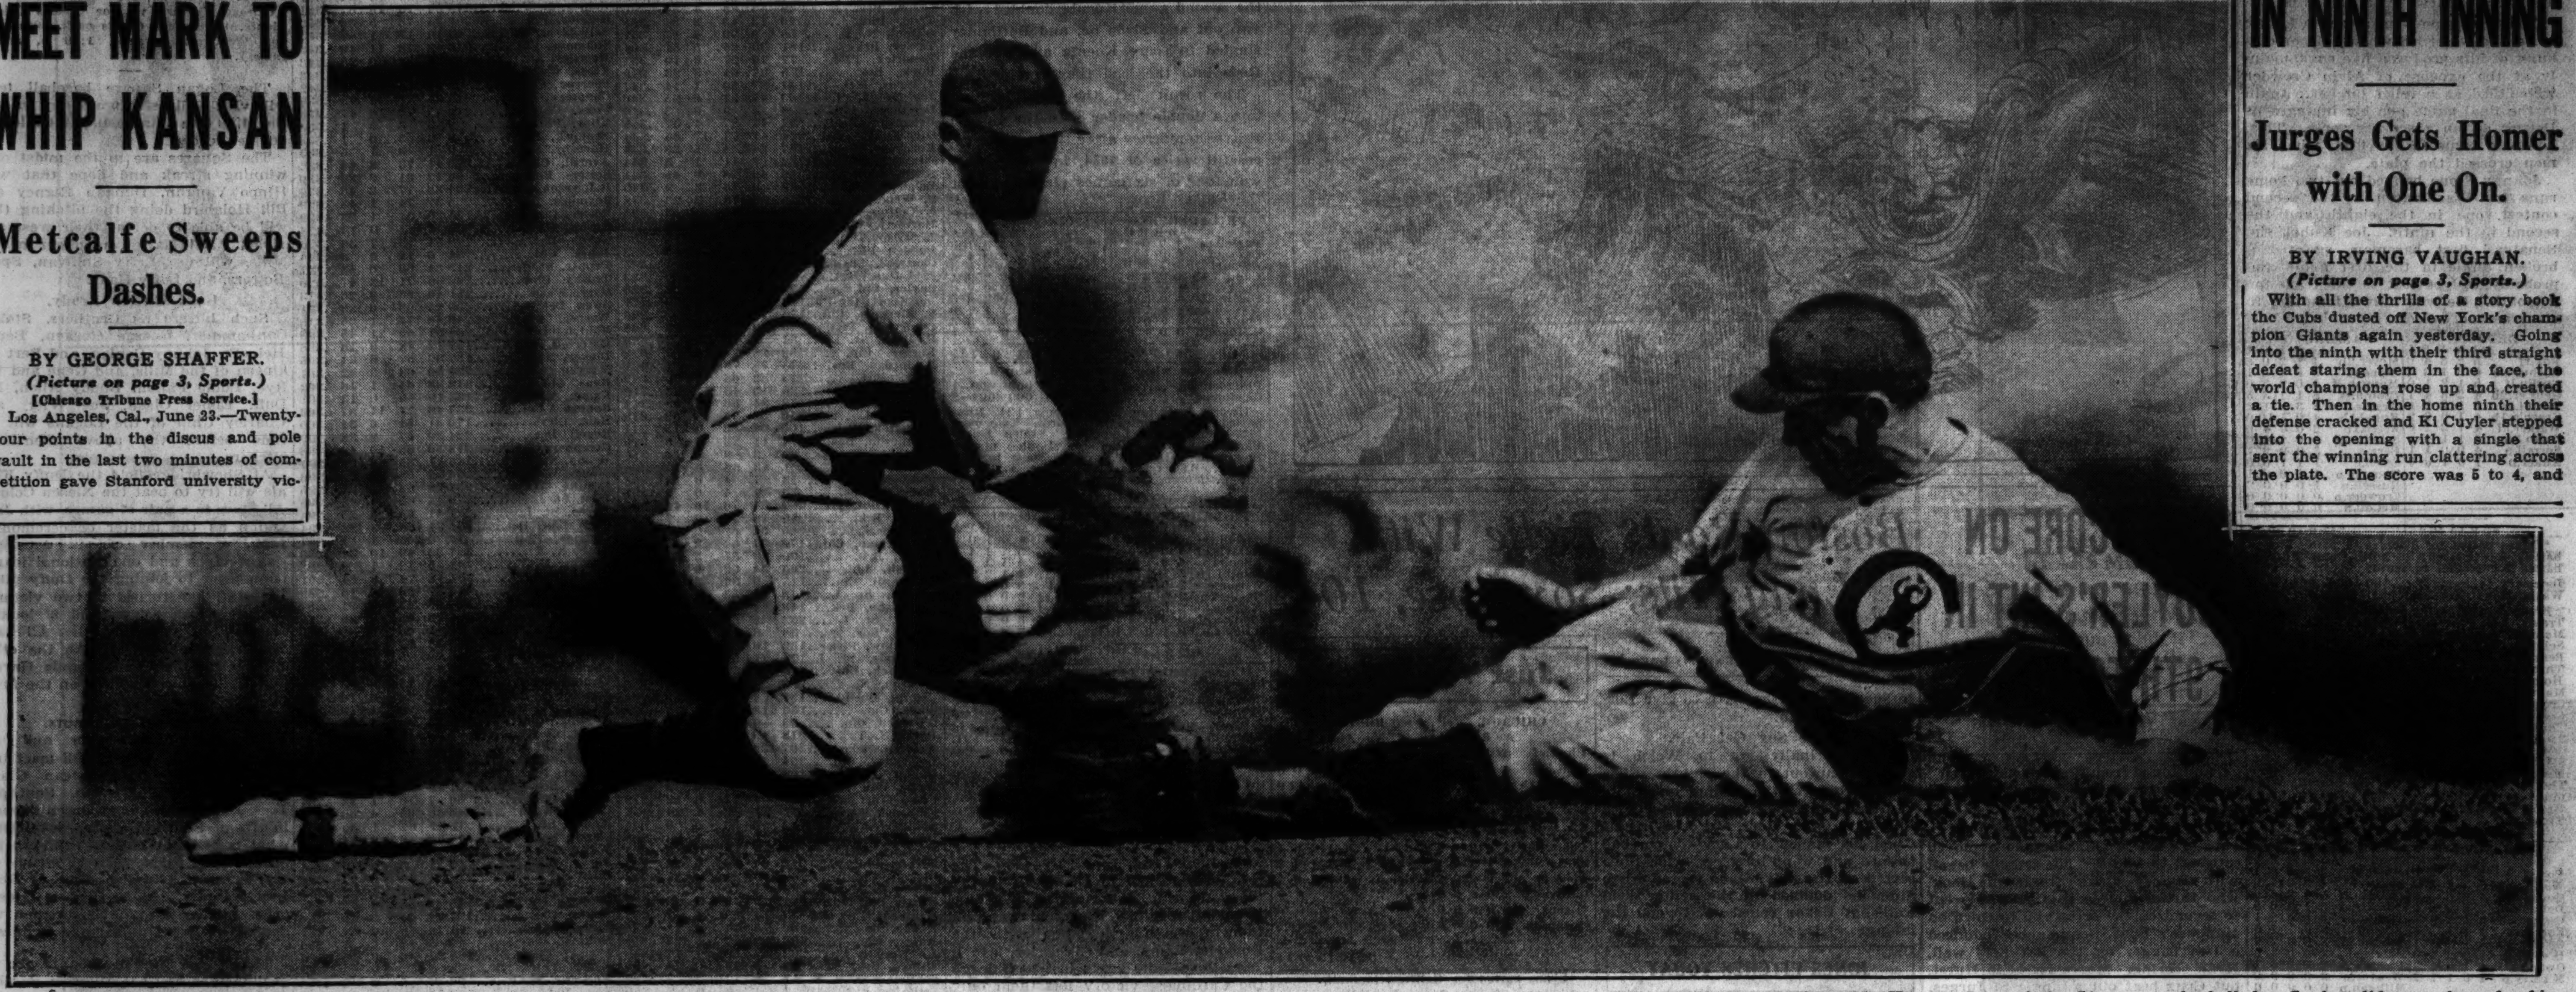
STANFORD WINS N. C. A. A. TITLE; CUNNINGHAM BEATEN

SLIDE, CUYLER, SLIDE! AND KIKI STEALS A BASE FOR CUBS



You might think that Kiki Cuyler, Cubs' center fielder, is out in his attempt to steal second in the fourth inning of yesterday's game with the New York Giants at Wrigley field, but such is not the case. Hughie Critz of the Giants got the ball, but Cuyler slid expertly under his outstretched arms and reached the bag safely. Cuyler, who had singled to score Babe Herman, was still on second when the inning ended. The Cubs won, 5 to 4.

BONTHRON SETS MEET MARK TO WHIP KANSAN

Metcalfe Sweeps Dashes.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 23.—Twenty-four points in the discus and pole vault in the last two minutes of competition gave Stanford university victory in the 13th annual national collegiate athletic association track and field meet today.

Twenty thousand stood staring into the Olympic Stadium arena as Slinger Dunn, towering weight man, scored Stanford's only first place of the record-making meet with a victory in the discus and Bud Deacon gained second place in the pole vault to bring Stanford's total to 63 points.

This enabled Stanford to beat out its arch rivals, Southern California, which finished second with 54 7-20 points. Louisiana State, defending champion, was third with 47 points, cornered most of the individual titles with four first places, two of them gained by Glenn Hardin in the 440 sprint and 220-yard low hurdles.

Metcalfe Double Winner.

Vying with Hardin for the individual honors were Ralph Metcalfe, Chicago negro running for Marquette university of Milwaukee, and Bill Bonthron of Princeton. Metcalfe won both dashes for the third successive year and, unaided, put his team in a tie with Indiana for fourth place.

Bonthron uncorked a killing sprint in the stretch of the one mile to beat Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, by ten yards in 4:08 9-10. The race was so gruelling that Cunningham was completely shut out in the half mile event one hour later. It was probably the first time in Cunningham's career that he was unable to place. He came in seventh in the race, which was won by Charlie Hornbostel of Indiana, in 1:59 9-10.

Listed records were bettered in six of the 15 events. In three of the six, today's performances eclipsed the accepted world's records. Hardin surpassed two of the universal standards when he ran the 220 yard low hurdles in 22 7-10 seconds and the quarter mile in 47 seconds flat. Ben Eastman, of Stanford, however, ran the quarter mile in 46 4-10 seconds at Princeton last week, a mark which probably will be accepted as the world mark. Behemoth Jack Torrance, Hardin's teammate from Louisiana, threw the shot 54 feet 6 9-16 inches, bettering the listed world's record. Torrance, however, has a mark of more than 55 feet this spring for which international approval is being sought.

Four Meet Marks Fall.

Four meet records were set: Bonthron's 4:08 9-10 in the mile, the mark of 14 feet ½ inch set by Jack Rand, a dark horse from San Diego State in the pole vault; the javelin distance of 220 feet 11⅝ inches by Bob Parker of University of Oregon; and Hardin's :47 in the 440-yard dash.

Bonthron ran away from Cunningham in the last 120 yards to win the mile. Cunningham won from Bonthron at Princeton a week ago in world record time of 4:06.7.

Judging his pace to a nicety, Bonthron held a position one stride behind the barrel chested Kansan from the start of the second lap until the last turn on the fourth lap. Then he scooted past Cunningham in a dash for the tape. Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania was a fagged third, 15 yards back of Cunningham. Bonthron ran the last quarter mile in the sensational time of :58.8.

The previous national collegiate record for the mile was 4:09.8, set by Cunningham last year. The official world's record is 4:09.2, established by Jules Ladoumegue of France in 1931

Cunningham attempted to come back in the 880 yard run an hour later, but Charlie Hornbostel of Indiana, repeated his 1933 victory in this event

Carnera Cries and Calls Max Big Smart Alec

New York, June 23.—[U. P.]—Primo Carnera wept today when he saw motion pictures of his fight with Maxie Baer, in which he lost his heavyweight championship.

The film was run off in a hospital room where Carnera is receiving treatment for an ankle broken in the fight. When the lights were turned on tears were streaming down the big Italian's face.

Carnera Explains It All.

"Look! There goes my foot," Carnera exclaimed as the first round was being shown. "I could have put him away if it hadn't been for that foot.

"I didn't say 'I quit'," Carnera said. "I ask Donovan to make Baer close his hands and quit sticking his thumb in my eyes.

"Look at me go down. Baer does not poosh me down. I fall. I fall again. Look at Baer grin, the big smart alec. He called me names."

Primo Blames Foot.

Carnera pointed at his foot: "That big hunk of baloney cost me the fight, not the Baer, the big smart alec."

"What names did Baer call you?" a friend asked.

Primo was asked if he did not think it was nice for Baer to have called on him yesterday.

Grant Reaches Semi-Finals in Tennis Singles

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Bryan Grant, Robert Bryan, John McDiarmid, and Marcel Rainville advanced to the semi-finals of the western tennis tournament by winning matches on yesterday's program at the River Forest Tennis club.

Gracyn Wheeler and Dr. Esther Bartosh, both of California, reached the finals of the women's division.

In winning yesterday's match Grant disposed of Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines, Ia., 6-3, 6-3, 6-3. Coggeshall, who held the western championship in two previous seasons, generally was regarded as one of the most formidable opponents which Grant will be compelled to face.

Grant, who is seeded No. 1, played in a fashion yesterday to justify his position as the strong favorite. Having scored victories over all members of the American Davis cup team during the winter and spring season, he has set out to pile up a string of impressive tournament triumphs which he hopes will gain him consideration from the Davis cup committee next season. This year he was not even given a tryout.

Grant Plays Aggressively.

Against Coggeshall, Grant played aggressively throughout the first set, driving powerfully off forehand and backhand and following his ground strokes to the net, where he smashed and volleyed effectively. During the second set he let up a bit and played his customary machinelike baseline game, sending back everything Coggeshall sent until the latter missed.

Although the third set went to Grant by the same score as the other two, Coggeshall offered a more stubborn resistance than he had previously. Repeatedly he worked Grant out of position and then hit for the point with a fast, flat forehand drive or an adroitly placed backhand. But the best Coggeshall could do was square the score at three games apiece, after which Grant got down to business and ran out the match.

Rainville Gets Opposition.

Rainville, who is a member of the Canadian Davis cup team, encountered considerable opposition during the early part of his match with Scott Rexinger, former Big Ten champion, but eventually Rexinger tired and Rainville won, 3-6, 6-4, 6-0, 6-3.

Another member of the Canadian Davis cup team, Walter Martin was eliminated by Robert Bryan, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 8-6. In the other quarter final match, Thane Halstead of Oak Park was beaten by McDiarmid, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Miss Wheeler, who had eliminated Catherine Wolfe, the defending champion, on Friday, was hard pressed in her match with Helen Fulton of Winnetka before she was able to win, 3-6, 6-3, 9-7.

Miss Bartosh Wins.

In the other women's semi-final, Miss Bartosh beat Eunice Dean of San Antonio, Tex., 6-2, 6-8, 6-4.

Miss Wheeler and Miss Bartosh will meet this afternoon for the cham-

ARLINGTON PARK RACING OPENS TOMORROW; TURF STARS READY

BY FRENCH LANE.

All the great racing stables in America are gathered in Chicago today awaiting the opening of the Arlington Park Jocky club's season tomorrow afternoon.

At the end of this 30 day session which terminates on July 28 with the running of the $50,000 Arlington Futurity, most of the turf championships will have been decided, for within the short span of a half dozen years Arlington has become the annual testing ground on which the champions from the east and the west and from the north and the south settle their disputes.

It will be more of a testing grounds this year than ever before because there isn't a leading thoroughbred in the country that isn't eligible to some one or another of the series of seven rich stake events out of which the new champions will come.

Equipoise and Cavalcade!

Old Equipoise, if he is to continue to rule at the top of the handicap division, must prove his greatness once more in either the Stars and Stripes Handicap or the Arlington Handicap. Cavalcade, to clinch the 3 year old crown must be here to beat Peace Chance and other rivals in the classic.

The 2 year old champion no doubt will come out of the running of the Hyde Park stakes, the Lassie stakes, and Futurity, the three great races arranged for the juvenile thoroughbreds of the country. At some time or another during the meeting Mata Hari and Bazaar will probably end that lively argument as to which is the better race mare in America this year.

These angles paint a rosy outlook for Arlingto Park's attractions during the next 30 days. There are other phases which will make it one of the most talked about race meetings of the year not only in the United States but in Europe and other countries as well.

They Shall Not Pass.

For the first time in the history of Chicago racing the "No-free-pass" rule will be enforced. The Illinois racing commission, seeking to end the "complimentary badge evil" which has threatened the welfare of the sport, adopted the rule a few days ago and will see that it is enforced. Whether or not it will affect the race track attendance, only the Arlington meeting will prove. Persons operating the different race tracks in the state do not believe it will cause a falling off in the crowds. They do expect it to cause a big increase in their revenue.

There couldn't be a better time nor place to test the wisdom of the anti-pass rule than at Arlington Park. Surely no track in America will offer greater gate attractions than those that will be presented there.

The sprinters among the stake horses will be the first called upon to get into the title stride. They come together in the Inaugural handicap tomorrow afternoon and a better field of fast steppers has not come together anywhere this year. They represent nearly every section of the country.

The Inaugural handicap, carrying $2,500 in added money, attracted an enormous overnight field of 25. Should the track be fast, most of them will go to the post. For a time yesterday Arlington officials considered splitting the entry and running the Inaugural in two sections, but later decided against it. Those named for the handicap, the weights assigned, follows:

Washington Park Loss on Meeting May Be $30,000

For the first time since it was built back in 1926 the Washington Park race track showed a loss on the meeting which ended there yesterday.

"It isn't a big loss nor a serious loss," Col. Matt J. Winn, the managing director, said last night.

Col. Winn said he had no figures available that would show the exact deficit on the 27 day meeting. Others connected with the track said the loss might run as high as $30,000.

"Our opening dates conflicted with the opening dates of the World's Fair and that caused us to play to small crowds for a few days," Winn said. "Because a lot of horses at our track were not in condition to run during the first two weeks of the meeting our programs were not attractive.

"When the racing programs offered more horses and evenly balanced races, business steadily picked up and the last week of the meeting showed attendance and betting handle about even with the figures of a year ago," he concluded.

The wholesale giving away of passes caused the turnstile revenue at Washington Park to drop far below other years according to Washington Park heads. In New York at the Aqueduct track now operating, the daily revenue from paid admissions on "off" days is averaging $8,000. This is reported to be about four times the gate revenue on "off" days at Washington Park.

With passes abolished by the Illinois racing commission, Col. Winn believes the increased revenue from admission tickets will make it possible for every track in Chicago to operate without losing money.

"I won't weaken on my belief that Chicago is the greatest racing city in America," Winn said. "There will be figures later on this year to prove this is correct."

Boston Routs Tietje; Beats Sox, 10 to 2

Boston, Mass., June 23.—[Special.]—Jimmy Dykes, manager of the tail-end White Sox, tried a couple of the junior members of his pitching staf in the series final with the Red Sox today, and they proved just as adept in the art of making hitters out of opponents as the older and more experienced Chicago hurlers.

Les Tietje, who started, and Phil Gallivan, who finished for the White Sox, were hammered by the Red Sox for fifteen hits for 23 bases. This, combined with the White Sox inability to get to Johnny Welch until the game was well lost, resulted in a 10 to 2 victory for the Bostonians.

Welch got off to a poor start, but after escaping unscathed in the first inning he shut out the Chicagoans until two were out in the eighth. He surrendered nine hits, but except for the eighth he never allowed a Chicago runner to pass second base. The victory was the eighth the young ex-Cub has scored this season.

Everybody Takes a Cut.

Every man in the Boston batting order participated in the assault on the two Chicago pitchers. Ed Morgan and Julius Solters were the most active, each getting three hits. Billy Werber hit a home run to start the big third inning, during which Teitje was routed and the Red Sox decided the contest.

Today's defeat was the White Sox's fourth in the five game series here. They have now lost 12 games while winning five on the curernt road trip. Immediately after the game they left for New York, where they open a four game series tomorrow.

Chicago wasted two singles and a walk in the first inning. Uhalt led off with a single, but was thrown out when he tried to take second on a short passed ball. Haas singled and Bonura walked. Simmons then grounded into a double play.

Tietje started off well, tossing out Cissell and Werber, but Morgan doubled to center, Johnson walked, and Solters smashed a grounder over third base good for a double, scoring Morgan and Johnson.

Tietje Bows Out.

Tietje's downfall occurred in the third when the Red Sox chased over six more runs. Werber worked the count to three and two and then knocked the ball over the left field fence. Morgan walked. Johnson flied out, but Solters singled to left and Porter poked a short fly to left which fell safe for a double, scoring both runners. When Ferrell drilled a single to center, scoring Porter, Gallivan replaced Tietje.

Gallivan was little better, however. Lary smashed a double to the center field wall, scoring Ferrell, and Welch doubled to deep right, scoring Lary, before Cissell and Werber mercifully grounded out.

The Red Sox got their ninth run in the fourth. Morgan opened the inning with a scratch single between Gallivan and Dykes. Johnson sent him to third with a single to center, and he scored on Porter's infield out. Morgan, Johnson and Solters singled

CECIL SMITH TO WED LONG ISLAND GIRL NEXT FALL

Wading River, N. Y., June 23.—(AP)—The engagement of Cecil Smith, Texas polo star, to Mary Mulford Miller, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Miller, Wading River, L. I., was announced today. The wedding will take place next fall.

Miss Miller is 20 years old. She and Smith met last summer at Westbury. Her uncle, Tom Macher, Texas, is one of Smith polo teammates. Last winter, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Macher, she saw Smith play in the California and Mexico City polo games.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

With all the thrills of a story book the Cubs dusted off New York's champion Giants again yesterday. Going into the ninth with their third straight defeat staring them in the face, the world champions rose up and created a tie. Then in the home ninth their defense cracked and Ki Cuyler stepped into the opening with a single that sent the winning run clattering across the plate. The score was 5 to 4, and marked the second triumph of the four game series for Lon Warneke, who had slipped into the struggle in the eighth as a rescuer of Guy Bush.

When Cuyler furnished his concluding pinch hit it was the fourth time the Cubs had charged into the lead. They led in the first and the Giants evened it in the second. The Cubs were back in front in the fourth. In the fifth they dropped one run behind. But in the sixth Bill Jurges exploded a homer with a teammate on, and the Cubs were back heading the procession by one run. That's the way the score stayed until the Giants tied it in the ninth, only to lose out a moment later. But in between had been a nerve chilling eighth inning in which Warneke staved off disaster.

Cuyler Does His Stuff.

The Giant pitcher who made the fatal blunder in the ninth was Al [Lefty] Smith. He entered the game in this inning because Hal Schumacher, the starter, had been removed for a pinch hitter. After getting the first batter to face him, Smith picked up an easy bounder from Chuck Klein and there was no reason to hurry, but he did. He sailed a wide throw past Terry, and Klein went to second. There was a lull while Babe Herman was looking over three strikes, but Cuyler followed with his line single past Critz, and Klein was over the plate while the throw in was still on its way.

Cuyler's decisive hit in the ninth was a fitting conclusion for a day of Giant baiting in which he featured. It was his single that scored the run off Schumacher in the opening inning. And it was a single by Ki that drove in the run that put the Cubs ahead, 2 to 1, in the fourth. Babe Herman, with a pair of singles and a double, was equally as busy at bat, but it so happened that only one of the Babe's safeties figured in the run collection.

Cubs Lucky in First.

Luck in all its splendor beamed on the Cubs in the first inning, and that was why they were able to pick up a run. With one out, Hack bounced a double past Ryan, who appeared to be taking a nap. Schumacher dispensed with Klein on a pass, but wasn't that generous with Babe Herman. He fanned the Babe. Cuyler bounced one directly at Terry, and the manager was just about to grab it when the ball took an unexpected hop over his head for a bargin single. Hack scored and Klein took third on the hit. Hartnett wasn't able to prolong the sport.

Bush didn't yield a hit in the first two innings, but Mancuso doubled to left to open the third, and this became a run with the assistance of an error. After the double Schumacher bunted. There was ample time to nip Mancuso going to third, but Bush fumbled long enough to lose both runners. Moore followed with a long drive that Babe Herman took in after a hard sprint, and Mancuso scored after the catch. A forceout on Critz' roller and three strikes for Terry closed the inning.

Babe Romps Home.

The Cubs tossed away a possible scoring chance in the third when Billy Herman opened with a single and foolishly attempted to stretch it into a double. They made up for this, however, in the fourth. Babe Herman started with a two bagger against the left field fence and scored almost immediately on Cuyler's single to left center. Ki stole second as Hartnett fanned. Hurst then walked, but neither Jurges nor Bush could aid the cause.

Four hits were turned loose by the

TIGERS ADD TO LEAD; DEFEAT SENATORS TWICE

Take First Game, 9-6; Win Second, 8-6.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers strengthened their hold on first place in the American league today by defeating the Washington Senators in a double header, 9 to 6 and 8 to 6. The victories gained Detroit a half game in the standing over the Yankees, who also won.

The first game went an extra inning to be finally settled when a Tiger outburst of hits produced five runs, mainly at the expense of Alvin Crowder who failed as a relief pitcher. Again in the final game one big inning sent Detroit off on a scoring spree. This, however, came in the first, when six men crossed the plate.

Johnny Stone banged out two home runs for Washington in the second contest, one in the eighth and the second in the ninth. Joe Kuhel, the Senators' first baseman, suffered a broken ankle in the first game and probably will be lost to the team for a month. He was hurt attempting to steal second. Score:

YANKEES, 6; INDIANS, 3.

New York, June 23.—(AP)—One sharp burst of hitting in the first inning gave the Yankees a 6 to 3 victory over the Cleveland Indians today in the fifth and deciding game of their series.

The Yanks pounded Oral Hildebrand in that first inning, drove him from the mound before a man had been retired, and scored four runs. The rest of the way they breezed along behind the effective pitching of young Johnny Murphy.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY

CUBS SCORE ON CUYLER'S HIT IN 9TH TO WIN, 5-4

Giants in the fifth, but only three of them figured in the scoring of two runs by which the champions moved into a 3 to 2 lead. The trouble began with Ryan's dinky single to Hack, who threw wild to first. Ryan went to second on the error and to third on Mancuso's bunt. Schumacher bounced a two bagger off the left field wall, Ryan scoring. Moore rolled to Hurst, but Critz beat out a single to Jurges, and Schumacher registered. Then Terry singled and Critz moved to third, but Bush took care of Ott on strikes.

The lead started to change hands again when Hurst walked after Hartnett had been thrown out by Critz in the sixth. Then Mr. Jurges appeared. Schumacher's first pitch to him was high and a bit inside, but Bill apparently had his mind made up to swing at whatever came and he didn't change. The swing was so effective that the ball sailed over the left field bricks, Bill followed Hurst across the plate, and the Cubs were out in front, 4 to 3. After the homer Bush drew a pass, but the next two gentlemen popped out.

Warneke to the Rescue.

The first indication of Bush's decline in the eighth was a pass to Terry at the start of the inning. When Ott also walked, Manager Grimm didn't hesitate about exercising his authority. He waved Warneke into action. Vergez's attempt to sacrifice proved a break for the Cubs. The bunt bounced straight to Warneke, who wheeled and threw to third to force Terry. O'Doul batted for Watkins and bounced to Hurst. Then Ryan flied to Cuyler and the threat was erased for the moment.

Warneke invited trouble in the ninth by walking Grantham, who batted for Schumacher with one out. Moore pushed a dinky single past Hurst and Grantham took third. Warneke felt a bit safer when Critz bounced to Hack and Grantham was nipped between third and home. Then Terry singled to center on the first pitch, scoring Moor with the tying run and sending Critz to third. An intentional pass was deemed the right way to be rid of Ott. Vergez slapped a soft liner to Billy Herman for the third out. Then the Cubs ended it in their half.

MALONE, TINNING TODAY

The Brooklyn Dodgers will be at Wrigley field today for a double header starting at 1:30 p. m. Pat Malone and Bud Tinning will try to take care of the Cubs' pitching chores. Van Lingle Mungo, the demon speedball pitcher, will be ace of the Dodgers' starters.

To safeguard against possible aggravation of his side injury Guy Bush, before starting yesterday, had his torso wrapped in 25 yards of Trainer Andy Lotshaw's very best adhesive tape.

Travis Jackson started at short for the Giants, but was attacked by stomach pains in the second inning, so retired. Ryan then moved to short and Vergez went to his former job at third.

Bill Jurges is sort of s o r r y the Giants have left town. In the first game Bill went hitless, but in the subsequent three he delivered six hits, two of them homers. In the four games he was at bat 13 times, scored six runs himself and was credited with driving in the same number.

White Sox Get Pair.

Chicago finally got to Welch to avert a shutout in the eighth. Shea singled to start the inning, but Gallivan and Uhalt flied out. Haas singled to center, and Bonura got a single when his hopper to Lary took a bad bounce and went into left field. Shea scored on the play. Haas scored when Simmons doubled to the center field wall, but Boken rolled out to end the inning.

JONES PITCHES TODAY

Boston, Mass., June 23.—[Special.]—George Earnshaw was scheduled to pitch the series final for the White Sox against the Red Sox today, but he turned up with a sore arm. He says the ailment is a minor one, but he will not see action for a couple of days.

Sam Jones, author of six victories this season, and the standout White Sox pitcher of the year, will start the series at Yankee stadium tomorrow. Jones has faced the Yanks once before. He retired after seven innings, Wyatt losing the game in the fourteenth.

The Sox had to make haste in getting out of town. They rushed in cabs for the 6 o'cloc ktrain for New York immediately after the game.

Charlie Ruffing is expected to face the Sox tomorrow. His last start was a one hit victory over Cleveland. He has broken even in two starts against the tail-enders.

President Lou Comiskey tried to give his club good luck in the series final. He drove to New York with his daughter, Dorothy, early in the morning. Four of the five Sox victories before today were scored when the president was absent.

A heavy downpour of rain which lasted until after noon held today's crowd down. The game might have been postponed, but Business Manager Eddie Collins of Boston has the pennant fever, and he wanted to meet the Sox while they're in their present weakened stat.

Dundee, Nebo Head Week's Boxing Cards

Chicago fans will have their pick of eight professional boxing cards this week. Shows will be presented at White City and Marigold Gardens tomorrow, Western stadium and Mills stadium on Tuesday, Sparta stadium Wednesday, and at Northwest stadium Friday.

Two of the best cards are scheduled at Mills and Sparta. Vince Dundee, middleweight champion, will fight Hayden [Young] Stuhley of Kewanee, Ill., in a 10 round overweight contest at Mills Tuesday and Frank Sigilio, promising Cicero lightweight, is paired against Pete Nebo of Key West, Fla., at Sparta for 10 rounds Wednesday.

Beats Jeby at Stadium.

Dundee will be making his second local appearance since he won a 15 round decision over Lou Brouillard at Boston Oct. 20 with the 160 pound title at stake. He whipped Ben Jeby in 10 rounds at the Chicago Stadium Feb. 16. He has won other nontitle matches from Joe Kaminski at Holyoke, Mass., March 12 and Al McCoy at Boston March 22.

Sigilio will attempt to keep his record clean of defeats against Nebo, who will be his strongest opponent in 17 professional starts.

Nebo's Record Good.

Nebo, who is 27 years old, has been boxing since he was 16. During his career, he has been knocked down once. Pete is the type of fighter who may defeat Sigilio. He is an aggressive fighter who uses a crouch similar to that employed by Billy Petrolle, from which he unleashes powerful punches with both hands. Although he lost a twelve round battle to Champion Barney Ross, Feb. 7, and another to Tony Canzoneri, March 1, at Kansas City, Mo., his showings were highly praised.

Young Rightmeier will make his Chicago debut in an eight round fight against Dave Barry at White City. Rightmeier, who has lost only one fight in three years, hopes to score a triumph and pave the way for a match with Leo Rodak. Promoter Johnny Coulon intends to pair the Sioux City fighter against Jimmy Christy if he wins tomorrow with a Rodak contest hinging on its result.

REDS WIN FIRST DOUBLE HEADER FROM PHILLIES

Take Opening Game, 2-1; Capture 2d, 4-3.

Cincinnati, O., June 23.—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds won their first double header of the season today, defeating the Phillies, 2 to 1 and 4 to 3.

Doubles won both games. In the first, Lombardi doubled in the ninth with two out and one on to win. In the second game Koenig doubled with two out and Slade on, and Bottomley singled to score Koenig and put the Reds into the lead they retained.

The result left the Reds heading into a double header with the Boston Braves tomorrow after their most successful series of 1934, in which they won four of six games played against the Phils. Score:

As the Giants again lost to Chicago the Cardinals' victory left them only two games behind the league leaders with whom they open a four game series tomorrow.

Leslie Munns had held St. Louis to three hits in five innings before he cracked in the sixth. Bill Hallahan, who pitched only one inning, was credited with the victory, although Dizzy Dean did the best work by protecting the one run lead through the last three innings. Score:

RAIN POSTPONES FINAL IN COLLEGE TENNIS TOURNEY

New York, June 23.—(AP)—The final singles match for the eastern intercollegiate tennis championship was postponed today. The finalists, Gene Mako, southern California, and Jack Tidball, American intercollegiate champion from the University of California at Los Angeles, will clash tomorrow.

Because of heavy rains last night and this morning, the tournament committee announced at noon that postponement was in order. Then, about 2 o'clock, the scheduled starting time, the sun came out and the courts were playable. Tidball was on hand, but Mako, staying with friends in South Orange, N. J., could not be reached.

Mako, the 18 year old sensation of the week's play at the Richmond County Country club, also will take part in the doubles final tomorrow. With Phil Castlen as a partner, Mako will oppose the Harvard team of S. Ellsworth Davenport III. and Carl Helmholz.

CANZONERI AND KLICK EAGER TO MEET ROSS

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Tony Canzoneri and Frankie Klick, who meet in a lightweight elimination bout at Ebbets field Wednesday night, are united in their denunciation of Barney Ross' idea of fighting Jimmy McLarnin a return match for the welterweight championship.

"Ross must defend the lightweight championship first," is the keynote of the plaints registered by both combatants.

Canzoneri declares the time has come for Ross to defend the lightweight title or relinquish it.

"Whether I beat Klick or not, I maintain that Ross owes it to the fans to defend his lightweight championship before he engages in another welterweight title match," said Tony. "According to the rules of the boxing authorities, the time limit in which he is required to risk it has expired."

"I waived my right to fight Ross for the lightweight title to permit him to meet McLarnin," said Klick. "If he persists in talking business with McLarnin before meeting me, I'll assert my rights and claim the lightweight championship after I beat Canzoneri."

Mata Hari Wins Illinois Oaks by Three Lengths as Washington Park Racing Season Closes

DIXIANA STABLE'S THREE YEAR OLD LEADS ALL THE WAY IN RUNNING OFF WITH MILE AND AN EIGHTH RACE FOR FILLIES AT WASHINGTON PARK. At the start Mata Hari breaks fast and dashes away from her three rivals in the Illinois Oaks. The fleet miss at one time was eight lengths in front. At the finish Mata Hari has an advantage of three lengths over Dust Girl, which came in three-quarters of a length ahead of Long Bit. Marcella H. was a distant fourth. E. Steffen piloted Mata Hari to her victory over a slow track. The racing colony now will move to Arlington Park, where a thirty day meeting opens tomorrow.

MATA HARI JUST LEAVES 3 RIVALS STANDING IN MUD

Fleet Filly Easy Winner in Illinois Oaks.

A parade, with Mata Hari galloping along in front all the way, was the outcome of the eighth running of the Illinois Oaks at Washington Park yesterday afternoon.

A crowd of 12,000 thrilled at the sight of the magnificent thoroughbred and it gave her an ovation when the race had been decided. That was the only thrill in the race, for Mata Hari was so far in front most of the time the outcome was never in doubt.

The granddaughter of Man o' War, prima donna of the American turf ever since she came to the races, toyed with her three rivals from start to finish. She beat them away from the barrier. She pulled out into a lead of eight lengths going down the back stretch. She took things a bit easy in the last furlong, and won by three lengths.

Dust Girl Is Second.

Dust Girl, from the Shandon farm stable, finished second, three-quarters of a length in front of Long Bit, which was third. Marcella H., the only other starter, finished a dozen lengths back of the three leaders.

Mata Hari, after failing to beat Cavalcade and the other colts of her age, began a campaign in the Oaks to capture the 3 year old filly championship. After her easy victory she appeared to have that title clinched.

The race was worth $1,905 to the Dixiana stable. It was the second victory Mata Hari has scored this year. She ran a good race but was out of the money in the Kentucky Derby. She came back a few weeks later and won the $10,000 Illinois Derby at Aurora. She was beaten off in her efforts to whip Cavalcade in the American Derby and in the Detroit Derby.

Better Than Rose of Sharon?

Her easy victory in the Illinois Oaks enrolls her name alongside such noted mares as Black Maria, Rose of Sharon, and Snowflake, which were earlier winners of the Oaks run at Washington Park.

Mata Hari scored her triumph more easily than any of them. The argument as to whether Mata Hari is greater than Black Maria and Rose of Sharon were when they were in their prime will go on for weeks and weeks. A lot of good solid racing people are of the opinion that either Black Maria or Rose of Sharon would have run over Mata Hari had they romped into the stretch behind her yesterday.

The Dixiana filly was the shortest priced favorite of the Washington Park season, there being hardly any backing for any other filly in the race. She paid $2.68 to win, and $2.24 to place. Dust Girl paid $2.58 to place. Show mutuels were not sold on the race.

Moved to Outside Again.

Mata Hari delayed the start for five minutes when she refused to line up and be docile alongside the girl chums who were there with her. Finally she was taken to the outside of the gate, a position from which she has started in nearly all her races this year.

After moving Mata Hari to the outside of the gate Starter Harry Morrissey moved the other three starters to the stalls on the extreme outside and the field was away in perfect alignment. Mata Hari outran Dust Girl to the clubhouse turn and was in front from there until the finish.

After they straightened out in this order going down the back stretch the order of the running was never changed. Long Bit drew up dangerously close to Dust Girl soon after the stretch run started and a fight was on for second place. Mata Hari was skimming along in front and not worrying about this skirmish. Dust Girl outgamed Long Bit and the field sailed on home in the same order it was in a dozen strides after the start was made.

Cuts Out Fast Pace.

The track was slow and drying out, yet Mata Hari was at the quarter in :24 3-5. She reeled off the half mile in :48, and the six furlongs in 1:14, never being urged at any stage of the journey. She ran the mile in 1:41 2-5, then slowed up to complete the distance in 1:55 1-5.

Steffen did not touch her with his whip until they were within a dozen strides of the finish line. Just one flash of the leather sent Mata Hari on into a new burst of speed as the finish line was reached.

MISS FLIP, following early pace closely, rushed into a long lead on turn and, continuing strongly under restraint, was eased up. MINT MEMORIES, slow to reach her stride and working her way forwardly between horses, was no match for winner. LADY LA MARNE, far back in early stages, moved up quickly on outside and then tired.

HAPPEN, capably handled and following leaders under steady restraint, responded readily when called upon at stretch turn and, wearing down leaders, was under mild pressure to end. I SAY had good early speed, went to front when TED CLARK tired, but could not withstand winner. SERGEANT D appeared to flounder in going and passed tired horses without being held in hand.

MARSHALL FIELD HORSE RUNS DEAD HEAT IN ENGLAND

WINDSOR, England, June 23.—(AP)—Marshall Field's Lumiere, at odds of 11 to 2, today ran a dead heat with E. C. Nolan's Willowhead, 100 to 30, in the Nimble Plate for 2 year olds at five furlongs. J. Dickie's Orange Peril, 6 to 5, was third in a driving finish, three-quarters of a length back. Eleven ran.

Effaceable, owned by the American, Mrs. Clornette Glorney and running at odds of 11 to 4, won the Robert Wilmot handicap plate at one and a quarter miles by a half length from J. A. Dewar's Estate Duty, favorite at 10 to 11. ...

DWYER STAKES TO ROSE CROSS BY SIX LENGTHS

Growler Second; Singing Wood Third.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—The first major success for the recently organized Manhasset stable of Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson and her friend Mrs. Thomas Laughlin, was scored at Aqueduct today when 10,000 persons saw Rose Cross win the historic Dwyer stakes. Mrs. Payson is the daughter of Mrs. Payne Whitney, from whom she received Rose Cross.

The colt is by St. Germans, which sired Twenty Grand. The stallion was imported to his country by the late Payne Whitney. Rose Cross won by six lengths in the mile and a half. He was the 11 to 10 favorite in a field of five and earned $4,090. The time was 2:32.

Second was H. W. Maxwell's Growler, one of three which ran coupled in the betting. Two lengths back of Growler came Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, second choice at 8 to 5. Singing Wood was beaten decisively after being a contender for a mile and an eighth. P. C. Phipp's Cleves and Wheatley stable's Carry-over coupled in the betting with Growler, finished four and five, respectively. The entry was 9 to 2 after opening at 4 to 1.

Singing Wood and Rose Cross opened at 6 to 5, but the belief in many quarters that the former would not stay for a mile and a half sent his price up to 8 to 5 while Rose Cross' adds shortened to 11 to 10. There was comparatively little backing for the three horse entry.

SPRINGSTEEL WINS

Salem, N. H., June 23.—(AP)—S. W. Labrot's 5 year old Springsteel equaled the track record today in winning the Granite State handicap, $10,000 added inaugural feature of the New Hampshire Breeders' association. Springsteel won by a length and a half from Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Dark Winter. Tick On, favored in the betting with Mr. Khayyam, took third with four lengths to spare.

Springsteel traveled the mile and sixteenth in 1:44 4-5, equaling Glastonbury's record breaking performance last year. C. V. Whitney's Routabout placed fourth and Mr. Khayyam, making his first start since he was fouled by Equipoise at Belmont last month, finished a poor ninth, although he got away nicely.

J. Burke got the Labrot gelding away in front and he had the race well in hand passing the first post. Tick On tried to challenge coming around the last turn, but Don Meade was late making his bid and failed to even threaten the Kilmer horse, who chased Springsteel throughout all of the half mile.

parade to take part in the renewal of the Hyde Park stakes. On July 4 the Stars and Stripes Handicap, carrying an added money prize of $10,000, will be the offering. This is expected to mark Equipoise's first appearance of the year in Chicago. Among his rivals will be Mr. Khayyam, Burgoo King, Tick On, Ladysman and probably the far western stars, Gallant Sir and Plucky Play.

Three days later on July 7, the Lassie stakes, which will have a gross value of about $35,000, will be run. On July 14 comes the $45,000 classic in which Peace Chance will get his chance to overthrow Cavalcade in the latter's spectacular dash toward the 3 year old championship.

The $10,000 Arlington Handicap will be the attraction on July 21. This probably will develop into another skirmish between Equipoise and his numerous rivals. Then the meeting will wind up with the Futurity on July 28. It will have a gross value of more than $50,000 and will be the second richest race run in America this year. Only the Futurity stakes at Belmont to be run in September tops it in value.

Totalizator betting is offered at only four tracks in America. Besides Arlington Park this system of wagering is in vogue at Hialeah Park in Florida, Pimlico in Maryland and at Rockingham Park near Boston.

POLICE TEAMS OPEN BASEBALL SERIES TODAY

Capt. Patrick Harding will lead the north side police baseball team against a picked south side police team in the first of a three game series at Comiskey park this afternoon. The south side team will be under the leadership of Capt. John Hogan from the Hyde Park police station.

Proceeds from the three game series will go into a fund which provides for the care of widows and orphans of policemen killed in the line of duty. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

PRINCESS WINS YACHT RACE TO MICHIGAN CITY

Sails Are Nearly as Good as Motor to Schooner.

Princess, Q class schooner, owned and sailed by Edmund Jedzrykowski and Carl Kallgren, won the Columbia Yacht club's annual cruise to Michigan City yesterday. Fleetest of the 63 sailboats entered in the race of 33 nautical miles on Lake Michigan, the Princess finished with an elapsed time of 8 hours 12 minutes and 29 seconds.

The Princess was so well favored by the wind and was handled so skilfully that she almost headed the first of the 20 power cruisers to finish—Dan Dunn, owned by Norman Marsh. Starting from the Van Buren street gap yesterday morning, Princess and the other contestants were delayed by the prevailing calm. Five hours after the start, however, a southwest breeze sprang up, and the skippers of the Princess took full advantage of it.

Jedzrykowski and Kallgren were awarded the Universia time trophy, chief prize in the Michigan City competition. The schooner's corrected time was 7:45:19.

Fortune, owned by Kenneth Brown of the Chicago Yacht club, was first in the race for universal yawls, schooners, and ketches. Its time was 8.35:17. The winner among the class A cruisers was Robert Benedict's Bagheera, although Freedom, owned by Sterling Morton, had the best elapsed time. The corrected times put Freedom in fourth position.

In the Seawanhaka class the sloop Springtime, owned by Gus Nyland, had a margin of more than 13 minutes, uncorrected time, over the second place Invader, owned by Orton Klenze. The summaries:

YACHTS RAINBOW, YANKEE MEET IN 1ST RACE TODAY

Newport, R. I., June 23.—(AP)—The tests to determine which of three big sloops will meet T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, latest British challenger for the America's cup, will be resumed off here tomorrow with Yankee, the Boston candidate, sailing against Rainbow, Harold S. Vanderbilt's newly constructed entry, for the first time.

Threatening weather caused the America's cup committee to postpone a scheduled contest today, although the committee's forebodings failed to materialize. The sun shone brightly all afternoon. Yankee and Rainbow took advantage of the break in the weather and went out for practice cruises. All who saw Yankee agreed that the Boston boat's sail fitted more comfortably than heretofore.

While Rainbow and Yankee match tacks, Weetamoe, Frederick Prince's entry, and Vanitie, Gerard Lambert's old cup candidate but now ineligible, will hold a contest over the same route.

Tomorrow's events will end the series of preliminary races, and the cup candidates will not meet again until July 7.

FOUR EVENTS ON EVANSTON RACE PROGRAM TODAY

Four events, three of them speed contests and the other a race for junk cars, comprise this afternoon's program of auto racing at the Evanston Motor speedway, Lincoln and Devon avenues. Several new drivers will compete. One is Bill Phillips of Chicago.

Thirty-three entries have been received by Director Len Bernard. Two races will be at 10 laps and one at 30 laps. The junk event will be at 5 laps.

MAX BAER the Fighting Clown

BY EDWARD BURNS.

THERE have been many women in Max Baer's life, as you may have heard before now, but the only one he ever got around to marrying is Dorothy Dunbar. He met Miss Dunbar in Reno, Nev., in the fall of 1930, and married her in the same throbbing city on July 8, 1931. On Oct. 3, 1933, Miss Dunbar got a Juarez, Mexico, divorce, without alimony.

Before Dorothy Dunbar had become a movie queen she had been a Montana school teacher. She also had been the wife of Tommy Wells, a wealthy Minneapolis business man.

Dorothy's beauty and charm, her connection with the movies, had their part in causing Max to fall wildly in love with her. But her early sympathetic patience as a Montana schoolmarm probably had a bigger influence on Max's life than any of her more glamorous attributes.

Dorothy Finds She Has New Pupil.

Her schoolmarm days in the past, Dorothy had a handsome rough boy on her hands—a pupil who wanted to learn how the swells handled their knives and forks, etc., etc. Max never has been much for rules in the prize ring, but he had a vague notion that there existed a vast set of rules governing the niceties and elegancies of polite living. Max knew it wasn't proper to gedunk and a few elementary ones like that, but he was curious about the finer points. And then there was much to be learned about the upper grades of language. Max knew a lot of words, but was short on real drawing room jargon. He still was tossing his adjectives with an overhand sock, like he throws his favorite punch and like he used to swing his meat cleaver. Well, Dorothy fixed that up, too.

The records reveal that the more Dorothy taught Max about the finer things in life the harder he was to handle. The social charms Max had learned appealed to other women. Between the marriage and the divorce there were six formal separations, followed, of course, by rapturous reconciliations, except in the case of the predi[illegible]

Before she got her mail order divorce at Juarez, Dorothy twice had sued for divorce, once at Sacramento and once in Los Angeles. She accused Baer of associating with other women, with punching her, and that he had "borrowed" $20,000 which she had obtained from her former husband, Mr. Wells. In Max's memoirs it has been pointed out that troubles with women have cost him at least $100,000, but, unless it escaped our notice, there has been no notation of a $20,000 credit in the lady ledger.

In July last year Dorothy and Max announced themselves as reconciled and the actress dropped her then current divorce action. In September, however, Dorothy accused Max in a public statement of "going Hollywood," a very serious charge. She said she had had him and certain movie actresses watched by private detectives and she mentioned no names "just to be charitable" rather than because of any lack of information.

While we were spending our vacation in Hollywood last February it seemed that everybody we met wanted to tell about what Mrs. Baer's detectives saw. But we hate gossip and always turned a deaf ear to such talk. Once or twice, though, we didn't get our ears plugged in time. What we heard on such occasions prompts us to say, if you'll take our judgment, that Max, whatever he may lack in constancy, sure knows how to pick 'em.

Reconciliation No. 7 Isn't Likely.

Max has said since he became champion that there is no likelihood of a seventh reconciliation between him and Dorothy. And there's nothing out of the west from Dorothy to indicate that Max doesn't know what he's talking about in that regard.

In the meantime Max is giving his devoted mother a great play in New York. He's been champion for ten days and only one gal has gone to court agin Max during that time. And that an old case. Shirley LaBelle busted out on a prechampion rap the other day. We'll speak of Shirley, and Olive, and Bee tomorrow.

Uzcudun Seeks Bout with Baer in Spain

MADRID, June 23.—[U. P.]—Paulino Uzcudun, veteran heavyweight, has added his challenge to those who want to fight Max Baer for the world heavyweight title. He offered to post 400,000 pesetas for a Baer fight in Spain. Paulino made this offer last night at bouts in which Ignacio Ara, middleweight contender, outpointed Carlos Merini, Italy.

WOOD BEATS SHIELDS

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—With victories on consecutive days over America's first and third ranking tennis players in the championships of London at the Queen's club, Sidney B. Wood Jr. today appeared to have established himself as the chief American hope to win back the Davis cup this year.

Wood, Wimbledon champion in 1931, gave one of the best exhibitions of his career as he overpowered Frank X. Shields, No. 1 player of the United States and a teammate, 11-9, 6-0, in the final today. Yesterday he defeated Lester Stoefen, third ranking American, 2-6, 18-16, 6-4.

British experts were unanimous in acclaiming him, and Fred Perry, leader of the English team which will defend the cup against the interzone winner, said of Wood:

NOW'S BEST TIME TO TRY CASTING FOR BLACK BASS

Michigan Open Season to Start Tomorrow.

BY BOB BECKER.

If there ever is a time when the black bass fisherman can parade all his bait casting or fly rod lures with considerable assurance of success it is right now at the beginning of the 1934 fishing season. The first weeks of the open season on large and small mouthed black bass might be described as a style parade of lures, because, as a rule, the fish are still in fairly shallow water, not too "gun shy" to strike at plugs, metal lures, spinners, wobblers, or what have you, and are not suffering from inertia and the July and August heat waves.

Therefore, the fisherman can rig up his casting outfit, put on all kinds of artificial lures, and fool his fish without resorting to live bait, which is not only messy, but also not so much fun to use in outwitting a big bass.

Opens in Michigan Tomorrow.

Wisconsin's black bass season is already under way. It opened last week. Tomorrow Michigan bass fishermen can get under way. The northern zone of Minnesota, the last part of that state to permit the taking of bass, started the 1934 season last Thursday. Minnesota specifies six bass as the creel limit for one day.

Inasmuch as black bass invariably stay in comparatively shallow water during the early part of the season the bait caster resorting to artificial lures which he casts along the shore line, around stumps and logs and among the weeds or lily pads, has a wonderful chance to put a lure right in front of the nose of a scrappy bass. This is why you hear so many residents and resort owners in the northland urging bass fishermen to come early in the season.

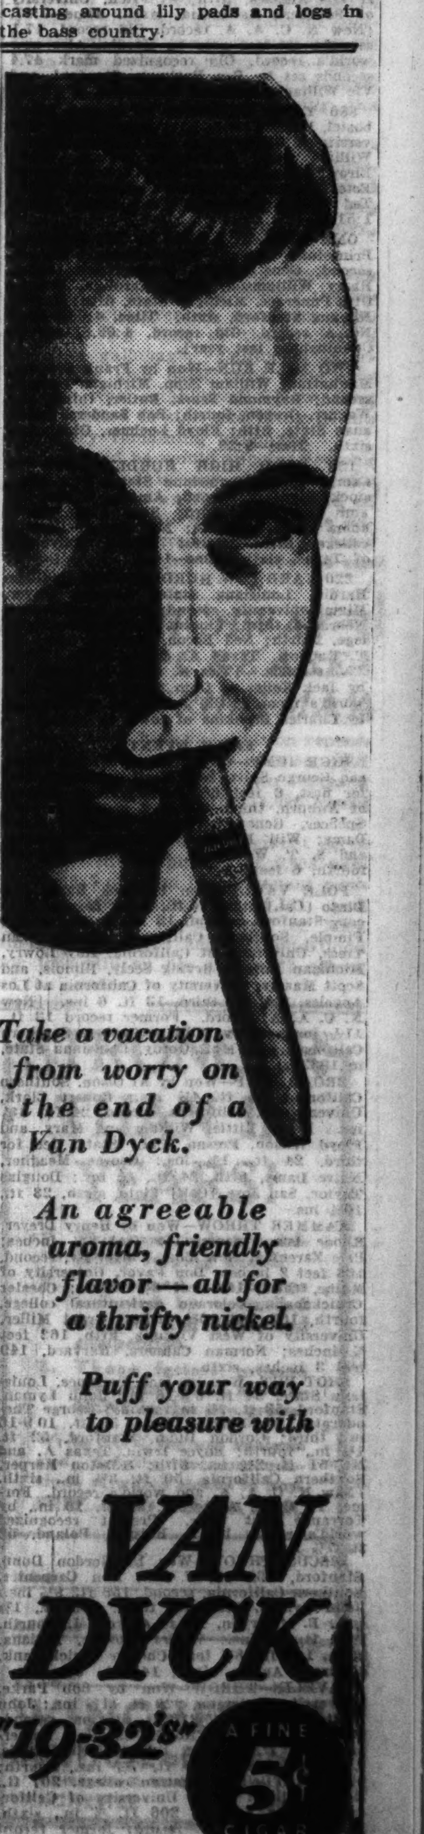
Get 'Em in Shallow Water!

As a rule this early in the season fishing means the hot midsummer sun will send the fish into deep water. Instead of feeding and loafing around the lily pads, the rushes and the logs in shallow water, the smart fish take to a cool "cellar" down deep on a bar or in a submerged weed bed.

When the angler faces this situation he has more work ahead of him to connect with fish during the day. However, around evening on quiet days a fly rod with floating bugs or other lures which are fished dry, frequently mops up on the fish which come up from the depths to feed upon insects.

The wise fisherman who is going after bass this week will take both his fly and bait casting rods with him. And if he doesn't know how to use a fly rod he'll start to learn this month.

One can put together a very serviceable fly fishing outfit for no more than it costs to assemble a good bait casting combination. In fact, one veteran angler insists that it takes fewer lures to fly cast for bass than it does to bait cast. A couple of floating bugs, two or three wet flies and maybe a spinner or two [which we always hate to use and rarely do!] are all the lures a fellow needs for his first day of casting around lily pads and logs in the bass country.



STANFORD WINS N.C.A.A. CROWN; RECORDS FALL

with Cunningham, gasping and exhausted, faltering in the stretch. Cunningham managed to make a race of it through more than half the distance, however. Jack Fleming of Northwestern, and Bloor of Ohio State, also were shut out.

Rely On Movies.

The finish in the 120 yard high hurdles, won by George Fisher of Louisiana, was so close A. A. Stagg, referee of the meet, announced the order of places as taken by the judges, would stand only if corroborated by the official automatic motion picture of the finish later in the evening. Fisher was given first place over Sam Klopstock of Stanford, in :14 4-10, with Amsden Oliver, a stringy Negro athlete from Miami [Ohio] university third. Oliver was one of the few double place men of the day, scoring 14 points with a second in the low hurdles besides his third in the high hurdles sticks.

Hardin Beats Fuqua.

Hardin, defending his national collegiate 440 championship, defeated Ivan Fuqua of Indiana in 47 seconds, establishing a new meet record. Hardin held the old record, :47 1-10, set last year. Fuqua was a fraction of a second behind.

The pace set by this pair ran Jimmy Luvalle, University of California at Los Angeles, into fifth place.

Hardin came fast to catch the low hurdle field at next to the last barrier in a finish in which he, Oliver and Fred Lambertus of Nebraska were practically abreast for the last 20 yards. Hardin's strong spurt carried him to first place, and a new world record time by a matter only of inches. The time of :22 7-10 was set once before in national collegiate competition by Jack Keller of Ohio State in 1932, but has never been officially accepted as a world's mark.

Metcalfe carried the colors of Marquette university to tie for fourth place with Indiana through his two victories. The ex-Tilden Tech star defeated Charlie Parsons Jr. of Southern California, son of the old time sprint star, in :09 7-10 in the 100 yard dash and was 8 yards ahead of Parsons in winning the 220 in :20 9-10.

U.S. Golfers Battle Field in British Open

SANDWICH, England, June 23.—(AP)—It looks like the four American entrants against the field in the British open golf tournament starting Monday over the Royal St. George's course.

It is a small but mighty array—Denny Shute, defending his 1933 title; Gene Sarazen, who preceded him on the throne; MacDonald Smith, a contender although never a titleholder for over 20 years, and Joe Kirkwood, the Australian.

"I think we have a 50-50 chance to come through," Sarazen told the Associated Press, after he had shot a 74, two over par, in a high wind.

"I am well satisfied with my game and I'm confident I'll give a good account of myself. Mac Smith also is going great and you know he must be confident or he wouldn't have made the long trip over here.

"Shute still is below his best form, but he was a way off his game in a couple of tournaments just before last year's open and then suddenly 'got right,' tied Craig Wood and won the playoff. Kirkwood is a dangerous player any time, any place."

Sarazen lists A. H. Padgham, Henry Cotton, Percy Alliss and Archie Compston as the leading British threats to regain the title no Briton has won since 1923.

Sarazen Quoted at 6 to 1.

Sarazen himself is the choice of the bookmakers at 6 to 1 with Padgham second.

The Royal St. George's course over which the tournament proper will be played, following the qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday, is in fine shape despite the recently broken drouth.

The winds, however, play tricks and like St. Andrews Sarazen says, "It's a new course every time you play it."

Most observers believe that par or even three or four strokes above 288 will win. Walter Hagen won here in 1928 with 292 and the course has been little changed since then. Sarazen was runner up that year.

A pro-amateur tournament also will be held July 2. Jack Johnston, Brae Burn professional, will award an extra prize of $100 to the pro or amateur who breaks the course record of 69, established last year by Tommy Armour.

OLIN DUTRA AND MISS HICKS PLAY IN MATCH TODAY

Chicagoans will have their first opportunity to see two golfers who have been making news within the last few weeks at the Mohawk Country club, located near Bensenville, this afternoon. One will be Olin Dutra, the big Californian who recently made a dramatic finish to win the national open championship at Merion, and the other is Helen Hicks, Long Island girl, who formerly held the national women's title and who has just become America's first business women golfer. She recently signed a five year contract with a Chicago sporting goods concern.

Dutra, now barnstorming with Walter Hagen, will pair with Tommy Armour of Medinah against Hagen and Lew Waldron, the club professional, in an eighteen hole exhibition match. Miss Hicks will give an exhibition of shots, and will then join the four men, playing the last nine holes with them to make a fivesome, an innovation in this type of match.

GOLF STUDENTS TO GET LESSONS IN GENERALSHIP

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

THE TRIBUNE'S second annual free golf school, which is now entering its fourth week, becomes an open forum Tuesday night with the holding of the men's class, one which will continue through the rest of the week's lessons, those for women, couples, and juniors.

During the first three weeks of the school, the professionals of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, sponsor of the project, have concentrated purely on the mechanics of golf—the swing, the grip, and the pivot. Having contented themselves that a majority of their pupils have mastered these details to a point where they may now play a full round of golf with the makings of a sound game, these pros are now inviting all golfers to attend this week's course, which will include instruction on the fine points of the game, points usually overlooked in a regular course of instruction.

All golfers in the district, regardless of whether they have attended any of the previous classes, whether they play at private clubs, daily fee courses, or municipal links, are welcome to come to this week's lessons at any one of the nineteen Daily Fee association courses. The six inner courses, where all lessons begin at 7:30 p. m., are Mid-City, Harlem, Evergreen, Big Oaks, Chicago Meadows, and Golfmoor, and the thirteen outlying courses, where classes are called at 8 p. m., are Mission Hills, Cog-Hill, Big Run, Oak Hills, Techny Fields, Walnut Hills, Twin Orchards, Indian Head, Northbrook, Vernon, Elmgate, Westgate Valley, and Hickory Hills. The class for men will be held on Tuesday night, for women on Wednesday night, for couples on Thursday night, and for juniors, boys, and girls under eighteen on Friday night.

Generalship to Be Chief Topic.

Chief among the topics to be taken up in this week's lessons, which will be devoted to the mashie, is the matter of generalship in golf, where that factor is as important as it is to a smart quarter back in football or a heady pitcher in baseball.

Knowing when and where to use the right club is the secret of every champion in golf. To the average spectator, the sight of Walter Hagen using a putter to escape from the sand of a trap or Paul Runyan choosing a spoon to flee the grass on the bank of a bunker may appear contrary to all of his conceptions, but when these two shots are completed, their conclusion in most cases vindicates the judgment of the two men making them.

The galleries who watched the recent double playoff between Harry Cooper of Chicago and Ky Laffoon of Denver for the western open championship at Peoria saw a perfect demonstration of generalship in golf. In the morning they saw both players time and again call the correct club with perfect results. Except that Cooper's putter went wrong on him, Cooper matched Laffoon shot for shot from the tees to the greens. The Peoria crowds saw Ky make his best shot of the tournament on the fifth hole of the morning round, when he drove to the rough bordering the adjacent fairway, the ball resting on a slope, with another knoll, topped by a clump of elms, providing still another obstacle to the green. Ky reconnoitered the situation at length and finally picked out a No. 7 iron, hoisting it over the trees with a full swing to within seven feet of the pin. Had he used a club with a face less lofted, the young Denver pro, might easily have missed the green completely or sent the ball among the trees blocking his vision. Cooper's subsequent victory in the afternoon round was the result of excellent judgment in choosing his irons for pitches and chip shots.

Many Stroke Saving Strategems.

Aside from choice of clubs, there are any number of other stroke saving stratagems which will aid golfers, all of which will be taken up during this week's lesson. In the matter of irons, the average player has too much of a tendency either to disparage or overestimate his own strength, with the result that he often goes far over a green on an intended shot or entirely short of it, even though he may be straight down the fairway.

Hooking wooden shots is another common ailment. Bobby Jones, when asked recently what his cure was upon discovering that he was hooking, attributed it to an overdose of upswing. He recommends concentration on hitting the ball down or along the ground. The problem of recovering from traps is still another one. Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr has had considerable success with his pupils in this predicament by likening the trap to a watermelon or apple, and the ball as a spoiled portion in the center and on the top of it. This mind picture has in most cases simplified the task of attaining the proper swing for an explosion shot, providing the pupil carries through the idea of cutting the spoiled section of the watermelon. Another aid for beginning golfers often brought out is the use of the brassie off the first four or five tees and the spoon on the corresponding fairways.

Six End Third Week Today.

All of these points of golf finesse will be brought out this week in THE TRIBUNE school, and every golfer in the district who is able to attend is invited to do so.

Six of the association courses will conclude their third week's lessons today, with a general class for all divisions. They are Vernon, Northbrook, Big Run, Chicago Meadows, Techny Fields, and Mission Hills. These classes will begin at 4 p. m.

The Daily Fee association officers will meet at Indian Head tomorrow night to decide at which courses the graduating exercises of the school will be held. The final form competition is scheduled to be held July 12, with the eighteen hole medal play tournament for all individual winners at the respective courses being held on July 14.

The writer, Guy Murchie Jr., rowed No. 7 in the Harvard crew when it defeated Yale by 1¼ lengths at New London in June, 1927. In sharp contrast was this year's race, held Friday, in which Yale defeated Harvard by three lengths in record time.

BY GUY MURCHIE JR.

The River Thames at New London. Two four mile lines of the finest yachts afloat. A hundred thousand people on the banks, on the bridges, following in trains, in automobiles. Every eye is focussed on the center and cause of all this commotion—what?

Eighteen boys in two cedar shells.

With their brown bodies trained to the minute by discipline behind those 12 foot oars, for those eighteen young men the greatest moment of their lives so far has come. During the next twenty minutes every ounce of strength they can give will send those shells through the water, while a hundred thousand people rave at them to give more—for Harvard or for Yale. For each of them the world—his whole world to date—with screaming whistles and fluttering flags, will watch to see him do well or ill.

How does he feel about it—this obscure undergraduate, flung suddenly for half an hour of this June day into such crucial importance to a hundred thousand of his fellow men?

Time for All Good Men to Row.

In a minute we are gently lowering our thin shell into the water. Hundreds of people watch us from the shore. Our outriggers have been finally tightened, and our oarlocks sealed for the race.

Then we are shoved off, with last words of good luck from the managers, launch drivers, Edgar the rigger, and old steelwool haired Bill, the boat builder, standing with paternal air on the float.

There is a slight feeling of emptiness in my stomach as we pull in easy strokes toward the starting mark. I see the familiar back of the man in front of me and my oar feels as it should, but I involuntarily glance again at my outrigger and oarlock and slide and stretcher to reassure myself that all is ready for the test.

And there, out of the corner of my eye, are all those yachts and motor launches, submarines, droning airplanes, and the observation trains on either side of the river, waiting at the line with their thousands of peering eyes.

Where's Peace and Quiet of River Now?

The quiet river that we know so well has become bedlam. All along the four mile course the yachts are crowded in shining white; big whistles bellow, small whistles toot; there is hoarse and scattered cheering.

I am startled to realize the nearness of this race for which we have been months in training. Suddenly I feel what a responsibility I have undertaken. Good God! It begins in less than five minutes!

The breeze is coming in little gusts down the course. The yacht pennants and the half mile flags are blowing in our direction. We will be bucking a head wind—which means that the race will last several minutes longer than usual.

There is the Yale shell beside us on the line, backing up to her stake boat, the men looking very efficient. However, I am glad to see that some of them show signs of nervousness, for I feel as if I were sitting on air myself instead of on a hard wooden sliding seat. My grip on my oar seems very unreliable—my numb fingers touch only emptiness.

Only a Few Seconds to Wait!

Now our shirts are off, and have been passed back to the man in the stake boat, who is holding on to our rudder to keep us in position until the start. Here comes the referee's boat, the referee with a megaphone in hand on the bow, and a dozen gayly dressed passengers. Beyond him are more launches—full of people—all eyes, eyes, eyes, on us.

The start is only a few seconds off. I wish my fingers would come to life and my stomach get back where it belongs.

One last look at my outrigger, oarlock, stretcher—the Yale men all stretched forward for the start—a whisper of "You can take 'em boys," from the stake man. We are all at full reach.

"Are you ready, Harvard?" from the referee.

Our captain nods, "Yes."

"Are you ready, Yale?"

"Ready all!"

We are all taut as fiddle strings, and with sinking stomachs as the seconds tick slowly, slowly ——

"GO!" roars the referee.

A wild splash! Our blades churn the choppy water like mill wheels, in a racing start of forty-two strokes to the minute. Dimly we are conscious of the hum of launches following us, and the roar of the crowd, and the steady "chuff, chuff" of the train starting up.

Sprinting Out in Front at Start.

I can see we are gradually pulling a little ahead of Yale, as we strain in quick strokes to gather speed before settling down to our steady four mile pace of thirty-two. We are swinging well together—forward, till our shoulders are between our knees, a quick flip up with the wrists to grip the fleeing water, and back hard—eight tugging pairs of arms, eight backs, eight driving pairs of legs—till the oar handle bounces off the chest and forward to another stroke.

I am slightly out of breath, but no longer have that numbness of before the start. In a staccato bark the coxswain is yelling out our strokes and giving us encouragement.

"Now we're goin' ahead of 'em—steady—huoo—huoo! Give her ten good ones now—one, two, three, four—now we're goin'—five——"

It is a relief to be ahead, and I breathe more easily as we settle at thirty-two, spacing out in almost even puddles as we drive ahead. The water slaps our blades as we feather, and some of it slops into the boat to swish up and down as we change our momentum with each rhythmical rush of slides.

There is the familiar black hair of Jack's neck in front of me, emitting little trickles of sweat which wind downward over his pulsating shoulder muscles.

I am not supposed to look away from the man in front of me, but cannot help hasty glances at Yale between strokes. Minutes go by. We struggle on. Yale is three-quarters of a length behind.

I feel very tired for a while and take it a little easier; I wonder if I can hold out all the way, and then soon I am more rested and can pull harder. It is a great relief to see those flags, red and blue, go sipping past every half mile.

Years go by. Where are the two mile flags? Ah, there they go at last. I think to myself, "Twelve minutes to go—only twelve minutes." Yale is a length better. I am sweating hard. My throat is dry.

Yale is gaining now. Slowly pulling up to us. Perhaps she has been saving up for a surprise. It is going to be harder than we thought. We must go faster.

Our shell is equipped with a system of little electric buzzers to be operated by the coxswain as a signal for a "silent sprint." This kind of sprint, which is revealed to the opposing crew only by our increase in speed instead of by the usual frantic yelling of the cox, is believed to have a much more devastating effect on their morale. Now is the time to spring it.

And Yale's Gaining, Yale's Gaining!

Bzzzzz—zzzzz! Away we go! Straining to our utmost, we gradually pull ahead till we have a half length of open water on the enemy. What a joy to see them struggling along behind us! We settle down again. The two and a half mile mark!

I am more tired than ever. I hear familiar grunts from Tim behind me. Yale is gaining. I see that our wake has curves in it, and wonder if the coxswain has lost us any distance by careless steering. Each foot, each inch, means everything in the world to us now.

Yale is still gaining. There is no more open water. They are pulling up with alarming ease. My breath wheezes through my throat, my body trickles with sweat. My oar seems clumsy to hold and splashes more than usual. I think for a moment that I cannot hold on.

Yale is coming slowly up. The only thought in my mind is how far have we yet to go. For a moment I don't care whether we are beaten or not. I only pray to see the finish line.

Suddenly the "stroke," seated in front of me, changes his rhythm slightly. He is excited, he has seen something. I glance at Yale. Some one in their boat has "caught a crab." His oar, twirled out of his fingers by a wave, is momentarily out of control. Numbers three and four seem to have stopped rowing. Their boat has lost speed till they recover from their confusion and set after us once more.

Beginning That Last, Long Mile.

Meanwhile we have gone into a sprint. I feel I could go ten miles now, as Yale falls back into our wake. We pull with wild joy, for there is only a mile or so more and after this unexpected happening Yale is two full lengths behind.

The taste of victory is in our blood now!

We are passing through a long, narrow lane of large and crowded yachts of every description. I can distinctly hear the shouts and whistles of the crowd.

The three mile mark!

Crack! My oar! Has it broken! I look out to see, but am relieved to find it O. K. It had evidently struck a bottle which I can see floating back in our wake. Whew! I wonder what I would have done had the oar really broken. Should I have jumped overboard?

Where is that three and a half mile flag?

I am pretty far gone now; my throat feels like the inside of a smoke stack, dry and hot. All around my stomach region feels weak—I keep going from momentum. I feel as if, were I stopped, I couldn't start again.

The only real thought I'm capable of is an insistent question as to where that three and a half mile mark is—why doesn't it come—can it have been washed away?

Yale is slowly and steadily coming up. Much as I want to beat them that idea is secondary to the much more vital need of seeing the finish line.

Zip! The three and a half mile flag!

Three minutes more to go. Everything is swimming in a fog of weakness—but the stroke must soon go up—keep on going up, to the finish.

Just One Order Now—Faster!

Yale is still gaining slowly—there's only a little open water left. Every physical reaction is swallowed up in the effort to keep going, but I can still think—this stroke must go up a little—I must pull through a little faster ——

The coxswain blows his whistle: "Forty strokes to go!" he yells.

Vaguely I hear the sirens, blowing whistles, a roar from thousands of throats, the shrill screams of women. Yale is gaining.

All that I can feel is that I must give every last drop—the sense of rhythm with a yank in it is the only thing that's left.

"Thirty strokes more!" the coxswain screams above the whistles. He counts them out, "One—Two—Three—Four—"

I can see the Yale bow opposite our stern—we are holding them about even.

"Eight—Nine—Ten—"

The stroke is going up.

Nearly forty to the minute now.

"Ten more to go!" yells the coxswain.

"Four—Five—Six—"

Between each stroke my mind wanders; I think of friends on the observation train ——

"Nine—Ten—"

Then:

"Ten more to go!!"

The cox must have misjudged it. I feel that I can hold on, but I sort of pray that I can do it. Yale can't catch us now ——

"Three—Four—"

I can say to myself hold on—only a few seconds more—nothing can stop us now!

"Three strokes to go!"

"ONE . . . TWO . . ."

Zip! The finish flag!

"Let her run!" says the coxswain.

CONSUMERS PAY 328 MILLION IN PROCESS TAXES

Farm Bureau Lists Benefit Results.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—To foot the bill for agricultural adjustment administration programs of planned production, the consumers of the nation have now been forced to pay more than 328 million dollars in processing taxes on food and clothing, it was revealed today. Of that amount, upwards of 216 millions has already been doled out to those farmers who agreed, for a price, to coöperate in the AAA experiments with artificial crop control.

With a marked note of pride, the farm administration made public today the record of its collections from the consumer and its payments to the farmer since it undertook to plan the national farm economy. In making public the figures, the administration was at pains to disclose in detail the amount paid over to farmers in each state.

Consumers' Payments Dumped.

The amount collected from consumers, however, was stated in a lump sum, leaving critics of the administration no statistical basis for pointing out that the consumers in the cities are contributing the lion's share of the money being paid out to the farm belt.

Coincident with the AAA's prideful announcement, the department of agriculture revealed that cash farm income, due in considerable part to the flood of federal benefit money into the pockets of the farmer, has been 33 per cent greater in the first five months of this year than it was during the same period of 1933.

Total cash income from the sale of farm products amounted to 2 billion 19 million dollars between January and June, the department stated, as compared with 1 billion 609 millions in the corresponding five months last year. This was an increase of 25 per cent and while the department did not so state, was understood to be attributable to the combined effect on farm prices of drouth, poor crop prospects, and AAA cuts in acreage.

U. S. Benefits Boost Income.

Adding benefits payments of 120 million dollars handed out by the AAA during the first five months of this year, the department pointed out, brings the total income to 2 billion 139 millions, an increase of 33 per cent over last year.

At the same time the AAA presented a statistical study by Dr. Louis Bean, one of Secretary Wallace's economic advisers, which found that the purchasing power of farm income in the nine months during which benefits payments have been doled out has been 25 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1932-1933.

Cash farm income between August, 1933, when benefit payments started, and A[illegible] 1934, Bean reported, was 38 per[illegible]t higher than in the similar pe[illegible]d of the previous year. But Bean [illegible]nd that during the nine mont[illegible]eriod, the price of things which [illegible]rmers must buy and the cost of s[illegible] fixed items as wages, taxes and [illegible]tgage interest, showed an increase of 11 per cent.

Estimates Purchasing Power.

Setting off this cost increase against the income gain, Bean arrived at the conclusion that the cash income of the nation's farmer has been boosted 25 per cent in terms of purchasing power since the AAA began its payment of benefit money.

"To this increase," said the economist, "the benefit payments have contributed nearly one-fifth."

"The farmer's purchasing power has increased somewhat more than the purchasing power of the country as a whole," he continued. "In the first four months of 1934 the total national money income, including the distribution of emergency funds, was about 20 per cent higher than it was in the corresponding period of 1933, but the cost of living for the country as a whole increased eight per cent, leaving a net increase of 12 per cent in the national purchasing power. This compares with an increase of 28 per cent in farm purchasing power for the same periods."

Statements Show Variance.

Bean's statement that the purchasing power of the farmer's income has increased about 28 per cent in the first four months of this year, caused some surprise in view of an official department of agriculture survey, issued on June 15, which stated that the relationship of farmer income to farmer purchasing power was at the same level as a year ago in mid-May.

"The exchange value of a given quantity of farm products for a given quantity of commodities bought by farmers declined one point to 61 per cent of the pre-war average relationship; the same as a year earlier," the department's bulletin commented on the May ratio between buying power and income.

Bean attributed to benefit payments

Canada Likes NRA for U.S., Not for Self

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Canadians say they like the NRA—for the United States but not for themselves.

Speaking yesterday at the annual meeting of the Investment Bankers' association of Canada in Murray Bay, Quebec, W. C. Pitfield, president of that body pointed out that rising operating costs for United States industry under the NRA had in many cases nullified the competitive advantage gained by Americans through depreciation of the dollar and resulted in aid for Canadian competitors.

Calling attention to the rise of the British pound and the decline of the dollar during the last twelve months, Mr. Pitfield said:

"Under ordinary conditions this change would have had an adverse effect on our trade and the only benefits would have accrued to importers and those Canadian governments, corporations and individuals with debts payable in the United States.

Codes Offset Cheaper Dollar.

"It happened, however, that the NRA codes were put in effect in the United States and the higher costs of production resulting therefrom, together with well defined selling prices, more or less completely eliminated the adverse effect of the declining value of the dollar.

"In fact, certain Canadian industries were given advantages never before attained—as for example Nova Scotia coal in the Ontario industrial market.

'It would seem, therefore, that, contrary to the old adage, we Canadians have been able to 'have our cake and eat it too.'"

Pitfield is the second prominent Canadian financier to criticise the New Deal recently. A few days ago in London, Jackson Dobbs, president of the Canadian Bankers' association, in a discussion of what he termed the New Deal "alphabet soup," said:

"Canada's climate demands something more sustaining and the majority of Canadians are too sober minded to imagine that any ingenious formula can take the place of work, thrift and respect for constituted authority, law and order coupled with common sense and willingness to trade with other countries."

McRoberts Defends Capitalism.

Samuel McRoberts, New York banker who formerly was chairman of the finance committee of Armour & Co., has published a defense of capitalism that has attracted wide interest among financiers. His remarks were orginally contained in an address given by him at Baker university, Baldwin, Kan., several days ago.

Says Mr. McRoberts:

"We hear every day questions such as, 'Has capitalism failed? Will capitalism survive?'

"Did you ever pause and ask yourself, 'What is capitalism?'

"Capitalism, of course, designates the form of our entire social organization. Obviously it is not the invention of any man or any class of men.

"Why do certain minerals cryslize into certain forms? Why does a tree take the shape it does? Why is the earth round?

"These forms are the natural reactions of matter to the opposing forces of nature. The laws of nature are immutable and unchanging. We have certain basic characteristics of human nature that appear equally unchanging. They have remained constant through all recorded history.

"Self-preservation, desire for liberty, the will to own things, the protection of offspring, the sense of fair play and the moral principle inherent in the race are some of the human characteristics reacting on the physical laws that give an inevitable form to society.

Sees Capitalism Way of Life.

"It is the way of life. The form of society all over the world from primitive savage life to the most complicated civilization of capitalism. It is the natural pattern in which society forms under the reaction of natural law to human nature.

"It can be interrupted temporarily by an intervention of sufficient power. You can stop water running downhill temporarily. Despotic power can impose an unnatural system upon society, as we have in Russia today, but it will last only as long as the despotism lasts.

"Take away this compelling force and society will immediately begin to reform in the old pattern. There is already evidence of the beginning of this process in Russia in the recognition accorded to different degrees of energy, personal efficiency and the incentive of personal gain to induce effort. They are offering prizes for efficiency and they have come back to giving the peasant a share in the surplus he produces.

"These developments are contrary to the principles of socialism and are at least an indication of the tendency to reform a natural order of society."

Report U.S. Plans to Sue Banker Nichols

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Loading its legal guns for the first basic test of the federal bank guarantee law, the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation is preparing to bring suit against the First National bank of Englewood, Ill., it was reported today.

J. M. NICHOLS.

The suit, in no way involving the condition of the bank, will be, in effect, an effort to force it into the deposit insurance corporation. Although the FDIC law has declared that all national banks must join the insurance corporation, J. M. Nichols, head of the Englewood bank, has steadily refused to do so.

Heads of the FDIC and their legal advisers have held that, regardless of Nichols' refusal, his bank is automatically covered by the federal insurance as long as it remains a national bank. They point to the provision of the law saying that all national banks and state banks which are members of the federal reserve system must join the FDIC.

Administration Silent.

Following up this line of reasoning, they hold that the contribution which the First National bank of Englewood would have to make towards the general FDIC insurance fund is a legal claim on the bank. They intend, according to reports, to start action to collect that claim through the courts.

Inquiry at the legal division of the FDIC today elicited the reply that "there is nothing to say on that case yet." It is believed that the government's suit is still in a preparatory stage.

Opponents of the FDIC point of view have argued that to force a bank to choose between continuing as a national bank and joining the FDIC is to deprive the bank of property, that is, its national character, without due process of law.

Although the Englewood bank is the outstanding example of a national bank refusing to come into the FDIC, it is not the only one. Several others, most of them small, have likewise refused.

LET THEM COME—NICHOLS.

J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president of the First National bank of Englewood, informed yesterday the government is planning action against his institution, said he would welcome an appearance in federal court.

"The FDIC is a racket to protect political favorites and I have no intention of joining," he said. "If the government wants sound banks let them look at mine. It is 104 per cent liquid and should I be forced to pay out all deposits in cash and I can do so within an hour.

"I don't think they dare hale me into a court. If they do I'll blow the roof off the situation. And there is plenty to tell. Utterances I have made recently have invited such action and I am ready for it."

Youngstown Steel Mills to Cut Output Sharply

Youngstown, O., June 23.—(AP)—Steel production in the Youngstown district next week will fall from about 66 per cent of capacity to about 53 per cent, mill schedules indicated today. Usually the seasonal drop in steel production begins in May, and in normal years July 4 usually marked the low point. This year the prospective price increase and threat of a steel strike kept the mills running at a high rate until now.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—An unusual number of $10 gold pieces among the $45,593,900 of gold imported from European countries between June 1 and June 22, which is greater than the total for May, indicates a breaking up of private European hoards. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported a net gain of $4,531,000 in monetary gold stocks during the last week.

Imports during the week included $3,678,400 at New York and $861,000 received from China at San Francisco. Those arriving at New York included $1,687,500 from Canada, $1,384,900 from India, $375,400 from Great Britain, $22,200 from Holland, and $8,400 from Guatemala.

The price of gold at London was unchanged today at 138 shillings one penny [$34.76] a fine ounce and an amount valued at £36,000 [$181,260] was purchased.

The foreign exchange market was extremely dull today and the dollar was unchanged in terms of the French gold franc at 59.39 cents. Sterling rose ⅛ cent to $5.03⅝. Marks rallied a further 3 points to 38.20 cents, and Canadian dollars gained ⅜ cent at $1.01⅛.

MOST OF COPPER USERS ACCEPT CODE CONTRACTS

New York, June 23.—(AP)—Consumers of 75 per cent of the copper used in the United States have entered into temporary buying contracts with the copper code authority, it was stated today.

Adjustment of allocations of secondary copper sales quotas was delegated by the code authority to W. A. Janssen, deputy NRA administrator, who announced the following monthly quotas:

American Metal company, 3,493 tons; American Smelting and Refining company, 2,209 tons; Nichols Copper company, 2,209 tons; Anaconda Copper Mining company, 1,105 tons; Lewin Metals corporation, 854 tons, and Nassau Smelting and Refining company, 380 tons, making a total of 10,250 tons.

The code authority has authorized H. O. King, as executive director, to negotiate permanent buying agreements with consumers and fabricators, subject to the approval of the contracts by the authority.

ASKS ROOSEVELT TO VETO FARM BANKRUPTCY ACT

The stability of life insurance and loan values will be menaced seriously if the Frazier-Lemke farm bankruptcy act becomes law, George W. Young, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, declared yesterday in a message to President Roosevelt asking that he veto the measure.

Mr. Young said that this bill, passed June 18 by congress, would tend to destroy the value of all farm mortgages, thus affecting bank and individual loan values as well as life insurance stability. The whole effect, he continued, would be to cause "widespread and severe distress and loss to widows, orphans, investors, and financial institutions."

Anheuser-Busch to Spend $1,050,000 for Repairs

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—[U.P.]—Expenditure of $1,050,000 on new equipment and repairs for Anheuser-Busch brewery was announced today. R. A. Huber, vice president, said a program equally as large if not larger was planned for next year. Return of beer has given permanent employment to 1,500 more men in the Anheuser-Busch plant, the announcement said.

Expect Berlin to Accept Debt Parley Offer

BERLIN, June 23.—(AP)—Distinctly encouraged by the British invitation to talk over the problem of foreign debts, German government officials, led by Chancellor Hitler, devoted their attention today to a series of conferences on the problem.

The chancellor was understood to be taking an active part in the deliberations, and it was evident that eventually Germany will accept the British proposal, after a policy has been decided upon and negotiators named.

The British invitation, coming in the midst of threats to collect interest on the Dawes and Young loans by impounding German commercial accounts, was regarded in banking circles as a victory for Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank.

Had Talked of Retaliation.

In discussing the moratorium on foreign debts service, Dr. Schacht had said that Germany would retaliate by cutting off commercial relations with countries setting up clearing houses as has been proposed in Great Britain and France.

While government and reichsbank officials carried on their talks, Kurt Schmitt, minister of economics, and Sir Eric Phipps, the British ambassador, had a long conversation at the American embassy where both were luncheon guests.

American banking circles here adopted a policy of watchful waiting, emphasizing that the United States is not likely to take any steps with regard to the moratorium unless it develops that some arrangement is made whereby American holders of German bonds are discriminated against.

Explains Delay in Reply.

The German delay in replying to the British note was explained by foreign office spokesmen as due to the fact that the communication was a lengthy affair, involving a number of points which must be given careful consideration. The foreign office could not say when formal acceptance will come, but indicated that it may be Monday and that the German delegation may leave for London at the same time.

The French foreign office has warned that it will put into effect machinery to collect interest July 1 unless an agreement with Germany on the transfer of debt service has been reached by that date.

BRITISH TRADE EXCITED

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 23.—Consternation is spreading in British trading circles over the implications of Neville Chamberlain's double barreled bill covering, as the title says, "debts clearing offices and import restrictions and reprisals," and the chancellor of the exchequer's explanation in the house of commons tomorrow is being anxiously awaited.

The bill, intentionally or otherwise, contains what in Washington would be called a "joker." Section one empowers the government to set up an exchange clearing office to commandeer German owned sterling.

Section two grants the board of trade practically blanket powers to set up the much disliked quota system against any country and on any class of goods. The present government has power to impose quotas on certain limited descriptions of agricultural imports, but under the bill its powers would be extended to industrial imports of every description.

Publication's View.

The Financial News says:

"Behind the smoke screen created by the establishment of a clearing office is the government attempting to slip in an entirely unrelated demand for well nigh dictatorial powers? We cannot tell what their objects are, whether good or bad, but if this section is indeed the method by which they hope to attain them the present bill is a gross attempt to abuse parliamentary procedure."

Committees of various chambers of commerce are holding excited sessions over the week-end to determine just what Chamberlain means. Thus far every country which has set up wide range import quotas has automatically reduced its exports and Britain's exporters are not unnaturally dismayed.

WHEAT BOUNDS THREE CENTS ON MILLER BUYING

Report on Europe's Short Crop Helps.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Freeing itself of the lethargy that has characterized its action for several days, the grain market yesterday showed a flourish of strength which carried wheat prices up 3 cents a bushel and other grains forward for good gains.

Prompted by Broomhall's sensational report on Europe's short grain crop and the premium which cash wheat is commanding in interior markets, milling interests were reporting to have stepped into the market with substantial buying orders. Closing wheat quotations ranged from 2⅞ to 3 cents a bushel higher with the big September delivery finishing at 93⅝ cents a bushel. Corn also executed a turnabout and ended the day 1¾ to 2⅛ cents higher, with September at 58⅝ cents.

Professionals Join Move.

Professional traders took their cue from the outside buyers and swelled the buying movement. This demand was more than enough to offset the continued hedging pressure.

The Broomhall estimate that Europe's total grain crop will fall 1 billion 400 million bushels below last year's did not come as a complete surprise to the trade. The significance of the world conditions, however, is just now being realized. Coupled with the known shortage in the United States and the promise of a less than average Canadian crop the best posted authorities believe that a world crop crisis is at hand. Nature is doing in a few weeks what one international wheat conference failed to do and what another conference is timidly approaching.

Although it is estimated that America's total grain crop, excluding corn, will run around a billion bushels below the 1927-'33 average it is believed that before the year is out this country may have to help feed the rest of the world. In the face of these significant developments it is interesting to note that it is not the professional speculators who are engineering advances in grain prices. Generally speaking they buy only on a short turn basis when real outside demand comes into the market as it did yesterday.

Report Milling Premiums.

Millers were reported to have paid premiums of as much as 7½ cents above the Chicago July price or good milling wheat in Kansas City. The 7½ cent premium was paid for 16½ per cent protein No. 2 dark hard winter wheat. Although harvest in the southwest is near its peak, the premiums have been maintained or have advanced and this has caused an improvement in sentiment.

Receipts yesterday at ten leading winter wheat terminal points and interior markets were reported at 1,992 cars, or nearly 3,500,000 bushels. There was evidence of continued hedging pressure on futures, but the sales were not as heavy as recently and were easily met by the buying demand.

Oats closed 2⅛ to 2¾ cents above Friday's last quotations, with September at 42½ cents. The recent rise in the price of Argentine grain is believed to have lessened the danger of substantial importations.

Rye gained 2⅝ to 3⅛ cents a bushel and barley advanced 1⅛ to 2¾ cents.

Duluth yesterday was reported to have sold 100,000 bushels of barley for shipment to Chicago, bringing the week's total to 500,000 bushels.

HUDSON SALES INCREASE; CASH POSITION BETTER

Hudson Motor Car company yesterday announced continued advances in retail sales. A total of 1,950 cars was sold for the week ending June 16, compared with 1,725 the previous week. Retail sales in the United States were up 17 per cent and increased 30 per cent in Canada. Including foreign sales, the rise was 13 per cent for the week. Hudson built approximately 60,000 automobiles during the five months of 1934, 11,000 of them during May.

Roy D. Chapin, president, in making public these figures said that Hudson inventories were reduced from $7,049,000 to $4,484,000 during May, while accounts payable were sliced from $6,110,000 to $1,731,000.

Financing of current operations by banks and of dealers by the Commercial Investment Trust continues satisfactory, Mr. Chapin added. Cash on hand exceeds accounts payable, none of which are due. Bank loans also were reported "substantially reduced" from their early spring peak to a point well below the full line of credit now available. Mr. Chapin predicted still further improvement in the company's working capital and current position by Jan. 1, 1935, basing his estimate on production schedules.

Hudson stock, which dropped Friday from 11½ to 8⅞, yesterday rallied to 10.

Stocks Rally; Volume Hits Ten Year Low

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—In an extremely slow market stock values recovered fractionally to more than 2 points in the abbreviated session today. The rally was half-hearted, with improvement due largely to diminished selling pressure rather than activity of buyers.

Prices had a heavy appearance at the opening as an aftermath to the late break yesterday but firmed as dealings progressed. Strength in silver shares and recovery in the motors, which were hardest pressed yesterday, were joint features. The recovery was helped along by rising tendencies in grains and cotton, while a firm bond market was encouraging.

Idling along on a turnover of 233,350 shares—the smallest Saturday volume in ten years—the market developed nothing noteworthy. Many traders didn't bother to come to work. Definite news of the outcome of current discussions in Washington anent regulation details was still awaited.

Silver Shares Rally Briskly.

The rise in silver shares got under way at the opening, U. S. Smelting gaining more than 2 points in quick order with Cerro de Pasco close behind. American Smelting and Howe Sound were other high lights of strength. Rising prices in this group, however, failed to extend elsewhere to any marked degree, and the extreme dullness of business reflected the continued nervousness in speculative circles.

U. S. Steel was pushed up a fraction and stopped there. Other standard industrials advanced slightly in sympathy, an exception being American Can.

Better action of Hudson, yesterday's worst offender on the break, loaned a firmer aspect to the motors section, Auburn matching the record pace of Hudson. These two were good for a point or so comeback but changes in others were fractional.

Freight Report Retards Rails.

A disappointing loadings report hung over the rails, but carriers held slightly higher in tune with the rest of the market. The midcontinent crude price situation was a factor in keeping oils under pressure.

A net gain of more than 2 points and strength in other farm shares reflected the influence of better commodity markets, utilities found little buying sustenance and marked time.

There was no change in the market's dull behavior as the final hour was turned. The best that could be said of the session was that prices held and it was evident that liquidation that came out in force late Friday had dried up.

WEEK'S DIVIDEND RECORD IS BEST SINCE DEC., 1930

Favorable dividend changes during the last week numbering forty-four were the highest for any like period since December, 1930, according to Standard Statistics company. There were eleven unfavorable changes, compared with nine in the previous week.

Southern California Edison Company, Ltd., yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents on the common stock, payable Aug. 15 to stock of record July 20. The company previously had paid 50 cents quarterly.

The May Hosiery Mills declared a dividend of $3.25 on account of accumulations on the $4 preferred stock payable Sept. 1 to stock of record Aug. 15.

Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines declared the usual extra dividend of 5 cents in addition to the monthly distribution of 5 cents.

BUSINESS RISES SHARPLY, CHECK VOLUME SHOWS

Business in the Chicago federal reserve district improved sharply last week, measured by the volume of checks drawn against individual accounts. Debits in 40 leading cities by 153 banks in the week ended June 20 totaled $939,167,000, an increase of 20.7 per cent over the preceding seven days' total of $778,025,000.

Excluding three cities, for which 1933 comparisons are not available, Adrian, Mich., Clinton, Ia., and Manitowoc, Wis., the total for the 37 cities was $936,186,000, compared with $792,275,000 in the same 1933 week, an improvement of 18.2 per cent.

OIL INDUSTRY MOVES TO CURB ILLEGAL OUTPUT

Also Agrees to End Other Faults.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—Two major moves to stabilize the $12,000,000,000 oil industry were announced today by Secretary Ickes.

HAROLD ICKES.

Seeking to dam the flood of petroleum produced illegally in the vast east Texas field Ickes, as oil administrator, approved plans by which major companies will purchase surplus gasoline held in storage by east Texas refiners in return for an agreement by the latter that they will not handle illegal crude.

Ickes shortly afterward signed the Pacific coast petroleum agency agreement intended to remedy crude overproduction, reduce surplus gasoline stocks and abolish dumping of gasoline at low prices. This agreement applies to California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, and Arizona.

Hope for Curb on "Hot Oil."

The plan for east Texas was worked out by the oil industry, the justice department and the oil administration. Its proponents hope it will lead to an effective curb on production of "hot oil" throughout the nation.

East Texas production in excess of quotas under the oil code, they say, stimulates a flow of "hot oil" in other states. Recent estimates have placed at around 100,000 barrels daily the amount from the flush east Texas area.

Cautious elements in the industry said today a threat to the success of the plan loomed in a comparatively large movement of illegal oil from east Texas into other states for refining purposes. The agreement with east Texas refiners could not take care of this, it was said.

Move for Stabilization.

Ickes, nevertheless, called the plan "a real move toward stabilization for the industry." It is hoped the blotting up of surplus gasoline stocks will have a buoyant effect on crude and gasoline prices.

California refiners, in accordance with the petroleum agency compact, have agreed:

Not to buy, transport or run through their refineries any illegally produced oil; to sell all their gasoline at prices they will post, and that companies entering the pact shall buy up from independent refiners all the gasoline the latter cannot market through trade channels, thereby easing the surplus.

Ickes expects approval of the Pacific coast agreement to be a forerunner of acceptance of a national marketing agreement to eliminate unfair trade practices in the oil industry.

National Pact Approved.

The national pact has been approved. It is awaiting merely the required signatures of operators handling 85 per cent of the country's gasoline gallonage. California interests have held back until their own agency was established. Now they are expected to sign and bring in the necessary remaining gallonage.

Ickes said he would appoint persons not connected in any way with the oil industry to an impartial board of three which is to watch over the operation of the agreements and to hear complaints. He has not made the appointments.

STATE HIGHWAY JOBS INCREASE 64.3% DURING MAY

The Illinois highway division reported employment of 23,165 men on road construction during May, an increase of 64.3 per cent over the 14,096 figure for April.

The Illinois state employment service reported the placing of 9,608 persons, 5,025 of them in permanent positions. Men numbered 5,531 and women 4,077. At the end of May there were 57,229 active applications for jobs still on file at the 22 offices of the service.

STOCK CONTROL SHADOW DIMS TRADE INTEREST

Ruling Group May Be Named This Week.

New York, June 23.—(AP)—Speculation in stocks has ebbed to the lowest volume in about a decade while Wall street awaits federal control of security exchanges to become operative July 1 and for announcement of the commission that will regulate the exchanges. President Roosevelt is expected to name the personnel of the commission next week.

Meanwhile some brokers and others have been attempting to dispel the timidity and pessimism of speculators who fear curtailment of their freedom under federal rule. Steeped in the tradition of private initiative, the speculative fraternity finds federal rule a bitter pill to swallow.

See Signs of Change.

However, signs have been multiplying the last few days that Wall street may discover federal control not seriously restrictive of trading on the stock exchange and in the long run beneficial.

E. A. Pierce, senior partner in E. A. Pierce & Co., one of the "big five" wire houses in Wall street, with many offices throughout the country, has sent a reassuring message to his staf predicting an "active and healthy security market before the year ended," assuming there will be no decline in business in the meanwhile.

Mr. Pierce pointed out that in the past there always had been similar misgivings and forebodings when reform was undertaken and regulatory legislation enacted.

Capital's Views on Members.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—The capital is convinced that three of the five men who will administer the stock exchange control bill will be James M. Landis and George C. Mathews of the trade commission and Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the senate banking committee.

Gov. George White of Ohio was reported today to have been recommended to President Roosevelt by Senator Bulkley [Dem., O.] for appointment to the exchange commission. Friends of the Ohio governor expressed the belief, however, that White would not be appointed because he does not want the job and would decline it.

Ask Experienced Men.

Stock exchange officials and big business organizations have been deluging the White House with requests that two of the appointees be men versed in the ways of the market through long and actual experience with it.

The friends of the bill at the same time have been tugging the President in the other direction with the argument that an undivided commission would function best and that preference be given to men who favored enactment of the measure.

They contend that when other regulatory bodies have been named representatives of the business regulated have been excluded, with provision made for the submission of adequate pleadings when disputed points arise.

The drive of the business interests is a continuation of the campaign they began when the original stock exchange bill came before congress specifying that the bill be administered by the federal trade commission.

COMMODITIES MOSTLY LOWER IN LAST WEEK; SOME RECOVER LOSS

Commodity prices generally were somewhat lower for the week, although some classes recovered well from the lowest levels. Net losses on grain were largely fractional, with rye gaining ⅛ cent. Lard and bellies were also up slightly. Silver was affected by reports of government buying. Raw sugar sold at the highest level in several years. Liquidation was under way in hides with prices off nearly ⅝ cent a pound. Closing prices the last two weeks and the low level for the year follow:

HAY MARKET

There were no receipts of hay here Saturday, and the shortage in supplies is intensified. Only a few cars are reported en route. Market continues very strong. There is no demand, however, for new clover or new heavy clover mixed hay. Light grass or light clover mixed timothy sells about same price as straight timothy, and heavy mixtures around $3 discount. New timothy and light clover mixture would probably bring $20 to $23 per ton, according to receivers. Prices follow:

Egg futures held within narrow limits, October closing ⅛ cent lower due to scattered liquidation and hedging pressure.

New York, June 23.—Bond prices were steady to firm on the stock exchange today in the slowest trading in more than nine months. Total transactions amounted to only $4,033,000.

United States government bonds with a turnover of $434,000, closed irregularly lower, off 4-32ds to up 2-32ds point. Domestic corporation bonds, during the two hour trading period, drifted slightly higher while foreign loans were slightly lower.

Only Few Issues Active.

Only a comparative handful of domestic corporation bonds showed any considerable degree of activity. Of these, Armstrong Cork 5s due 1940, closed unchanged; Armour 4½s due 1939, up ⅛; Chicago and North Western convertible 4¾s due 1949, up ½; New York Central convertible 6s due 1944, up ⅛; Pennsylvania Power and Light 4½s due 1981, off ¼; and Postal Telegraph and Cable 5s due 1953, up 1¾ points.

German, Italian Groups Active.

Most activity in the foreign bond group centered in German and Italian issues. The German loans closed irregularly lower, with the Dawes Plan 7s and the Young Plan 5½s off ⅞ and ½, respectively, the former touching a new low.

Italian Government 7s closed unchanged at 93½ and City of Rome 6½s eased fractionally. Most issues of the Australian group recovered part of the losses of the previous day. Latin American issues finished irregularly lower on the day.

Two Concerns Get Seats on Mercantile Exchange

The Jerpe Commission company and Thomson & McKinnon have been admitted to membership on the Chicago mercantile exchange. Roy E. Eldredge, who will be in charge of the Thomson & McKinnon butter and egg futures department, represents the third generation of his family in that business in Chicago. Elnathan Eldridge, his grandfather, was one of the first presidents of the old Butter and Egg board formed in 1898. C. J. Eldredge, of the second generation, was president from 1928 to 1930, inclusive, of the Chicago mercantile exchange, which he helped organize.

Oil Royalties.

Oil royalties may be a satisfactory investment for one who is a geologist, a financier, and a speculator, but can hardly be recommended to the uninformed investor.

* *

To obtain a proper understanding of this type of paper it is necessary to know how some oil companies go about drilling for oil. Their geologists will find a site that they believe will yield what has in the past been termed the "golden fluid." The company will obtain the right from the owner of the land on which the site is located to drill for oil in exchange for a portion, usually one-eighth, of the oil that might come out of the well to be drilled. That one-eighth is termed a royalty.

* *

If oil is struck the owner of the land receives one out of every eight barrels of oil produced. On a flush well this will produce a tidy income. Often the owner will assign a portion of the royalty due him to speculators, who then proceed to market, at substantial profits to themselves, a share in the one-eighth royalty.

One promotion that we ran across was the sale of 1-1600th of a one-eighth interest—that's bringing it down pretty fine. Yet, the selling price of these tiny shares was $1,200.

The promoters usually point to photostatic copies of checks paid out to royalty holders as an indication of probable profits. The checks will often run 2 to 2½ per cent of the price of the royalty each month—an indicated income of 24 to 30 per cent a year.

They fail, however, to inform their prospects that an oil well is a "wasting asset"—that eventually the well will run dry and the income will cease. Standard accounting practice permits the deduction for depletion to run as high as 27½ per cent a month, which would leave a royalty holder a doubtful return of about 2½ per cent a year.

Still another factor presents itself. Proration measures in force on all producing wells in the country cut down production. Cutting down production cuts down royalties. Not only that, but oil that is available and is not pumped ordinarily seeps away, taking with it the hopes of royalty holders for future "income."

* *

When it is further considered that these royalty interests have no market except that created by the promoters, it can be readily understood why Investors' Guide says, "We do not consider oil royalties a proper investment for one who is not thoroughly conversant with conditions and factors in the petroleum industry."

CONSUMERS PAY 328 MILLION IN PROCESS TAXES

Farm Bureau Reports on Benefit Program.

only one-fifth of the 25 per cent gain he reported in farm purchasing power during the nine months during which such payments have been made by the AAA. This would leave an increase of 20 per cent due to other causes, although the department's bulletin indicated that farm purchasing power in May was no greater than a year ago.

Bean Explains Discrepancy.

Bean explained the discrepancy thus:

"The purchasing power of farm income, rather than the purchasing power of price per unit, is the real measure of farm progress. The common measure currently used is the ratio of prices farmers receive for all groups of farm products to the prices farmers pay. This is the measure of exchange value of farm products published by the department of agriculture. This method does not take into account volume of sales nor benefit payments.

"As of May, 1934, this ratio published by the department of agriculture was 61 per cent of the pre-war level as compared with 61 per cent for May, 1933. This ratio shows no gain from May, 1933, to May, 1934. But if benefit payments are added to the farm sales of products, the exchange ratio in May, 1934, would be materially in excess of that for May, 1933."

Regards Index Incomplete.

"Nor," Bean went on, "does the department's index show the extent to which the agricultural adjustment programs have restored the exchange value of the original group of seven basic commodities to the parity level of the pre-war years, 1910-14.

"The prices of the seven basic commodities averaged 51 per cent of the pre-war level in March, 1933, and 76 per cent of the pre-war level in May, 1934. However, when benefit payments are added, the average price on the domestically consumed portion for the coöperating producers in May, 1934, was 100 per cent of the pre-war level, as compared with 66 per cent in May, 1933."

The economic adviser failed to state, however, whether his calculations took into account the fact that the recent drouth stripped thousands of farmers of the crops which ordinarily they would take to market. His survey failed, in fact, to mention the tremendous effect which the drouth will have on farm income this year, although it is possible he may have considered that factor in making his deductions.

Swell's "Easy Money" Flow.

Today's delineation of benefit payments to farmers since August, 1933, showed that the farm administration has swelled by more than 216 millions the gigantic sums of New Deal easy money now pouring out of the treasury through various channels into the hands of the citizenry and the voting population. Eventually, it is expected, upward of half a billion dollars will be distributed by the Agricultural Adjustment administration to farmers, while other millions are being handed to city dwellers and farmers alike by the Emergency Relief and other federal administrations.

The AAA breakdown showed the following distribution of benefit payments to various classes of producers and the amount of processing taxes collected from consumers of the goods raised by each class:

	Benefit payments.	Taxes collected.
Wheat	$ 66,945,373	$106,602,252
Corn-hogs	5,713,563	63,391,174
Tobacco	11,751,982	16,066,606
Cotton	131,822,949	134,635,293

More for Cotton Growers.

In addition to the outright cotton benefits, it was pointed out, the farmers of the Democratic south have received $38,990,928 on cotton options exercised by entering the cotton producers' pool and $11,785,408 by direct sales of cotton. Processing tax receipts were augmented, it was explained, by collections of $7,684,181 on paper and jute, major competitors of cotton.

The list, by states, of AAA benefit disbursements to date, showing the type of payments being made in each state, follows:

Alabama, cotton and tobacco, $12,004,819.

REORGANIZATION OF MISSOURI-KAS. PIPE LINE ASKED

Five Other Concerns Named in Pleas.

Reorganization under the amended bankruptcy act was asked yesterday for the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company, whose president, Frank Parrish, the "boy wonder of finance," faces trial in September on charges of stock watering and fraud. Parrish is credited with amassing his first million at the age of 17.

The pipe line company which has been in equity receivership since May 12, 1932, is incorporated in Delaware, and has principal assets in Chicago. These amount to approximately $6,000,000, including plant and affiliated concerns. Liabilities, which can't be met, are listed at $5,500,000 in the petition filed in federal court by the law firm of White & Hawxhurst.

Oppose Present Setup.

In Wilmington, Del., two more petitions were filed, objecting to approval of the proposed agreement between receivers and noteholders' protective committee of the pipe line company. These state a plan of readjustment of the funded debt and capitalization of the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company offer nothing to Missouri-Kansas, in that assets to be acquired would not exceed $500,000, while there are $1,000,000 in general unsecured creditors' claims against the company.

A New York protective committee recently objected on grounds that the plan was a scheme of Columbia Oil and Gasoline corporation and Columbia Gas and Electric corporation to acquire ownership of Panhandle-Eastern and obtain release from all contract liabilities with Missouri-Kansas.

Other bankruptcy reorganization bills were filed here against five firms with debts estimated at nearly $8,000,000.

Seek Action Agains 5 Firms.

A petition against Consolidated Warehouses, Inc., was filed by the law firm of Frisch & Frisch. The company's balance sheet shows assets of $5,300,000. Among debts which cannot be met, current liabilities of $328,000 and a funded debt of $2,200,000 are listed.

The Park Lane Building corporation, owner of the Park Lane hotel at the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Surf street, brought a voluntary reorganization request through the firm of McInerney, Epstein & Avery, foreclosure proceedings are pending, the bill stated. Liabilities are listed at $1,627,500, against assets of $1,989,608.

Another voluntary action was taken by the 32-36 North State Street Building corporation. The petition, filed by Taylor, Miller, Busch & Boyden, said that assets are valued at more than liabilities but that debts cannot be met.

Rent Collection Difficult.

The principal reason for this was given as difficulties in collecting rent. Total assets are $1,345,767. Debts include current liabilities of $297,300, back taxes and accounts payable of $83,000, and capital stock of $941,322.

Liabilities of $358,000 weighted against assets of $175,000 were set up in a reorganization petition against the Austin Station Building corporation, 5440 West Madison street. Goldman, Allshouse & Healy are the attorneys.

E. Porter Brewing company of Joliet was named in a bill brought by Attorneys Tone & Dea. Assets are valued at $488,000 and liabilities listed at $161,000.

NARROW CHANGES MARK DULL TRADE IN BANK STOCKS

Narrow fluctuations and quiet trading ruled last week's activity in downtown bank stocks on the unlisted market. Continental recovered part of an early loss and closed one point lower for the period. First National sagged an equal amount.

Northern Trust, selling ex-dividend, was unchanged at 380 bid, 390 asked while Harris Trust held steady at 185 to 200. American National was strong at 100 bid. Terminal National closed 6 bid, 8 asked. In the miscellaneous section, Chicago Title and Trust moved off two points to 76.

Curb Membership Value Rises $4,000 to $26,500

New York, June 23.—(AP)—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a membership on the New York Curb exchange at $26,500, an increase of $4,000 from the last transaction.

Bugs May Cut Illinois Corn Crop 40 Pct.

Illinois' corn crop, which has a yearly estimated value of $120,000,000, may easily be damaged to the extent of 40 per cent by the chinch bug army which is daily making inroads into the fields, Dr. M. D. Farrar, research entomologist for the state natural history survey at Urbana, declared yesterday.

Dr. Farrar reports that while only the fringe of the crop has been damaged so far, almost 10 per cent of the 2,880 acres he has checked has been destroyed. The acreage inspected consisted of 70 fields adjoining wheat and other small grain fields and consequently in greater danger of infestation by the insects. About half of the fields are protected by barriers, he said, built of creosote supplied by the government. The hardest hit territories are Douglas, Coles, and Moultrie counties, Dr. Farrar said.

H. C. Donovan, Chicago crop expert, yesterday pointed out that this year's crop of chinch bugs is a particularly fertile brood. The present brood has been breeding for fully five weeks instead of two or three weeks in normal years. This feature of this year's bug makes it particularly alarming for corn, Mr. Donovan believed.

The period of time between the first and second batch of the bugs is being shortened by the long life of the present brood. This means that destructive feeding on the corn crop will be almost continuous throughout the growing season. Ordinarily the first brood dies out some weeks before the second bunch begins to breed.

Larose, Ill., yesterday turned in the prize story on chinch bugs. On the Schumacher farm near Larose the chinch bugs after feeding in one lean field decided to move to a more appetizing crop. A small creek intervened. The first bugs tumbled down the bank of the creek and drowned. Soon the water was covered by floating bodies of dead chinch bugs. The bugs in the rear crossed over the bridge of bodies and took possession of the new field.

A dispatch from Sigourney, Ia., yesterday said 300 civilian conservation corps workers have been assigned farms invested with chinch bugs to dig creosote trench barriers to protect the corn crops. The men were transferred from reclamation camps at Oskaloosa and Solon after appeals to the national authorities from Lieut. Gov. N. G. Kraschel and G. B. McDonald, state CCC director. Thirty-two carloads of creosote are en route to Iowa to augment the 2,000,000 gallons already distributed throughout the state.

The chinch bug invasion in Keokuk county is said to be the worst in years. The return of hot weather is beneficial for corn but also is ideal for the insects.

Taylorville, Ill., reported yesterday that the first carload of new wheat to be shipped out of Christian county this year was billed out yesterday by the Farmers' Grain company at Palmer. The wheat was threshed by combines and graded No. 2. The yield was about 25 bushels an acre.

WESTERN-AUSTIN FIRM FORMED BY CONSOLIDATION

Formation of the Western-Austin company was announced yesterday through consolidation of the Austin Manufacturing company of Harvey, Ill., and the Western Wheeled Scraper company of Aurora, Ill. The Austin Western Road Machinery company will continue to handle sales. Both will have main offices in Aurora, beginning July 1. A district office will be maintained in Chicago at 105 West Adams street.

S. F. Beatty, president of the new corporation, said that operating economies and increased efficiency are expected from the consolidation just approved by the stockholders of both concerns.

The chairman of the new board is C. W. Sencenbaugh. Vice presidents are H. B. Bushnell, K. N. Forbes, F. L. Jerome and H. M. Kleiser. J. L. McNab was elected secretary and McClure Kelley, treasurer. E. J. McGinty will be in charge of the Chicago office.

RFC CUTS LOANS IN APRIL DOWN TO 118 MILLIONS

Banks and Railroads Get More than Half.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Loans and commitments authorized by the Reconstruction Finance corporation contracted sharply in April to $118,468,672, as compared with $230,953,362 in March, a report to congress showed today. Repayments received during the month totaled $78,203,506.

Of the aggregate of April authorizations more than half, or $71,629,075, was for banks, related institutions, and railroads. Bank loan authorizations totaled $47,610,461, of which $39,059,287 was to aid in the liquidation or reorganization of closed banks. Actual disbursements to banks during the month, as compared with authorizations, were $19,702,982, while during the same period repayments received from banks on earlier authorizations totaled $42,513,131.

Lull in Heavy Demands.

The decrease in new authorizations was due chiefly to the lull in heavy demands by other government departments or agencies on the RFC funds and the slowing down of the corporation's purchases of preferred stock and capital notes of banks to aid in strengthening the capital structures of the institutions. April authorizations were listed as follows:

Banks, related institutions, and railroads	$71,629,075
Orderly marketing of agricultural products	375,000
For drainage districts	1,001,118
Loans on preferred stock of banks	566,500
Purchases of preferred stock of banks	25,870,800
Purchases of capital notes of banks	4,195,000
Loan on preferred stock of insurance company	4,000,000
For stock of federal home loan banks	800,000
For stock of Home Owners' Loan corporation	10,000,000
For federal emergency relief administrator	31,178

Banks Get 47 Millions.

Authorizations under the heading, "Banks, Related Institutions, and Railroads," included $47,610,461 for banks and trust companies, $265,000 for building and loan associations; insurance companies, $18,000; mortgage loan companies, $14,269,221; agricultural credit corporation, $50,000; regional agricultural credit corporations, $1,161,572; railroads, $8,254,252; processors, $567.

The report showed that authorizations of loans or purchases of capital notes and debentures of banks amounting to $18,856,110 had been canceled or withdrawn during the month.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—The New York Central Railroad and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad will purchase the minority interest in the stock of Pittsburgh, McKeesport and Youghiogheny Railroad at $50 a share on July 2.

Under the terms of the guaranty and agreement indorsed on the stock, the shareholders are obligated to sell their shares on July 1, 1934, to the P. & L. E. or the New York Central Railroad, successor of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway, at par of $50.

The Central and the P. & L. E. now own $1,585,200 par value each in the P. McK. & Y., leaving $789,250 par value in the hands of the public.

The last sale of the stock on the exchange this year was 250 shares on March 21 at 49¾ to 49. The low in 1933 was 46⅝ and the high 49. There were no sales in the preceding two years.

Carnation Co. Votes Usual Dividends; Rate Earned

Milwaukee, Wis., June 23.—(AP)—Quarterly dividends of $1.75 on preferred stock were declared at a meeting of the Carnation company board of directors here today, E. H. Stuart, company president, announced. Dividends of 50 cents a share was declared on common. Stuart said no estimate of the company's earnings will be available in advance of the annual audit, but that the dividends had been "fully earned."

MUNICIPAL BOND NOTES

New bond offerings marketed last week reached the highest level for any week since that ended June 26, 1931. The total was $136,330,500, against $188,141,000 in the 1931 period.

Most of the week's total was accounted for by $131,400,000 of Federal Land bank consolidated 4s, marketed in connection with the retirement July 1 of a similar amount of 4½s. The new issue was heavily oversubscribed, but holders of the called bonds received preference. The balance of the week's financing—$4,930,500—consisted of municipal issues.

Municipal financing will continue active in the next few weeks with $30,000,000 state of New York bonds to be awarded this week and $60,000,000 New York City bonds to be sold early in July. Several other pieces of corporate financing are under discussion for early offering, it is said.

New state and municipal financing scheduled for this week amounts to $60,953,881, against $8,832,674 last week.

Brookline, Mass., will market tomorrow an issue of $550,000 revenue anticipation notes, dated June 25, 1934, and maturing Nov. 7 next. The issue will be sold at a discount.

Lincoln, Neb., will offer July 10 a bond issue carrying a 3 per cent coupon totaling $178,000.

Sioux City, Ia., will enter the market Wednesday with a sewer and bridge issue amounting to $467,000. It will mature serially from 19[illegible] to 1950.

ACTIVE DEMAND, LIGHTER SUPPLY LIFT HOG PRICES

Hog raisers are looking to the future with optimism for the first time in many months. Previous advances in the last two years have always "fizzled out," but agricultural experts are predicting that the present rise is the "real thing."

Current quotations, including the processing taxes, are $4.20 to $4.40 above the low point of the depression in the winter of 1932-'33. Packers are moving pork from top grades of hogs on a basis of 146 per cent higher live costs than at the low time.

The average hog price for the last week was $4.65 compared with $4 in the preceding week. Top sales were at $5.25, or $1.25 above the low time early last week.

Object to Processing Tax.

As the packers have been successfully moving pork on a basis of average live costs of $7 there has been a good deal of objection on the part of farmers to the continuation of the processing tax. Except for the tax the farmer would be getting $7 instead of $4.75, it is believed.

The packing industry is watching closely the trend of marketing at all leading slaughtering points for some indication of how short the supply of market hogs may be, and the consensus is that receipts will run light for several weeks, and below requirements of the trade. Since the rains, pastures have turned green, and sections that were unloading hogs three weeks ago are now holding light weights and pigs back on grass.

The rise in cattle and lamb prices was not as marked as the advance in hogs during the last week, but all good classes showed some improvement. Best steers closed strong to 25 cents higher for the week. Some of the plainer classes lacking sufficient corn finish to command top quotations sold weak to lower at the close, and in some instances were off as much as 25 to 40 cents.

Top and Average Higher.

Both the top and the general average prices, however, were at new highs, the week's average steer price at $7.55 being up 5 cents, the highest since September, 1932. Early last year weekly averages were down to $4.70, and a year ago the price was $5.80.

Selected medium weight steers sold up to $10.35 during the week. Many of the weighty steers now are 100 to 200 per cent above the low point of the depression. Prime heavies quoted now at $10 and above are similar to those selling at $4.50 last fall, while the $3 to $4 kinds a few months ago are now worth $9 and more.

Lambs closed at the high point of the week and mostly 50 cents above the final quotations a week earlier. Yearling sheep near the end of the week showed 50 cents to $1 advance over the close of the preceding week. Arrivals of live stock on the week-end session were small, and most of the receipts were billed direct to packers.

Only 1,000 of the 8,000 hogs received yesterday were on the market. Only a few buyers appeared and slight losses were recorded in places. However, as a rule salesmen refused to accept lower bids and carried some stock over for next week. Large local packers paid $5 for several carloads. The general average price for the day at $4.70 was off 5 cents.

Wholesale Dry Goods Code Chief Topic at Parley Here

Discussion of codes governing operations of the wholesale dry goods trade will constitute the principal business of the annual meeting to be held July 2 and 3 at the Stevens hotel. F. H. Scott, president of the Wholesale Dry Goods institute of New York, and Flint Garrison, director general of the group, will be speakers. A special meeting of ready-to-wear wholesalers will be held July 2, while a supplemental session will take place July 11 in New York.

Asking prices on spot Texas and territory wools were unchanged from the previous week. Scattered trade was received on fleeces at steady prices.

HATCHERY MEN WILL MEET TO IMPROVE CODE

Recommendations Go to National Group.

Urbana, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Improving the NRA hatchery code for next year will be considered by Illinois commercial poultry men and hatchery operators when they gather at Springfield June 29, according to an announcement made today by Dr. L. E. Card, chief in poultry husbandry at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

Any resolutions passed at the conference will be forwarded to a national meeting to be held in Cleveland, O., July 30 to Aug. 2. The Springfield meeting will be open to all hatchery operators, commercial breeders and producers, poultry dealers and others affected by the code.

Seek Recommendations.

The University of Illinois has no particular authority in code matters, but is calling the meeting at the suggestion of the national coördinating committee so that definite recommendations relative to modifications in the hatchery code may be made b Illinois poultry men.

Among the principal questions to be considered are: In what way has the code been of most benefit to hatchery operators in Illinois; what provisions of the code have caused the most difficulty for the hatcherymen of the state; what suggestions can be made to improve the code in 1935?

Operated Since Jan. 2.

This NRA measure has been in operation since Jan. 2, 1934, and Illinois hatcherymen have had one spring season's experience under its regulations and restrictions.

Features of the code have been the elimination of destructive price competition, prohibition of misrepresentations in advertising and unfair sales methods, provision of a uniform scale of hours and wages and the establishment of trade groups in which mutual problems may be discussed and acted upon for the benefit of the poultry industry.

For the nine months ended March 31 loss was $1,516,091, against $1,995,585 in the like period of the previous fiscal year.

Consolidated Railroads of Cuba for the nine months ended March 31 had a net loss of $664,209, against net loss of $896,678 in the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year.

Hat Corporation of America reports for the six months ended April 30 net profit of $155,766, equivalent after dividend requirements on the preferred stock to seven cents a share class A and B common. This compares with net loss of $97,534 for the six months ended April 30, 1933.

DELAY HEARING PAPER FIRM PLEA IN BANKRUPTCY

Minneapolis, Minn., June 23.—(AP)—After hearing stormy arguments, in which the E. W. Backus management of the Minnesota and Ontario Paper company was attacked and defended, the United States District court here today continued to June 29 its hearing on a petition to place the company into bankruptcy under the new federal bankrupcy law for corporations.

The hearing involved a petition for bankruptcy action filed by five creditors of commercial claims for materials and services. Counsel for these creditors urged the six day postponement.

It was opposed by counsel for Backus and the paper company, who previously had filed a bankruptcy petition as debtors.

N. Y. Curb Trade Is Slow; Price Changes Are Small

New York, June 23.—(AP)—Trading was the slowest in nearly a month on the Curb exchange today and price fluctuations were confined to a point or less. Active issues were few in number. Oil shares, which had shown a decided downward tendency throughout most of the week, were in fair demand as a result of short covering in preparation for the week-end closing, and a number of the leaders improved small fractions to around a point. Utilities and metals were extremely apathetic, but the former group showed good resistance to a moderate amount of selling.

CITIES GROWING MORE WARY OF BOOSTING DEBTS

Rate of Increase Off Sharply in 1933.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—A sharp contraction in the rate of increase of state and municipal debt in 1933 is noted in the twelfth annual compilation of American municipal debt by C. E. Rightor, director of the Atlantic City, N. J., survey commission, formerly with the Detroit bureau of municipal research. The survey was made public today by the National Municipal league.

An analysis of the net debt of 220 cities of the United States which reported in 1932 and 1933, shows that during 1933 the debt increased from $5,052,452,000 to $5,175,414,094, a per capita increase of $2.93, compared with $4.94 in 1932.

Most Cities Cut Debts.

Of the 220 comparable cities, 70 reported an increase in the net debt last year, 149 a reduction, and one showed no change.

"The record to date of the expansion in municipal debt does not place the responsibility upon the governing officials alone," the survey states. "Enthusiastic citizens, some with selfish motives and others merely optimists, encouraged the flotation of bond issues as lightly as balloons. But even more, the dealers and investors sought issues of every description, including the speculative. Now authorities are expressing the belief that in specific instances there must come a debt scaling process.

Wide Range in Debts.

"Analysis of the data of 254 reporting cities in 1933 shows a wide range in the per capita debt, excluding the self-supporting debt. Except for Washington, D. C., which has no outstanding bonds, the figures run from $5.55 for Springfield, Ill., to $361.52 for Atlantic City, N. J. For the latter city it should be stated that census figures make no allowance for a substantially larger seasonal population.

"By census groups, the per capita spread is from $76.02 for St. Louis, Mo., to $215 for Chicago, in group 1; from $70.12 for Seattle to $172.49 for Newark, N. J., in group 2; in group 3 cities, from $14.20 to $264.39, for Peoria, Ill., and Miami, Fla., respectively; for group 4, Springfield, Ill., and Atlantic City as given; and in group 5, from $13.81 for Sheboygan, Wis., to $336.64 for White Plains, N. Y."

FURNITURE, LAMP SHOW WILL OPEN HERE TOMORROW

Chicago's prestige as a style and merchandising center will be increased by the opening tomorrow of the midsummer furniture market and the national Chicago lamp show at the Merchandise mart, according to T. J. Reed, general manager of the mart.

So far there are no indications of general price advances among the exhibitors and it is believed that buying will be heavy. Manufacturers are showing more extensive lines than in recent years, and are placing emphasis upon interesting and well constructed merchandise.

DAVENPORT, IA., BANKS WILL PAY $998,053 DEPOSITS

Davenport, Ia., June 23.—[Special.]—Depositors of the Northwest Davenport Savings bank, Bettendorf Savings bank, and the Home Savings banks will receive a second payment totaling $998,053. Northwest Davenport will pay 35 per cent, $738,722; Home Savings, 25 per cent, $224,000, and Bettendorf Savings banks, 18 per cent, $35,330. Previous dividends of 5 per cent were paid by the Northwest and Home, and 10 per cent by the Bettendorf Savings bank.

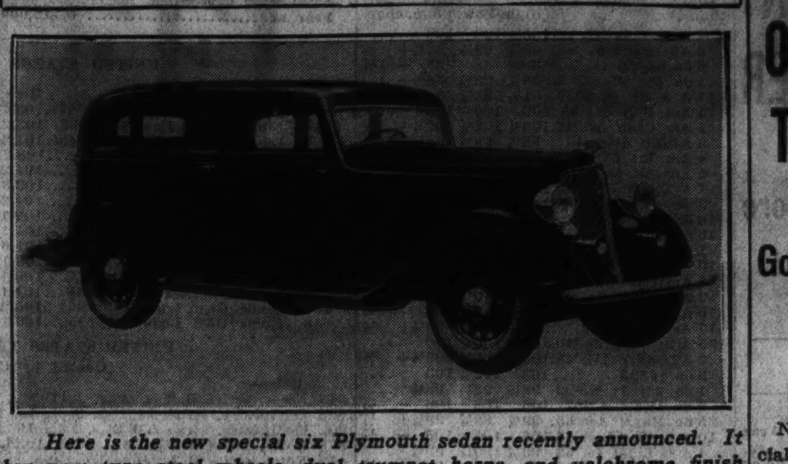
NEW PLYMOUTH SEDAN



Here is the new special six Plymouth sedan recently announced. It has new type steel wheels, dual trumpet horns, and valchrome finish radiator grille.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Oldsmobile retail sales figures for the month of May show a 112 per cent increase over sales for the corresponding month last year, it is announced by D. E. Ralston, general sales manager.

"Sales for the first five months of 1934 have totaled 90 per cent greater than for the same period of 1933," said Mr. Ralston. "In spite of the fact that the first shipments of Oldsmobile's new low price six were not made until March 1, we have built more sixes and eights in the first five months of this year than in the entire year of 1933."

Headed by R. S. Cole, vice president and general manager, officials of the Hupp Motor Car corporation inspected the Hupmobile exhibit in the Travel and Transport building at the World's Fair. Included in the official party were C. E. Gambill, Chicago distributor and a director of the parent company; F. W. Munro, advertising manager; D. P. Gambill, vice president, and S. L. Davis, general sales manager of the Gambill Motor company, Inc.

Preceding the tour of inspection, Messrs. Cole and C. E. Gambill were hosts at a luncheon in the Black Forest village at the Fair. Members of their party took the driving test, a thriller of a practical sort which is a highlight of the Hupp exhibit. They went through their paces under the supervision of Lyle Fischer, captain elect of the Northwestern University basketball team.

Celebrating the fourteenth anniversary of the establishment of the Commercial Tire and Supply company, George Eberhardt yesterday announced the grand opening of his new and finer service station at 4651-57 West Madison street, between the hours of 12 noon and 10 p. m.

A feature of the grand opening celebration was a 15 minute radio program featuring Gabby Hartnett, catcher of the Chicago Cubs, broadcasting direct from the new building at 8 p. m.

A new knee-action model, the master six sport sedan, is announced by Chevrolet. It is a four door five passenger sedan with built-in trunk. New features of appearance and equipment distinguish it from other models of the line. The newest Chevrolet has the appearance of increased streamlining, through the adoption of a modified roof line, to permit the rear panel to blend smoothly into the lines of the trunk. The entire rear panel, including the trunk, is made of a single stamping.

Advantage has been taken of all available space to provide a commodious baggage compartment. The trunk is 49½ inches wide, 17¾ inches fore and aft, and 19⅝ inches high.

Joseph Levy, president of the Walton Finance corporation, announces that the company has moved into its new headquarters, 940 Milwaukee avenue, corner of Walton place. The new building gives the company the largest building in the middle west devoted exclusively to financing and reselling of passenger cars and trucks; also complete equipment for reconditioning and refinishing. The building has a frontage of 247 feet and a floor area of 45,000 square feet. There is light on all sides and floor space to accommodate the 250 cars and trucks.

Buick marked up another gain in retail deliveries during the first 10 days of June as compared with the previous 10 day period and showed more than a 30 per cent increase over the corresponding period a year ago, according to figures released today by W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager.

Reversing the usual trend for this period, Buick dealers in the United States delivered 2,125 cars to retail customers during the first 10 days of June as compared with 2,111 in the last 10 days of May and 1,579 in the first 10 days of June last year, Mr. Hufstader said.

Tourists Help Pay Expenses of Research

Wickliffe, Ky., June 23.—[Special.]—Scientists this summer hope to read the story of a prehistoric race from the bones and artifacts that have been uncovered here on a mound overlooking the Mississippi river. Archaeologists and a crew of trained laborers will work in the diggings through July and August under the direction of Dr. Florence Hauley, assistant to Dr. A. E. Douglas, anthropologist of the University of Arizona.

One hundred forty skeletons have been uncovered by the Alabama Museum of Natural History in careful excavations with implements little bigger than a toothbrush and a nail cleaner. The bones lie in the positions in which they were found, most of them outstretched but with no regularity in their relations to each other.

Visited by Thousands.

The uncovered graves for the last year have been visited by thousands of motor tourists and by dozens of scientists. The tourists were told that they saw the bones of a race that had preceded the redman in the Mississippi valley. The scientists reported that the history of the bones is a mystery.

In the next two months, archaeologists and ethnologists hope to remove some of this mystery through a research technique developed by Dr. Douglas in his explorations in the southwest of the United States. This technique consists of dating ruins by the growth rings of wood.

"In Missouri," said Fain W. King, who owns this bluff, "there is an oak tree approximately 600 years old. A boring will be made to the heart of this tree so that its rings, each denoting a year's growth, can be counted and studied. The study will evolve a rough weather calendar for the last six centuries. In years of drouth the rings will be small, indicating little growth, and in years more favorable to the oak the rings will be bigger.

Like Reading Finger Prints.

"In these excavations were found some charred posts. The rings of these posts will be compared with the rings in the oak. It's a bit like reading finger prints. A series of wet and dry years in the oak will be found that will compare with the rings in the post. This will establish the years in which the post was grown and will indicate the decade of the other contents of the grave."

Mr. King, 41 years old and unmarried, is a retired oil, lumber and real estate man of Paducah, Ky., who has avowed the rest of his life to a study of anthropology in the Mississippi valley. He purchased the land on this hill near the confluence of the Ohio and the Mississippi rivers and has drawn a will bequeathing it to the state of Kentucky or to the federal government as a permanent museum.

High Brow, Low Brow.

Mr. King has ballyhooed his property a bit as a tourist attraction. An admission of 50 cents is charged to view the skeletons. There are also tourist cabins on this burial grounds of an ancient people.

"I'm probably the high brow of the tourist business and the low brow of archaeology," Mr. King related. "My object in encouraging visitors is twofold—first, I need the money to support this scientific research, and second, I want the public to share my interest in the unknown past of this country."

The bluff here is similar to mounds found in Illinois near East St. Louis. Little is known of these mound builders, as they have been called. The contents of their graves, a few crude pots, stone spades and clay ornaments, indicate their civilization was crude. The only certainty about their date is that Hernando De Soto did not find them here four centuries ago.

During the archaeology studies this summer, Mr. King will continue to entertain tourists. It is 402 miles here from Chicago over high speed highways. Cairo, Ill., early civil war headquarters of Gen. Grant, is 4½ miles to the north.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

HITCHING ON BUMPERS.

Chicago, June 21.—There is a condition existing in Chicago today which should be remedied at once. This condition consists of young boys of from ten years of age upward to twenty and twenty-one hitching on the bumpers of automobiles and buses. On 63d street, between South Park avenue and Stony Island avenue, it is practically an impossibility to see even one of the numerous buses that use this street without from one to six young boys hitching. They have no particular place to go, and it is a common sight to see the same boy or group of boys making several round trips in an evening. Some are not satisfied with the slow buses, so they hitch on the bumpers of private automobiles. If the automobile should happen to turn on some street unexpectedly they jump off regardless of the speed of automobiles immediately behind them. I personally have seen them jump off, fall and roll toward the curb, only to be made fun of by their companions for falling.

The only way that this practice of hitching can be eliminated is to get these boys, bring them to a police station, and make the parents pay a fine. I am sure they would be glad to pay such a fine to know the conditions that exist, and then let them, in their duty to their children, take such steps as to prevent a reoccurrence and the possibility of a death or a cripple in their families. OBSERVER.

ANENT AUTO TAGS.

Chicago, June 18.—Why is it some Chicago residents must display automobile vehicle tags and others need not? There is a car parked in front of 440 E. 111th place daily, the owner of said car apparently never having been required to buy a vehicle tag while on the other hand the police seem to get after others immediately if they do not display such a tag on their windshield.

It surely doesn't seem fair that some people are required to pay all kinds of taxes while others need not contribute at all toward the city's expenses.

Chicago, May 28.—Please allow me to congratulate you on your article on slow driver road hogs. This is the type of cooperation that I feel the automobile industry is entitled to by all papers and is one that is constructive and will build good will for your paper.

TRIBUNE AUTO ON TRIP DOWN THE MISSISSIPPI

Good Will Envoy for the World's Fair.

BY HAL FOUST.

New Orleans, La., June 23.—[Special.]—"Can I get some more fried chicken?" A waitress was asked in the village of Woodville, Miss.

She returned in a few minutes with another platter of browned pieces of white and dark meat.

"You can have this if you want to pay for it," she advised, "but the boss is sure going to sock it to you."

When the feast was ended, the boss came around and collected 55 cents.

Woodville will also be remembered for another incident on the drive down Mississippi valley that has just been completed by THE TRIBUNE roadster. The sound fiddle and a guitar prompted a stop at a roadside dance hall.

Inside a gray haired fellow with a moustache that hid his mouth was calling, "swing your partners, one and all."

It was a square dance such as is rarely seen in the north, the spectators including girls in their teens with babies in their laps, barefoot boys black as well as white, and toothless grandparents.

Late one night south of Vicksburg, Miss., the roadster was stopped to rest the engine. Frogs from a nearby bayou were as noisy as taxicabs in a trafic jam.

On the far side of the water was a forest of evergreens with pointed tops silhouetted against the stars. Fireflies were so thick they looked like Christmas tree decorations.

In Memphis a retail credit men's convention was in session. From the loud singing in the hotel dining rooms it was apparent that they were having a good time.

Tennessee has not repealed its state prohibition, but mountain corn is reputed to be of a quality superior to Chicago's liquor of the bootleg era, and in drinking there is still what zest there might be found in defying an unpopular statute.

In the drive south from Chicago, the first atmosphere of Dixie was encountered in Cairo, the old town between the levees of the Mississippi and the Ohio rivers at the tip of Illinois. Paddle wheel flat boats were moored with barges.

A hotel on the river front was U. S. Grant's headquarters in the early days of the civil war. His room is preserved with the furnishings he used, simple accommodations without the benefits of modern plumbing. There is a walnut bar, dated 1848, that the general is said to have patronized.

The hills that encircle Vicksburg, scene of a forty-seven day battle in the civil war are now a national park with encampments of the Civilian Conservation corps mowing lawns and cleaning monuments. On another part of the battle ground is a golf course.

The little old city, in a bluff overlooking the Mississippi and Yazoo rivers includes several pre-war mansions with pillar fronts and with yards of oleanders, magnolias and gardenas. The flowers treat the nose as well as the eyes, while mocking birds and whip-poor-wills entertain the ears.

Natchez, another important city before the civil war, is also on a river bluff, farther south on the Mississippi. A nearby plantation was the girlhood home of Varina Howell Davis, first lady of the confederacy. It's population now is about 16,000.

South from Natchez, U. S. 61, is a gravel road deeply imbedded in a forest dense with vines and heavily hung with Spanish moss. For a few miles, the route is that of the old Natchez trace, which was a well worn trail when De Soto wrote of the Mississippi. Later the trace was followed by farmers returning afoot to the Ohio valley after having floated their crops to New Orleans.

The days have been hot, a bright sun beating down upon miles of cotton fields. The nights have been moonlight, the air soft on exposed arms and neck. Negroes, walking or riding mules along the road at night, sing or whistle.

Outside the state of Mississippi the roads have been good. Mississippi has many miles of gravel with blinding and choking dust.

THE TRIBUNE roadster is on a tour of the southland as an official World's Fair car with an assignment to stimulate travel to A Century of Progress. Newspapers, motor clubs and travel agencies are being furnished with information intended to promote interest in the 1934 Exposition.

The 1933 Fair attracted 5,465,000 visitors to Chicago. They left $400,000,000 at hotels, cafés, theaters, railway stations, garages, retail stores and at the Exposition grounds. This Century of Progress is a big business and if the promotional activities from THE TRIBUNE roadster can boost the number of visitors a fourth of one per cent, it will mean $1,000,000 to Chicago this summer.

LARD PRICES RISE DESPITE WEEK-END PROFIT TAKING

Buying of lard yesterday by commission houses and packers found offerings light until near the close, when profit taking appeared and checked the bulge. Closing trades were 10 to 12½ cents higher. Cash lard was 10 cents higher at $6.65; loose, 7½ cents higher at $6.12½, and leaf 12½ cents higher at $6.12½. Bellies were up 7½ cents at $9.57½. Prices follow:

MORGAN PARK CLUB LEADER FRIEND TO ALL

Homemaking First with Mrs. Schiele.

[This is the first of a series of biographical sketches on outstanding club women of the south side who have won for themselves distinctive places in their communities.]

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Crippled children, unemployed business women, delinquent boys and girls, dependent orphans, and convicted prisoners all have found a friend in Mrs. Silvester Schiele during her years in club work.

MRS. SYLVESTER SCHIELE.

They have come to rely on her kindly and common sense approach to their problems as much as do her fellow church and club workers, who are interested in solving those same problems. Repeatedly she has been placed in command of enterprises involving the rehabilitation of all types of unfortunates.

Women in Rotary Pioneer.

Women in Rotary, the Morgan Park Woman's club, the Morgan Park Baptist church woman's organization, and the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation have been her fields of activity.

It was at her suggestion that wives of Rotarians first undertook their work for crippled children. Now they contribute $600 annually to the Home for Destitute Crippled Children, have furnished a ward at the Illinois Research hospital, and prepare from three to four thousand layettes yearly for babies born at Cook county hospital. Mrs. Schiele was a charter member of Women in Rotary and their president from 1925 to 1927.

For four years she has been president of the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation. She has been much interested in the federation's work among girls and women in prison, and in its program at the parental school and the Park Ridge School for Girls, where she says the policy has been "to build lives today instead of mending them tomorrow."

Face Common Problem.

"I am denominational from the top of my head to the soles of my shoes, but I am convinced of the necessity of interdenominational work in a city the size of Chicago," Mrs. Schiele commented. "All the churches face common problems which exist on such a scale that they can best be met by cooperation among all the agencies interescted in working them out."

Mrs. Schiele was drawn into interdenominational work through her activity in the Baptist church. She has filled almost every job from president on down in the woman's auxiliary of the Morgan Park Baptist church, and has had a leading part in its community welfare work and its Red Cross sewing in the last four years. In the Morgan Park Woman's club she has served on the membership and welfare committees.

It was her husband, a founder and first president of Rotary, who was responsible for Mrs. Schiele's interest in crippled children. But her insight into human needs was first acquired in her years in an employment agency before her marriage. Almost every sort of difficulty was revealed to her in the daily routine of her work, which brought her into contact with every type of person.

Native of Michigan.

Mrs. Schiele was born near Jackson, Mich., and brought up at Owosso, Mich. Coming to Chicago in 1900, she was married to Mr. Schiele in 1909. They moved to Morgan Park from the north side and have lived in the brown house at 2028 West 110th street ever since.

"Homemaking is my real job—all these other activities are recreation to me," Mrs. Schiele declared. "I find that I appreciate my home the more for doing these other things. After busying myself with outside matters, I find I return to my home with renewed joy. I love cooking and taking care of the house, and my husband is just as much interested in his garden."

SERPENT ORDER EXPECTS 30,000 AT BIG SNAKE DANCE

South Chicago will be in her gayest holiday dress Saturday afternoon to welcome more than 30,000 persons who are expected to participate in a giant snake dance and jamboree at 2:30 o'clock.

The festivities will be held under the auspices of the Military Order of the Serpent and are to be directed by Rizal Lair. William Purdy will act as the grand gugu of the parade.

Prof. Haydon Will Talk on New Religious Trends

Professor A. E. Haydon of the University of Chicago, will speak on "New Trends in World Religions" tonight at the Hyde Park Baptist church, 5600 Woodlawn avenue, Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

KARLO W. BATRINSKI, Our Town's leading Croatian-American author, who writes in both languages, has dedicated a poem to the Rev. Bonaventura Bilandic, who is singing his first solemn high mass today at St. Jerome's church. The poem is in six stanzas and concludes:

"Your relatives and your friends wish
To you: with your calling to keep pace,
To be an example, a character strong
Of holy priesthood, of our Croatian race."

NOW we know what the mosquitoes have been doing during the drouth. Our friend B. J. DUE TO HIGHER WAGES, ADDED DAYS OF WORK

Employes Begin to Pay Their Debts.

Earning power of workers in the Calumet district has increased 23 per cent since March 1, an announcement from the Southeast Business council states.

The Calumet bondholders' service says the improvement is "helping us a lot." A large number of workers who were working only one or two days a week before March 1, had let their back rentals pile up. Now, according to the service, they are meeting their current obligations on time and paying substantially on their debts.

Calumet City went bungalow conscious before the depression. During the period of unemployment the owners were unable to paint or repair the small structures, consequently many improvements are now needed. Building supply dealers are of the opinion they will have more cash business in June than they have had in any one month since 1929.

Not Due to Wage Increases.

The business council was careful to explain that the 23 per cent increase in earnings does not mean that workers have been given a 23 per cent boost in wages. The increase is a combination of wage advances and more days per week work.

A report from the Illinois Steel mill points out that production during the last two weeks has been much higher than a fortnight's output has been for five years. The high tonnage for this period is a spurt due to unnatural causes, the report detailed, saying that steel users are buying materials in advance in anticipation of a price increase after Saturday. On Sunday the prices of steel will advance from $2 to $3.50 per ton.

Expect Additional Orders.

What production will do after the "sale" is over, no one semes to know, although many express belief there still will be enough big orders to keep all the present workers on the job.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and the Inland Steel company reported on Wednesday that they would not take any more orders for July 1 deliveries. They are preparing to make necessary repairs at their plants to handle an old time rush they believe will come within the next six months.

DEDICATE LEGION BUILDING AT FAIR NEXT SATURDAY

Mayor Grant E. Miller of the Town of Small Homes in A Century of Progress will present the key to the American Legion building to National Commander Edward A. Hayes next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Commander Hayes will take a leading part in the dedication services immediately afterward.

This building, which will serve as American Legion headquarters in A Century of Progress, is located between 27th and 28th streets, immediately south of the Home Planning hall and directly in front of the Gas Industry building. The Associated Manufacturers constructed the building and presented it to the Legion.

The building will be operated under the direction of William Barnes, representing the national department of the Legion, with Frank Muleedy and Emmet Grady acting as official hosts.

South Side Instructors Hail Return of the Tango

The lessons are given between 8 and 8:30 o'clock. Everybody is invited to enroll. There is no charge for the lessons.

HONOR PULLMAN VETERAN FOR HIS 45 YRS.' SERVICE

Grover Cleveland was just rounding out his first term as President of the United States when a wide-eyed youngster of 18 began criticizing the bad features of Pullman sleeping cars. That was in 1889.

Today this same person, Bert Dewey, who is 63 years old and resides at 7619 Phillips avenue, controls some 9,000 Pullman coaches. He is superintendent of car service. Wednesday he completed his 45th year with the company. A bouquet of 45 roses was placed on his desk by "the boys." A world atlas was presented by O. P. Bartlett, passenger trafic manager of the Southern Pacific railroad, on behalf of various Chicago rail representatives.

Mr. Dewey began his railroad career in the Buffalo office as messenger. In 1900 he was appointed agent at Minneapolis, assistant district superintendent at Omaha in 1903, assistant district superintendent at Chicago in 1905, and superintendent of car service in 1931.

DRESS UP BEACH FOR SOUTH SIDE WATER CARNIVAL

Woodlawn Merchants the Hosts at Frolic Friday.

One hundred and fifty prizes, ranging from gold coins to bouquets, are to be given to winners of contests Friday afternoon and evening during Woodlawn's water carnival at Jackson park beach.

The East 63d Street council, under whose sponsorship the program will be conducted, announced several days ago that more than 18,000 persons were expected to attend the celebration. Yesterday officials of the council estimated that the carnival will draw in excess of 22,000.

Bands from all parts of the south side are to play. The drum and bugle corps from the Fort Dearborn Legion post and the Elevated post will be among those participating. John Hasse is in charge of the former and Robert N. Griffin the latter.

Motor Boat Show a Feature.

The International Motor Boats and Sportsmen's exhibit, said to be a big show within itself, will be only one of the big features of the carnival.

Texas Jack, nationally famous canoe expert who is appearing at the World's Fair, will paddle his canoe from the Fair grounds to the Jackson park beach. He will be accompanied by Art Young, bow and arrow expert. They will be met by 30 young men and women dressed in Indian costumes. When the two men step out of the canoe, the Indians will surround them and stage a war dance.

A large number of girls have registered for the bathing beauty contest, but more are expected. Woodlawn theaters and the council's office, 1230 East 63d street, are accepting applications.

The Woodlawn Business Men's association, the Associated Clubs of Woodlawn and the South Park commissioners are coöperating with the council. The commissioners are dressing the beach in holiday colors.

All Entertainment Free.

Colored canopies, striped beach chairs and umbrellas will cheer those who stay on shore. Demands for recreation will be satisfied by soft ball, ping-pong and other sports, in charge of athletic directors from the south park.

The family need not go home for the evening meal, for a dinner of hot dogs, marshmallows, bacon and eggs may be prepared on the beach, where the commissioners are installing a large number of fireplaces. Tables and chairs also will be furnished.

There will be plenty of free parking space and all the entertainment will be free. The program will start at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and end at midnight with the crowning of Miss Woodlawn.

Seventy-five merchants of 75th street will conduct 75 cent sales on July 9, during the district's annual summer parade and jubilee.

From Yates avenue east to the lake, 75th street will be decorated with flags, buntings and pennants. Each of the participating shops is to have a novel window display.

It is estimated by those in charge that the parade alone should attract from 10,000 to 15,000 persons. High school orchestras, American Legion bands and a sound truck will furnish the instrumental music.

150 Beauties to Parade.

The parade will move east on 75th street from Colfax avenue at 10 a. m., with Boy Scouts in the lead. The Scouts will be followed by 150 or more bathing beauties, and the pretty girls will be followed by multi-colored floats.

The beauties will leave the parade at noon, rest for a while and then powder their noses in anticipation of two beauty contests, one at the Shore theater and the other at the Ray theater. The exact time of the judging will be announced later.

Among the judges are Dr. Robert Offie, Harry Au Buchon, Darwin Merkley, Paul H. Keawans, and Herbert O. Brown. The winner will be crowned Miss Grand Crossing.

Cash Awards for Letters.

After the coronation, prize winning letters written on the subject of, "Why We Should Boost the South Shore District," will be read and the winners given cash awards.

Subjects to be taught this summer include commercial art, orchestra, German, sewing, crafts, French, and dancing. Persons interested in the free classes are urged to seek additional information at their branch libraries.

HYDE PARK EVEN KEEPS FAMILY TIES IN TRADE

16 Firms Operated by Sisters and Brothers.

Before being annexed by the City of Chicago in 1889, Hyde Park was known as a village where families kept home ties. Today Hyde Park is known as an aristrocratic Chicago community where home ties still are kept even in business.

For many years large numbers of brothers and sisters in Hyde Park have been disregarding the ancient theory that it is not good for brothers and sisters to be partners. Within a small radius, 16 companies are conducted by members of the same families.

Some Family Combinations.

Some of the family combinations are Arthur and James Ballard, 1516 East 53d street, groceries and meats; George and Charles Bilger, 5203 Lake Park avenue, undertakers; Leonard and O. D. Burke, 5442 Lake Park avenue, meats; William and Daniel Carroll, 5153 Cottage Grove avenue, moving; John and Paul Cornell, 1511 Hyde Park boulevard, hotel, and Misses May and Helen Delahunty, 1509 East 53d street, lingerie.

State Already Has Money for $200,000 Project.

Construction of the $200,000 subway under the Nickel Plate tracks at 95th street is expected to start Saturday, according to reports from the railroad, the Illinois commerce commission and the Illinois state highway department.

Through gasoline tax funds and a federal loan, the Illinois state highway department has obtained the $200,000 in advance, thus eliminating any chance of a delay in the work that might be caused by the lack of funds.

This $200,000 is to pay for construction of the subway only. More than $18,000 is to be spent on track elevations for approaches to the subway. This latter cost will be borne by the Nickel Plate railroad.

Start Second Subway Soon.

Another South Chicago subway is planned to start this summer under the Nickel Plate and the Chicago and Western Indiana tracks at 87th street. The estimates call for the expenditure of approximately $300,000, to be met by the two carriers, according to A. C. Harvey, construction engineer employed by the railways.

"The money is ready and I see no reason why plans can not be completed for the viaduct by the middle of July," says Guy Gladson, attorney for the two companies. "This improvement is expected to speed up railroad trafic as well as street trafic. The railroads are willing to do everything within their power to better the communities through which they run."

Before the subway is started several thousand feet of tracks must be moved. Some of the sidings will not be replaced at 87th street, but are to be removed into a less congested district south of 103d street.

When the tracks are out of the way, building the subway will be comparatively easy, says Mr. Harvey.

Plans Are Improved.

The present specifications for the 95th street subway include several improvements over the plans drafted two years ago by the railroad, according to the Illinois commerce commission. The new estimates call for a 44 foot span, providing four trafic lanes and six foot sidewalks. The former ones called for a narrower span and a center support. Piers between trafic lanes are said to cause a large percentage of all accidents in viaducts.

The Illinois state highway department and the railroads will install lighting fixtures in the new subways. The city will pay for the current consumed.

Frank W. Rieder, 50 Years a School Teacher, Is Honored

"Education has progressed in the last half century, but human nature is still the same. And the best way to influence a child still is to make him feel your interest in him, your confidence in his potentialities."

FRANK W. RIEDER.

That was the message Frank W. Rieder, veteran principal of the Bennett school, gave members of the Bennett Parent-Teacher association at the luncheon they held for him last week-end at the Windermere East hotel. The occasion was the fiftieth anniversary of his entrance into the teaching profession, and golden table decorations and yellow roses carried out the theme of the party.

Given Painting of Dunes.

Mrs. M. L. Levin, chairman of the luncheon, thanked Mr. Rieder in behalf of the association for his tireless efforts to further the interests of the children in his charge, and presented him with an oil painting, "A Windy Day in the Dunes," by Frank V. Dudley. The subject is of particular interest to Mr. Rieder, who has had a summer home in the dunes near Saugatuck, Mich., for many years.

His career, which he outlined briefly for the association, opened with his assignment to the old Stone Quarry school in Bremen township, near what is now Robbins. Fifty pupils of all ages were crowded into the single room of the schoolhouse, and here he first applied the educational methods learned under Col. Francis W. Parker at the old Cook County Normal school. Previously he had attended the Holden school and the old South Division High school.

Made Principal in 1890.

After a year in Bremen township he was transferred to the Worth village school, where again he had about 50 pupils, representing all eight grades. Two years later he was moved to the Brighton Park school, and he taught the upper grades there until he was transferred to the new Burnside school as principal in 1890.

For 39 years Mr. Rieder directed the destinies of the Burnside school, 650 East 91st place. During this period he married Mrs. Rieder, who was in the Burnside's school's first graduating class in 1894, and their three children subsequently were graduated from the school.

Then, in 1928, the Bennett school was opened at 10115 Praire avenue, and again Mr. Rieder was intrusted with the task of getting a new institution established. Before he was transferred, the Burnside Parent-Teacher association had his portrait painted by Paul North and hung in the school at farewell exercises. Last year the Fernwood school also was placed under his jurisdiction.

The Rieders had lived in the vicinity of the Burnside school until two years ago, when they moved to 10534 South Hamilton avenue. Their daughter, Norinne, was senior bacteriologist at Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital until a year ago. Their elder son, Frank, is an advertising executive, and the younger son, David, is a student at Wheaton college. There is one grandchild.

AFTER TEACHING 43 YEARS SHE'LL VISIT SCHOOLS!

Retiring Veteran 'Never Had Time Before.'

A lifelong Chicagoan, Miss Matilda C. Krimmel, 7635 South Sangamon street, ended a teaching career of 43 years in the city's schools with the close of school last week-end.

Her retirement will not, however, interfere with the interests of a lifetime as an educator. After a vacation spent in northern Wisconsin and at A Century of Progress, which she is interested in comparing with the 1893 World's Fair and last year's Exposition, Miss Krimmel will begin a round of visits to friends and former pupils who are teaching in various Chicago schools.

Pioneer in P.-T. A. Movement.

"Something I've always wanted to do and haven't had time before to attempt," Miss Krimmel explained her "busman's holiday." She also will keep up her contact with the Parent-Teacher association of the Madison school, where she last taught and where she was active as treasurer, correspondent, and member of the school beautiful committee. She was a pioneer in the parent-teacher movement.

Later she plans to make her fourth European trip with a niece. One of her most interesting adventures came about on a previous journey in the summer of 1914. When war broke out she was in Rome, and when she finally got accommodations on a steamship bound for America she found she had to share the ship's smoking room as sleeping quarters with 25 other passengers. On her next trip she will visit northern Germany and possibly Scandinavia.

Born here shortly before the great Chicago fire, Miss Krimmel remembers walking through the ruins with her father as a tiny child. She attended the Moseley school and the Mark Sheridan school, and during her school days frequently walked through cherry orchards from the end of the street car line at 34th street to call at her uncle's home in the vicinity of 50th and State streets.

Sings in 1893 Fair Chorus.

At the old South Division High school she studied under its famous old white haired principal, Jeremiah Slocum, and William Tomlins, who aroused an interest in music that never left her. She sang in his chorus that opened the 1893 World's Fair and later sang in the Chicago Teachers' chorus for a number of years.

Miss Krimmel's first assignment was the old Carter Harrison school, on the near south side, where she taught from 1887 until the fall of 1893. Then she went to the Carter school, 61st street and Wabash avenue, teaching fourth, fifth, and sixth grades there for 16 years. Followed 17 years at Oglesby school.

In 1926 Miss Krimmel resigned because of ill health, but after the crash of 1929 she resumed her teaching. She spent two years at the Beale school, 61st and Sangamon streets, and two years at the Madison school, 74th street and Dorchester avenue, where she taught art and science in the upper grades.

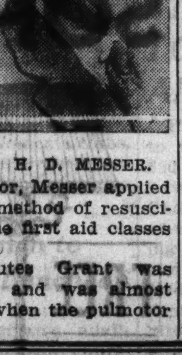
Discoverer of Art Talent.

Discovering artistic talent in her pupils always has been Miss Krimmel's specialty. Years ago, at the Harrison school, Rudolph Ingerle, the artist, drew beautiful maps in her classes, and at the Madison school she taught young Walter Kanya, whom she considers another artist in the making. Incidentally, a large part of her time abroad has been spent in art galleries.

It was the teachers of the Madison school who gave a farewell luncheon for her at Marshall Field & Co.'s restaurant shortly before her retirement and presented her with a purse in recognition of her work in the school and its parent-teacher association.

REMEMBERS LIFE SAVING LESSONS AND WINS MEDAL

Harold D. Messer, 1113 East 61st street, a boiler room engineer for the Commonwealth Edison company, was awarded a life saving medal by the National Safety council recently for reviving Walter Grant last November in a gas filled room at the Grant home, 6107 Greenwood avenue.



H. D. MESSER.

Summoned by the cries of Grant's mother, Messer found Grant, a student of the University of Chicago, unconcious. With the help of a neighbor, Messer applied the prone pressure method of resuscitation, learned in the first aid classes of his company.

Within 20 minutes Grant was breathing normally and was almost completely revived when the pulmotor squad arrived.

SOUTHEAST SIDE CHAMBER WILL LINK TWO STATES

6 Community Groups Plan Joint Action.

Plans were formulated last week at a meeting at 3112 East 135th street, for an unique chamber of commerce which is to serve portions of both Illinois and Indiana.

AARON LEEDY.

The chamber, according to tentative arrangements, is to be composed of 600 business men from East Side, Hegewisch, Hammond, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, and Whiting chambers. Persons wishing to join the Illinois-Indiana Chamber of Commerce, the name of the new organization, must first become a member of one of the six community chambers.

Alternate Meeting Places.

Meetings will be held monthly on call, alternating among the districts.

Aaron A. Leedy, president of the Hegewisch organization and original advocate of the combination, says:

"It will take time to perfect the organization, but all details can be worked out shortly. Other nearby communities work together for mutual benefits and I see no reason why East Side, Hegewisch, Hammond, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, and Whiting can't, in spite of the fact they represent two states.

"Human nature is the same the world over, and I can't understand why these six communities haven't formed a joint organization long ago. I suppose the state line had something to do with the delay.

"But in today's business and social life there are no boundaries. Trains, automobiles, and airplanes have wiped them out. Therefore, the 'stay in your own back yard' economic theory is more traditional than practical.

Outline Group Activities.

"Hegewisch folks are in closer contact with many of the Indiana communities than they are with Englewood, Hyde Park, and Woodlawn. Since that is the case, why shouldn't we forget the state line as easily as inter-city business and professional men forget streets?"

Among activities planned for the new group are:

[2] Window decorating contests, offering liberal sums of cash for first, second, and third prizes.

[3] The formation of a greater Illinois-Indiana community.

Drexel Presbyterian Choir Will Give Final Concert

The senior choir of Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue, will hold its final concert at 8 o'clock this evening. John O'Connor, violinist, will be soloist. Fred Farrel, organist, is director. The annual vacation communion service will be held at 11 this morning.

DANCE CHAIRMAN

Miss Rosalind Conley, 6024 Indiana avenue, is chairman of a summer formal to be given Saturday night by the Phi Theta Chi and Sigma Theta Rho sororities at the Lincolnshire Country club.

Women of St. Louis Church to Hold Banquet Today

Women of St. Louis church will hold their annual banquet in tribute to St. John the Baptist at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the parish hall, 117th and State streets. Members of the Club Canado-American will be special guests.

GIRL SCOUT DAY CAMPS IN PARKS OPEN TOMORROW

The day camp project, initiated last summer by Chicago Girl Scouts, proved so popular and successful that Miss Mary Ellen Peckham, camp director, has announced that this summer's program is to be enlarged. Instead of three camps, five will be held weekly in as many parks.

Season Starts Tomorrow.

The central district girls will meet in Douglas park on Wednesdays with Mrs. S. S. Smith, 1123 North Central avenue, in charge. Mrs. S. A. Teufel, 4135 Drexel boulevard, will take the southeast girls to Jackson park on Thursdays. Friday is the day the north side girls go to camp in Lincoln park. Mrs. H. L. Dryer, 1416 Olive avenue, sponsors this group. The camp period begins Monday, June 25, and ends on Friday, Aug. 17.

Starting at 10 a. m., the girls will be kept busy until 3:30 in the afternoon with a program of singing, simple dramatics, folk dancing, puppetry, handicraft, nature lore, and Scoutcraft.

Each camp group has decided upon a theme which they will work on throughout the summer, and around which their program has been built.

Outline Study Subjects.

The north and southwest side girls will study Indian lore; the totem pole in Lincoln park being the inspiration for the group that meets there, while the southwest group will approach the subject from the angle of local history.

At the close of the camp season each group will hold a handicraft show and plans are being made to give a pageant portraying the things they have learned about the theme they have studied. Mrs. O. R. Sellers, 846 Chalmers place, is general chairman of the camp project.

RADIO BUSINESS CONTINUES BRISK DESPITE SUMMER

Several Newer Programs Are Reviewed.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

For four years knee deep in June has usually meant waist deep in doldrums as far as radio is concerned. This year things are different. The air is filled with entertaining programs and particularly good music—the kind that is usually available on the kilocycles only during the winter months. A half dozen symphony orchestras are on the air—or will be within the fortnight. These include the Chicago Symphony, with W-G-N as the outlet; the Detroit Symphony, the Milwaukee Philharmonic, the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Symphony, the Pittsburgh and St. Louis orchestras.

And what is more significant, from a business point of view at least, is that noteworthy new commercial programs are starting out on the air in midsummer. In many instances sponsors are not so much concerned over their sales for the next two months as they are in staking out a good time-spot for fall. Choice evening hours are going to be at a premium this fall—that's apparent.

Reviews of New Programs.

LUM AND ABNER—[W-G-N]—Here's a program of rustic humor and philohophy featuring those drawly dialecticians from Arkansas, Chester Lauck and Norris Goff. These chaps have had substantial followings during their network broadcasts, particularly in the rural regions. Everything about them and their broadcasts is as authentic for the locale they represent as the carryings on of Deacon Carl Moore, well known hereabouts. Sponsor started them off with a handicap last Sunday evening by running off a stiff sales talk before they could say as much as "Howdydo."

SPOTLIGHT REVUE—[CBS]—A star spangled show that reveals Col Stoopnagle and Budd at their zaniest; Everett Marshall in fine singing form, Vivien Ruth and the gentlemen from Milwaukee contributing good vocal harmony. Successor to the ill fated "Program of the Week" the new effort comes nearer meriting the old title. Henry Busse's music is missed. Victor Young is the new batoneer. The 45 minutes seems to be almost equally divided between entertainments and blurbs for beer buying. Even in hot weather that's too much.

10 Symphonic Hours a Week.

DETROIT SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA—[CBS]—Director Victor Kolar deserves congratulations for the choice and interpretation of music he puts on the air about 10 hours a week from the Ford shell at the Fair. The selections are not too high brow for summer time listening. The numbers are well known and generally liked by most folks who make any pretense to listening to good music. It seems unfortunate that more of the broadcasts are not spotted on a major Chicago station.

THE GARDEN PARTY—[NBC]—Starring Gladys Swarthout, who has found great favor as a radio singer on the Beauty Box theater this program seems somewhat botched. The popular mezzo-soprano is forced to sing such numbers as "The Man I Love" instead of the things that are suited to her. It's like giving Kreisler a mail order violin. Though the narrator [announcer] reads lyrical script introducing the songs he fails to name either the singer or the number. The program is attractive but could be made much more so without added effort or expense.

SINGIN' SAM—[CBS]—A competent singer turns his efforts to plugging the product. If one announcer is not regarded as sufficient to sell the beer, why not bring in a half dozen and let all have a try at it? But spare Sam for the singing. [On NBC Irene Beasley is forced to do the same thing. When the announcer and a doctor take a rest from their dandruff killer selling the singer takes up the task. It's the show—instead of the product—that gets in your hair.]

Crawford Plans to Stay.

Jesse Crawford just happened onto his new job playing the organ at the Swift shell at the Fair. He was called here, with his wife, Helen, also noted as an organist, because of the serious illness of her father, from Cleveland. Learning of his visit here Swift officials soon put him to work. Now he plans to stay indefinitly, probably taking up permanent residence here again. He is considering some broadcasts from the organ in the old WENR studios in the Opera building.

Schotta and Thomas to Be Concert Soloists Tonight

Joseph Schotta, flutist, and Oliver Thomas, clarinetist, of the W-G-N orchestra, will be featured tonight in the "Concert Hour" program from 7:15 to 8 o'clock. This duo will offer a special arrangement of Saint-Saens' "Tarentella" as the feature of the 45 minute program. A special arrangement of "Lotus Land" by Cyril Scott, "Slavic Rhapsody" by Friedman, and Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in G Minor" also will be presented by the orchestra directed by Ernest Pechin.

DORINGS SING FOR TINY "HELEN MORGAN"

Helen Morgan has nothing on this little miss except that Helen sings while seated on a piano and little Donna Salvo, daughter of W-G-N's organist, Leonard Salvo, just sits and listens while "The Three Mixers," the Doring Sisters, Helen, Ruth, and Grace, sing "This Little Piggy Went to Market," Donna's favorite song.

June Baker Budget Plan Brings Flood of Letters

Judging from the numbers of requests received by June Baker, W-G-N's home management expert, there are a great number of women in W-G-N's listening audience interested in establishing new budgets for their households. Miss Baker announced last week that she had a new, prepared and printed budget to give to any one interested. The mail began to pour in. There were many letters from brides and many others from experienced housewives. All were anxious to get the budget plan.

CLARA, LU 'N' EM TO APPEAR WITH NEW YORK SHOW

For the first time in their four years on the air, Clara, Lu, 'n' Em are going to New York to join a stellar radio cast and add their inimitable, homespun humor to an hour's extravaganza. The beloved chattering queens, who have a gigantic following of their own, will be a major attraction of the Beauty Box theater Tuesday evening, July 3. Their amusing banter will be heard between the acts of "Robin Hood," an operetta by Henry de Koven to be broadcast that evening over an NBC coast to coast network.

The girls will leave Chicago next Saturday and arrive in New York the following day. They will do their fifteen minute program of banter and gossip from the New York studios of NBC Monday morning, July 2, and throughout the week. Their program is heard Monday to Friday, inclusive, over W-G-N and NBC.

While in New York, Clara, Lu, 'n' Em—Louise Starkey, Isobel Carothers, and Helen King—will see all the sights and, each morning, tell their listeners all about their adventures in the big city. They plan to window shop on 5th avenue, visit Radio City, the Bronx zoo, the Statue of Liberty, and all the better known landmarks.

TRIBUNE'S NEW HEALTH EDITOR SPEAKS TONIGHT

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the Northwestern University school of medicine and the new health editor of THE TRIBUNE, will speak on "How to Keep Well" at 8 o'clock tonight over W-G-N. Dr. Cutter has been dean at Northwestern since 1915 and medical director of the Pasavant hospital, Chicago, since 1928. He also is a trustee of Northwestern university and Wesley Memorial hospital. Dr. Cutter is a member of several national and international medical organizations and the author of several books on medicine and surgery. He conducts the daily column on "How to Keep Well" in THE TRIBUNE.

Annual Influx of Mail from Antipodes Starts

The annual influx of mail to W-G-N's engineering department from Australia and New Zealand asking for verifications of reception of W-G-N's programs has started. Chief Engineer Carl J. Meyers reports several letters from the "down under" countries and all of them report fine reception of W-G-N's programs. New Zealand and Australian listeners are organized into "DX" clubs and each year THE TRIBUNE station received hundreds of letters during the late spring and early summer when W-G-N's programs are best received in these two foreign countries. This week letters were received from Tauranga, Balcutha, and Timaru in New Zealand.

DELAMARTER TO TAKE SYMPHONY BATON ON JULY 1

Chicago Orchestra Will Broadcast on W-G-N.

Under the baton of Eric Delamarter, composer, organist and assistant conductor, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, one of the greatest musical organizations of the world, will open its summer broadcast schedule over W-G-N next Sunday, July 1. The broadcasts of the Chicago orchestra's music will be presented from the Swift Bridge of Service at A Century of Progress and will be heard three evenings each week during the summer months.

The programs will be presented in the open air band shell which was constructed especially for the orchestra and before an audience of 1,700 people. W-G-N will broadcast each Wednesday evening from 8 to 9 p. m., Saturday evenings from 9:15 to 10 p. m. and Sunday evenings from 8 to 10 p. m. during the summer series of concerts. The orchestra will play in the big band shell every day from 3:30 to 5:30 and from 8 to 10 p. m. for the public.

Dr. Stock Will Return.

Dr. Frederic Stock, the director, who has been spending a vacation in Europe, will take the baton later in the season. In addition to Mr. Delamarter and Dr. Stock, other internationally famous directors are to be guest conductors.

Music of the type of the "pop" concerts of the regular winter season will be played by the symphony orchestra. These concerts were broadcast by W-G-N during the winter months and were very popular with radio listeners. The concerts will be made up of the better known music of the classics such as Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" and operatic airs and ballet music.

Palmer Clark to Return.

Mr. Delamarter, conductor for the first week of the series, studied in Paris under Charles Marie Widor and Alexandre Guilmant. He returned to Chicago to take over the duties of organist and choir master of the city's leading churches and is a member of the faculty of the Chicago Musical college. He became assistant director of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in 1918.

The Palmer Clark orchestra and singers, heard from the Bridge of Service during the early weeks of the Fair, will conclude its service next Saturday but will return again in the fall to conclude the musical program at the bridge during the closing weeks of the Exposition.

SEALYHAM WILL BE BECKER TOPIC WEDNESDAYNIGHT

The English Sealyham terrier, that famous little dog with the "underslung chassis," will be one of the interesting breeds of dogs discussed on Bob Becker's radio program over W-G-N this week. Bob has invited Dr. Noel S. Young of Lake Forest, the well known midwestern breeder of Sealyhams, to discuss this breed at 9:30 next Wednesday night. Among the points which Dr. Young will bring out is the way the Sealyham has been used in England to fight badgers and other vermin.

Tomorrow night Bob's program will take up the problem of caring for a puppy. He will give radio listeners a number of common sense tips on how to handle an 8 or 10 weeks old pup.

Guy Bush Ball Broadcast Brings Him 5,000 Letters

The whole Cub ball club is reading W-G-N fan mail these days. Guy Bush, pitching star of the Cubs who has been out of uniform nursing an injured back for the past ten days, dropped into the W-G-N booth at Wrigley field the other day and Bob Elson invited Guy to broadcast a part of the game. The result brought Guy more than 5,000 letters from listeners. Bush has a whole locker full of the missives and the boys of the team get a big kick reading Guy's mail telling him how great he was as a baseball broadcaster.

WAYNE KING TO WALTZ BACK ON AIRWAYS JULY 3

Anson Weeks to Move to Trianon.

Fireworks galore will be exploding at the Aragon on Tuesday, July 3, when Wayne King and his famous orchestra return to the north side dance palace, and to W-G-N, following the first real vacation in the history of the band. Anson Weeks, who has been playing at the Aragon during Wayne's absence, will have his farewell party on the night of Sunday, July 1, at which time he is going to make a tour of one nighters, after which he will return to the sister ballroom, the Trianon. His south side appearance will take place some time during the middle part of July.

Ceremonies Are Planned.

With his reappearance on the Aragon bandstand still over a week away, Wayne is busy playing golf and fishing out in California. Being on the golf course almost every day, Wayne has had a chance to hammer down his score until he's hit the low 70s and winning driving contests.

Appropriate ceremonies are being planned for the opening of the orchestra at the Aragon, because besides marking the homecoming of the waltz king, it also marks the start of his eighth season.

Several thousand letters have been received from out of town listeners of W-G-N who are planning to come to the World's Fair and intend visiting the Aragon during their stay.

He'll Have Writer's Cramp.

These writers-in all want to know when the waltz king is to return. With their visits from all parts of the country, it appears as though King will have an opportunity to repeat his autograph labors of last year, when he signed his name over 100,000 times to the delight of dancers from all corners of the United States, from Alaska, South America, and even one visitor from far off Australia.

When Wayne returns to the Aragon his orchestra will be intact. All of the familiar faces will be back with the waltz king collaborating on the music that has won the acclaim of the nation from the Aragon and W-G-N.

HOLLYWOOD WAMPUS STARS ON CHICAGO THEATER BROADCAST

The pick of Hollywood's peach crop, the 1934 Wampus Baby Stars, will demonstrate that acting ability rather than beauty entered into their selection as the foremost cinema starlets, when they take part in the Chicago theater broadcast over W-G-N at 9:30 Tuesday night.

Although each of the 13 girls will be introduced, several will take more prominent parts in the program. Among these will be Hazel Hayes, former operatic prima donna; LuAnne Meredith, recently of "Strike Me Pink"; Lucille Lund, Northwestern University's "All-American Girl"; Jean Gale of the famed Gale triplets, and Betty Bryson, young Fox star.

Another Hollywood personality on the direct-from-the-stage air show, will be Billy Costello, "voice" of the screen cartoon character, "Pop-eye The Sailor." Stanley Morner, tenor; Ted Claire, Broadway jester, and Josef Cherniavsky whose Chicago theater orchestral production will feature Han Muenzer as violin soloist.

ARTHUR HENNING TO GIVE FINAL TALK TONIGHT

In response to many requests Arthur Sears Henning, head of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's editorial staf in Washington, D. C., and dean of the capital's newspaper correspondents, will present another of his famous "Capital Comment" programs at 8:30 o'clock tonight over W-G-N. Mr. Henning was to have closed his series last Sunday evening, but after reading the mail sent to his office this last week decided to present one more program, cleaning up the situations and conditions surrounding the final sessions of congress. Tonight's talk will be the final of Mr. Henning's present series. He will return to the air next fall.

THOUSAND ENTER MUSIC FESTIVAL VOCAL CONTESTS

Preliminary Competitions to Be Week of Aug. 13.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

Nearly 1,000 men, women, boys, and girls have sent in their entries for the choral contests to be conducted preliminary to the Chicagoland Music Festival concert in Soldiers' Field, on Saturday night, Aug. 18, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and cooperating newspapers and musical and civic organizations throughout the middle west. Of the 21 choruses entered to date, 13 are registered from Cook county.

A preliminary choral competition will be held in the grand ballroom of the Drake, the winners to compete against the incoming Chicagoland singers on the Festival Saturday afternoon. The schedule for the Cook county choruses is as follows: Men's choruses—Monday night, Aug. 13; women's choruses—Tuesday night, Aug. 14; and mixed choruses—Aug. 15. All contests will start promptly at 7 o'clock.

In addition to choral contests, competition will be held for adult and juvenile bands and drum corps, mixed quartets and vocalists more than 16 years old. An entry blank accompanies this story.

All choruses, bands, and drum corps taking part in the preliminaries and finals of the Festival will sing or play in the massed numbers in the concert in Soldiers' Field.

Medals for Winners.

Many of the choruses are returning for the second and third time to the musical combat. Gold and silver medals will be given choral winners and additional third place bronze medals to band, drum corps, and mixed quartet champions.

In order that adult drum corps from Chicago suburbs may enter the contest, which will be held Saturday afternoon, Aug. 18, in Soldiers' Field, the scheduled time has been changed from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. This will make it possible for men working until noon on that Saturday to change to their uniforms and be in their places for the review.

Victor Grabel, general musical director of the festival, and conductor of the festival concert band, will be in charge of the band contests, to be held in the Knickerbocker and Drake hotels; Fred Miller will supervise the drum corps competitions; and Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler will be chairman of the choral and vocal contests.

South Side Choruses.

Two choral groups outside of Cook county entered in the Festival are the First Presbyterian mixed choir of Hammond, directed by John McNeill, and the Lambda Chi Womens' chorus of Gary, directed by Alyce Martin McNamara. The Hammond chorus was organized in 1892 and Mr. McNeil has been its director for 15 years. The Gary group, just three years old, is composed of business girls. It will be sponsored by the Gary Y. W. C. A.

Among the south side choruses will be the Parker Mothers' chorus, composed of the mothers of pupils in the Parker elementary and high schools, directed by Mrs. Grace Humphrey; the Cathryne Bennett singers, made up of young working girls, conducted by Cathryne Bennette, and the Chicago Daughters of Isabella Choral society, led by Prof. Clement Hutter. The last named group won first place in Chicago in the 1932 Festival contest.

Any uniformed band or drum corps residing in Cook county finding it impossible to enter the contests on the Festival Saturday are invited to take part in the entry parade which will open the concert in Soldiers' field promptly at 6:30 o'clock. SCHOOLING FREE FOR FATHER, BUT YOUTH MUST PAY

U. S. Project Reverses Usual Order.

Fifteen hundred boys and girls and 2,000 men and women of the south side enrolled last week for summer high school courses. The youngsters will study at the Tilden and Hyde Park High schools and the adults will attend classes in churches, lodge halls, and hotels.

The matter of free education has been somewhat reversed in this summer's setup, which divides itself into two distinct divisions—one for children and the other for adults.

As a rule, the youngsters get their education free, while adults beyond high school age must pay tuition for day courses. But during this summer the adults will be taught free through the emergency educational program, successor to the civil works' educational service, while youths of high school age must pay $12 for the first major subject, $8 for the second, and $4 for each minor subject.

Start Listing Meeting Places.

The free schools for adults are held at various hours of the day and night. An accurate list of the meeting places of the EEP classes is expected to be compiled by the end of the week, according to Benjamin Van Riper, director of the project.

Two of the chief purposes of the free schools for adults are to increase employment by giving jobless instructors and specialists work and to give adults, hungry for education, a chance to complete their grade and high school courses. The EEP courses do not carry college entrance credits.

In commenting upon the summer high school courses Joseph F. Gonnelly, principal of the Hyde Park High school, said:

"This new plan is helping both the students and the teachers. Of course, the teachers need ready cash which their share of tuitions gives them. The pupils need extra credits. Some desire to complete their course in shorter time, while others are attempting to earn credits they failed to receive during the regular sessions.

Teachers Learning, Too.

Mr. Van Riper is of the opinion that something drastic is happening to instructors in their attempts to teach the adults who are rushing back to school and that, in fact, a new type of teacher is being developed. This type is, and must always be, according to Mr. Van Riper, quite different from the schoolma'am that teaches little Peter, Jane, and Jimmy.

"The teachers in the EEP schools are learning, for instance, that civics cannot be taught to dad and mother like it is taught to sister and sonny. The majority of these instructors have been recruited from the ranks of the unemployed. Many of them have never taught before, but have been in specialized occupations and are well fitted to explain the technics of their professions."

Dr. Carl F. Huth, director of Chicago Adult Educational council, says federal funds are to be credited with revolutionizing adult education here and that the CWES and the EEP have made going back to school a pleasure. He is of the opinion that thousands of persons will come out of the depression much better equipped to grasp opportunities than they were in 1929.

HOBBY BOOKS TELL OF YOUTHS' WORK IN PARKS

Whole World to Hear of South Side Projects.

English speaking youngsters in all parts of the civilized world soon may have a chance to learn how boys of the south side of Chicago use their leisure time, according to V. K. Brown, director of playground activities for the South Park commissioners.

Mr. Brown is now reading the printer's proofs of 12 small books describing handcraft work as executed by youths from the 20 south side parks. He calls the volumes "Flowers of the Depression," inasmuch as they were written during the worst part of the economic disturbance to help youngsters who had been denied almost every kind of entertainment that cost money.

More Books May Follow.

Mr. Brown adds that 38 additional volumes may be published this year, depending on the success of the 12.

"These booklets are not being issued to make money," Mr. Brown says. "The South Park commissioners selected projects that have given our youngsters the most happiness. The stories of these projects are written in clear, terse English so that anyone may understand them.

"The primary purpose of the small volumes is to help more south siders of the teen age and under to enjoy life fully. However, a surplus of the small volumes will be printed so there will be an ample supply for English speaking athletic directors in all parts of the world.

"Every outstanding city is noted for some prominent social activity. Chicagoans, I am sure, would be proud to have the world recognize their home city as the metropolis that revolutionized youth activities."

Help Youngsters Record Plans.

The book idea was born last winter as officials of the South Park board watched youngsters make crude drawings and scribbled compositions in an attempt to record their new hobby plans.

The board soon asked for draftsmen, to be paid by the Civil Works administration. When the draftsmen were assigned to the South Park board they not only perfected the drawings made by youngsters, but also dressed up plans made by Mr. Brown and other employés of the South Park.

Then the draftsmen followed the boys at their work in fieldhouses, recording, step by step, each process in the making of almost everything from model airplanes to puppets. Some of the new ideas made workable by the boys and recorded by the CWA workers were instructions for making telescopes, fancy kites, electrical toys, Venetian floats, and decorative lanterns.

Mr. Brown will be aided in circulating the books by the National Recreation association, which is in touch with all types of recreation organizations throughout the world.

South Shore Chamber to Play Golf Wednesday

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a community golf tournament all day Wednesday at the Cherry Hill Country club, near Flossmoor. A luncheon will be served at 2 in the afternoon, followed by a brief musical program. During the afternoon a photographer will take trick motion pictures of players. The results will be exhibited at a future meeting. Among those in charge of the program are Elmer A. Johnson, chairman, S. V. Ronksley, A. R. Marks and Thomas Jones.

500 COMMUNITY GROUPS TO STUDY YOUTH PROBLEMS

Joseph F. Gonnolly, principal of the Hyde Park High school, will head a south side delegation which will attend an organizing conference on youth problems to be held at 7:30 Tuesday night in the theater of the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East Eleventh street.

Representatives of 500 organizations from all local communities in Chicago will attend the conference at which vital problems concerning unemployment and environmental improvement in the interests of Chicago young people will be the main topic of discussion.

Mrs. James Grant, south district director for the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, also will attend.

The meeting has been called by William J. Bogan, superintendent of Chicago schools, in coöperation with the Chicago Youth Week federation, Parent-Teacher organizations and other groups interested in youth. Mr. Bogan will introduce Henry P. Chandler, president of the Chicago Youth Week federation.

Club Leaders Aiding 111th Street Project.

Feminity comes into its own this week at the 111th street Y. M. C. A., corner of State street, with launching of a "learn to swim" campaign for girls and women. This is the first major activity of the new woman's department of the "Y."

Leading women of the south end community will hold the second of a series of meetings Thursday evening to formulate a policy for the department and to advise as to its program.

The first was held June 14, and was addressed by Thurre W. Johnson, chairman of the committee of management, who outlined the movement to open a woman's department. Miss W. S. Aveling, director of women's work of the Chicago "Y," Miss Bladholm, J. O. Bauer, executive secretary of the 111th street "Y," and L. E. Dyer, program director, also explained various phases of the movement.

Club Leaders to Attend.

Among those who will either be present or send representatives are Mrs. H. H. Siddell, district 25 director of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. R. J. De Motte, Mrs. Richard Waalkes, and Mrs. Thurre W. Johnson of the Roseland Woman's club; Mrs. John L. Lace and Mrs. Edna O. Matheson of the Bennett Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. Paul F. Sander and Mrs. George F. Cassidy of the West Pullman Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. J. E. Candlin and Mrs. P. T. Jones of the Ken-Rose Woman's club.

Others interested in the new department are Mrs. E. W. De Witt and Miss Edna Wilson of the West Pullman Woman's club; Mrs. Perry J. Van Tongeren and Mrs. J. O. Peterson of the Brenan Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. F. L. Johnson, Mrs. Harry Jonson, Mrs. Olga Solfisburg, Mrs. Mercedes Luxton, Miss Alice Buchinski, and Miss Evelyn Johnson.

Miss Gladys Bladholm, 11420 Parnell avenue, a graduate of Kendall College of Physical Education, and formerly associated with the woman's department of the South Chicago "Y," is the director of the new 111th street "Y."

Day and Evening Classes.

She has planned the "learn to swim" campaign to include classes for girls 12 to 18, and women over 18 years old. Daytime classes will be held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, and evening classes on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

Saturday evening the novice swimmers will exhibit their new ability at a demonstration to which their friends will be invited. All women and girls of the community are eligible to join the class without cost.

Also on Saturday evening a play night will be held for freshman and sophomore girls of Fenger High school with stunts, swimming and an informal program. A similar party was held for senior and junior girls with 75 in attendance.

A drive for women members has been launched and committees are being selected to further the campaign. The women's work will fall into three groups, as scheduled by Miss Bladholm. Girls 12, 13, and 14 will be grouped in one division; girls 15 to 17 in a second; and women 18 year old and over in a third.

Matrons' classes will be held Tuesday and Friday mornings; girls classes, Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings; older girls' afternoon classes, Monday, Tuesday, and Friday. Evening classes for business women will meet Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

For the youngest girls there will be playground activities, handicraft classes and educational trips in addition to the swimming and gymnastics in which older groups will participate. Ultimately Miss Bladholm hopes to organize girls' groups similar to the 4-Square clubs already organized for boys.

WHITE BOY
IT ISN'T FAIR FOR BUNNY TO DO ALL THE WORK —
WHITEBOY'S QUEER CARAVAN HAS MADE LITTLE PROGRESS. THE COLT IS NOW ABLE TO WALK, BUT WHIMPER STILL RIDES IN THE TRAVOIS. WHITEBOY HAS JUST DECIDED TO MAKE THE PINTO MARE PULL THE LOAD FOR A WHILE HEY! WHAT'S GOING ON BACK THERE?
ALL RIGHT, WHOEVER YOU ARE!
DARKNESS FORCES THE OUTFIT TO CAMP
WILD VOICES OF THE NIGHT FAIL TO DISTURB WHITEBOY; BUT AT DAWN HE STARTS UP SUDDENLY — A PEBBLE HAS RATTLED DOWN FROM ABOVE

A STRAIN on the FAMILY TIE
BY GAAR WILLIAMS
FER TH' LOVE OF MIKE, WHAT'S TH' MEANING OF ALL THIS SUDDEN INDUSTRY AND SO EARLY IN TH' MORNING?
BR-R-R
BUDDY, I NEVER SAW SUCH A FINE EXAMPLE OF INDUSTRY. IT'S DISTINCTLY A NEW THING IN THE GREEN FAMILY LINE!
AND YOUR UNCLE AND I ARE PROUD TO SEE YOU TAKE SUCH AN INTEREST IN THE PLACE. IT SHOWS THE START OF A GREAT PUBLIC SPIRIT.
ATTA BOY, BUD.
WHAT A DUMBBELL I WAS. NOW DO I WANT TO BE A EXAMPLE OF A BIG-HEARTED PUBLIC SPIRIT OR DO I WANT T' HIT 'EM FOR THAT DOLLAR I MEANT T' ASK 'EM FOR?
HULLO, OSWALD. YOU'RE SMARTER THAN I AM, IS IT WORTH MORE T' ADD TO MY REPUTATION FER PUBLIC SPIRITS OR GET A DOLLAR?
WELL, NOW AS I SEE TH' PROBLEM I'D SAY GET TH' DOLLAR FIRST AN THEN GET PUBLIC SPIRITED AND MY ADVICE WILL BE WORTH, LET'S SEE, ABOUT FIFTY CENTS OF TH' DOLLAR.
OH YEAH!
POP
SAY, UNCLE MORT, HOW DO YOU PUT DOWN IN AN ACCOUNT BOOK - WHERE THERE'S NO PROFIT T' SHOW - BUT A LOT O' SATISFACTION?

SWEENEY & SON
AW GEE! LOOK AT THE WAY IT'S RAINING! WHAT'LL WE DO?
THERE'S A GOOD CHILDREN'S PROGRAM ON THE RADIO--HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO LISTEN TO IT?
OH-I DON'T KNOW--
YOU MODERN KIDS SURE ARE SPOILED--YOU DON'T APPRECIATE THINGS LIKE THE RADIO-
YOU GET THE MOST MARVELOUS ENTERTAINMENT OVER THE AIR AND IT DON'T MEAN A THING TO YOU!
DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK HOW WONDERFUL RADIO REALLY IS?
LET ME EXPLAIN HOW IT'S DONE IN LANGUAGE THAT YOU CAN UNDERSTAND-
A MAN SPEAKS INTO A MICROPHONE AND HIS VOICE IS CHANGED INTO ELECTRIC VIBRATIONS
AND CHANGES THEM BACK INTO SOUND WHICH COMES OUT OF THE LOUDSPEAKER OF YOUR SET-
I HOPE THAT'S PLAIN ENOUGH TO YOU
WHAT DO YOU DO WHEN YOU BURN OUT THE TRANSFORMER IN THE AUDIO-FREQUENCY AMPLIFIER?

GOOD POSITIONS Await DeLEE GRADUATES

The unusually fine quality of work which DeLEE students have exhibited at style shows has created a sensation in the beauty profession. Shop owners are clamoring for DeLEE graduates. We have almost twice as many calls for operators as we have graduates.

Think what that means to YOU. It means that if you receive training at DeLEE you qualify yourself for one of these good paying, pleasant positions. Shop owners KNOW that DeLEE graduates, trained personally by Madame Louise, are genuine beauty experts, capable of pleasing even the most fastidious clientele. Every DeLEE graduate is employed.

ARE YOU SUCCESS-MINDED?

Your state of mind may be worth nothing to us or we may pay you profits on it amounting to thousands of dollars during the next year. We have noted carefully nationwide and worldwide, that the men who make money in this business are men who have not been crushed with adversity, and who do not feel that the world is against them or owes them a living without work. It makes no difference what past experience has been, because we have men between these four walls who represent as former occupations, civil engineering, tool and die making, teachers, mechanics, milk wagon drivers, upholsterers, tailors, salesmen builders, contractors, managers, actors, farmers, engineers, railway men, umpires, and pretty nearly all else you can name.

There are men right here who draw commission checks, including bonuses, ranging from $50 up to $100 and $150 for a week's work—but this means a real week's work. Yet there is no investment, nor is there any season. There has never been a time in the successhistory of this big business, with its many electrical unit and specialty plants in various parts of the world [there are three in the United States and Canada alone] when men newly coming into this business started right in to make the amount of money these new men are making today. Here is one business that not only survived the depression but fattened under it, and is racing back to high ground years before general industry. It is a permanent business, is never in danger of saturation and does not impose any harsh conditions on any men whom we accept after an interview.

There are men right here in Chicago who are driving good automobiles, dressing well, taking the best care of their families and building for a future, who started in this work with just enough spark of optimism to see them through to the first check they received. This naturally means that such men have character, because character is both standing well with those who know you, and being able to overcome the obstacles that are strewn in your path. We want and help make optimists, and sometimes men as old as 50 or over succeed if they have health and stamina, but usually we prefer men from 25 to 50. The majority of men who call to see us have grit, courage, ambition. We want married men preferably, although some single men, with home responsibilities measure up splendidly.

We shall not tabulate or catalog the men in this business who are making money—and very good incomes. They are here and you can meet them. We say, ready to back up this statement and all others we make, that we have plenty of men—lots of them—right here in Chicago and its suburbs—who make from $50 to well over $100 a week— and some who make more—and we have other men who are just getting started, who make from $25 to $40 a week. It depends on the man, and his adaptability to grasp the facts we teach him, and his power of persistence. Of course, a man who left his pride and ambition in some dead past is going to make a cemetery of his brain and a cortege of his dull thoughts and bury them—but the man who believes that there is still a future for everybody who is able to think and work, is going to learn this business, be happy in it and be independent. What's more, he is going to be prouder of his independence and money-earning powers here than he ever was in his past occupation. There he spent years and money to learn a trade, business or profession—while here he establishes himself in earnings quickly and very soon adds to those earnings, without investment, because very successful men train and coach him! We don't claim this to be Utopia, but you are not morally or mentally knocked down and dragged out in this business. You are built up and encouraged and aided in gaining increasing success.

The work we have open is specifically for the west side and western suburbs. These positions are immediately open. However, we do not take snap judgment on any man who comes in to see us. We expect to find out through going over matters with him if we believe he is adaptable. He must like us and like this business or else he will not succeed, and we wish men to succeed, because they are profitable to us as well as themselves without their success. We have no merchandise or securities to sell and ask for no deposits. If a man earns, he makes money for us, and we set up no ruinous competition against him. Therefore, if you wish to go into this thoroughly and are inspired to talk it over with us, call for a personal interview from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. Monday, June 25, suite 329 at 9 South Kedzie avenue. Men accepted are eligible for the success columns this week! You pass no examination and are not placed on any waiting or deferred list. This opportunity is for NOW!

WORK FOR 5 MEN

Not work in a shop or a factory— but a business of their own, a permanency of at least five years for the right men.

If you are ambitious to have a business of your own that is paying men from $35 to above $100 a week WITHOUT ONE CENT INVESTED, read this short story about three men we started last week.

Here in Chicago we started on Wednesday [June 20], a man 32 years old and his first day and a half he earned $52 percentage profit. Again on Friday he had profits of $28—a total of $80 for his first 3 days in his own business, merchandising our products which include air-conditioning, electric hygiene units, etc. This man confidently expects to earn an average profit of $20 a day.

Another man was engaged at 4 P. M. Thursday and by Friday noon had earned a profit of $26.10.

Another new man started Tuesday at 1 P. M. and by Thursday had earned a profit of $72.

The above inspirational examples are all men engaged within a week's time. Many more examples are available.

Men who are established with us over a long period of time have percentage incomes many times over $200 a week. Here are two examples: one man with us over 5 years earned [last week $194. Another man with us 2 years earned] in 2 days of this week [Tuesday and Wednesday] $127.

Our company is rated in the millions—doing business all over the world and our new plan of merchandising our products have revolutionized the sales field. REMEMBER, WE ESTABLISH ALL OUR MEN IN A BUSINESS OF THEIR OWN.

Our expansion program in the Middle West demands more dealer representation and also sales executives. Many men are finding a great deal of money and happiness with us. Numbered among our representatives are doctors, lawyers, mechanics, even ministers, office men—in fact, we have a former prohibition commissioner— all these men were attracted to our Company with one idea in mind—to make big money, honestly—with a new idea.

We expect to and will prove every word of this story. Good, ambitious men cannot afford to pass up this investigation Monday, 10 to 10:30 A. M. and 2 to 2:30 P. M.

MEN.

Just because this advertisement is carried in the classified section, don't pass it up as "just another one of those propositions." If you do you are in all probability missing what to a great many men has been the opportunity of a lifetime. No matter what your present income is, no matter what your position in life, you ought to be sincere in your desire to improve it, to increase your income to properly provide for your family and give them the better things in life and to get into a permanent business of your own.

We have such an opportunity for you right now. Men in this business from all walks of life are big earners right here in the South Side and near-by towns. When they learn this profitable business thoroughly, their incomes range around $2,000, $4,000, $7,500 and more per year, yet they had no previous experience in this kind of work.

For instance: H. W., who started here last week, made $24.41 his first day in this business. A. K., a former railroad fireman, made $78 last week. M. C., a former vacuum cleaner salesman, made $151 last week. F. W., a former real estate salesman, made $131 last week. C. W., a former farmer, made $102 in one day last week. E. F., a former engineer, made $127 last week. These earnings are cash and just as steady and permanent as any business or professional opportunity could be.

Our company is rapidly approaching in this country the complete dominance of the market it has already secured in other countries with five European and American factories continuously busy supplying our product. 1934 will be our fifth consecutive record sales year.

Beginners may have to get along temporarily on $125 to $200 per month. However, you are placed on the same basis of compensation as the others, and make no investment or deposit of any kind. If you are selected for this opportunity you will be given a complete training at our factory branch at no expense to you. We will teach you this business, help you to real and permanent success, and will not ask you to make any investment.

This opportunity is open to you now, because of the ever increasing demand for our product. If you are between the ages of 25 and 60 and willing to work and study conscientiously to secure the success and large earnings possible in this business this opportunity concerns you.

We are sincere in offering it to you and you will find that 20 minutes spent in an interview with us will be the most valuable 20 minutes you ever invested. Our factory representative will be here Monday morning. For a personal interview call between 11 and 2 at Suite 404, Maryland building, 841 E. 63d-st. [one block east of Cottage Grove-av.]. Ask for G. A. BUCKLEY.

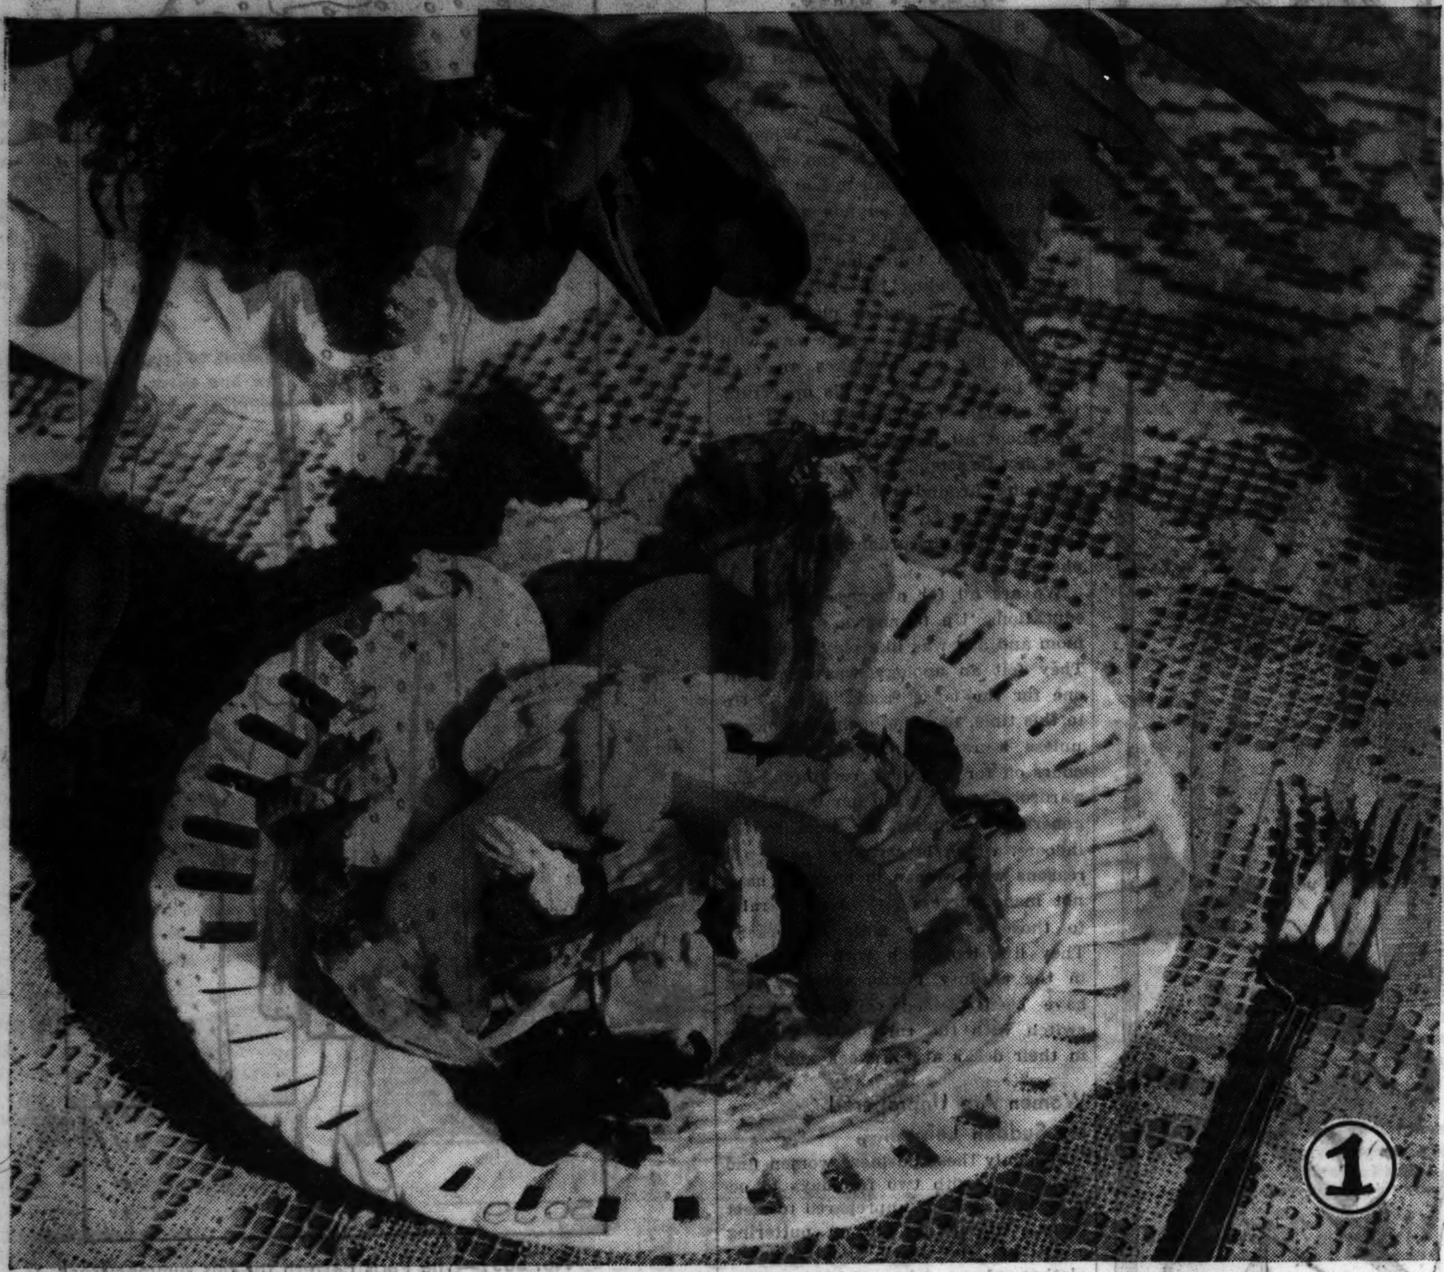
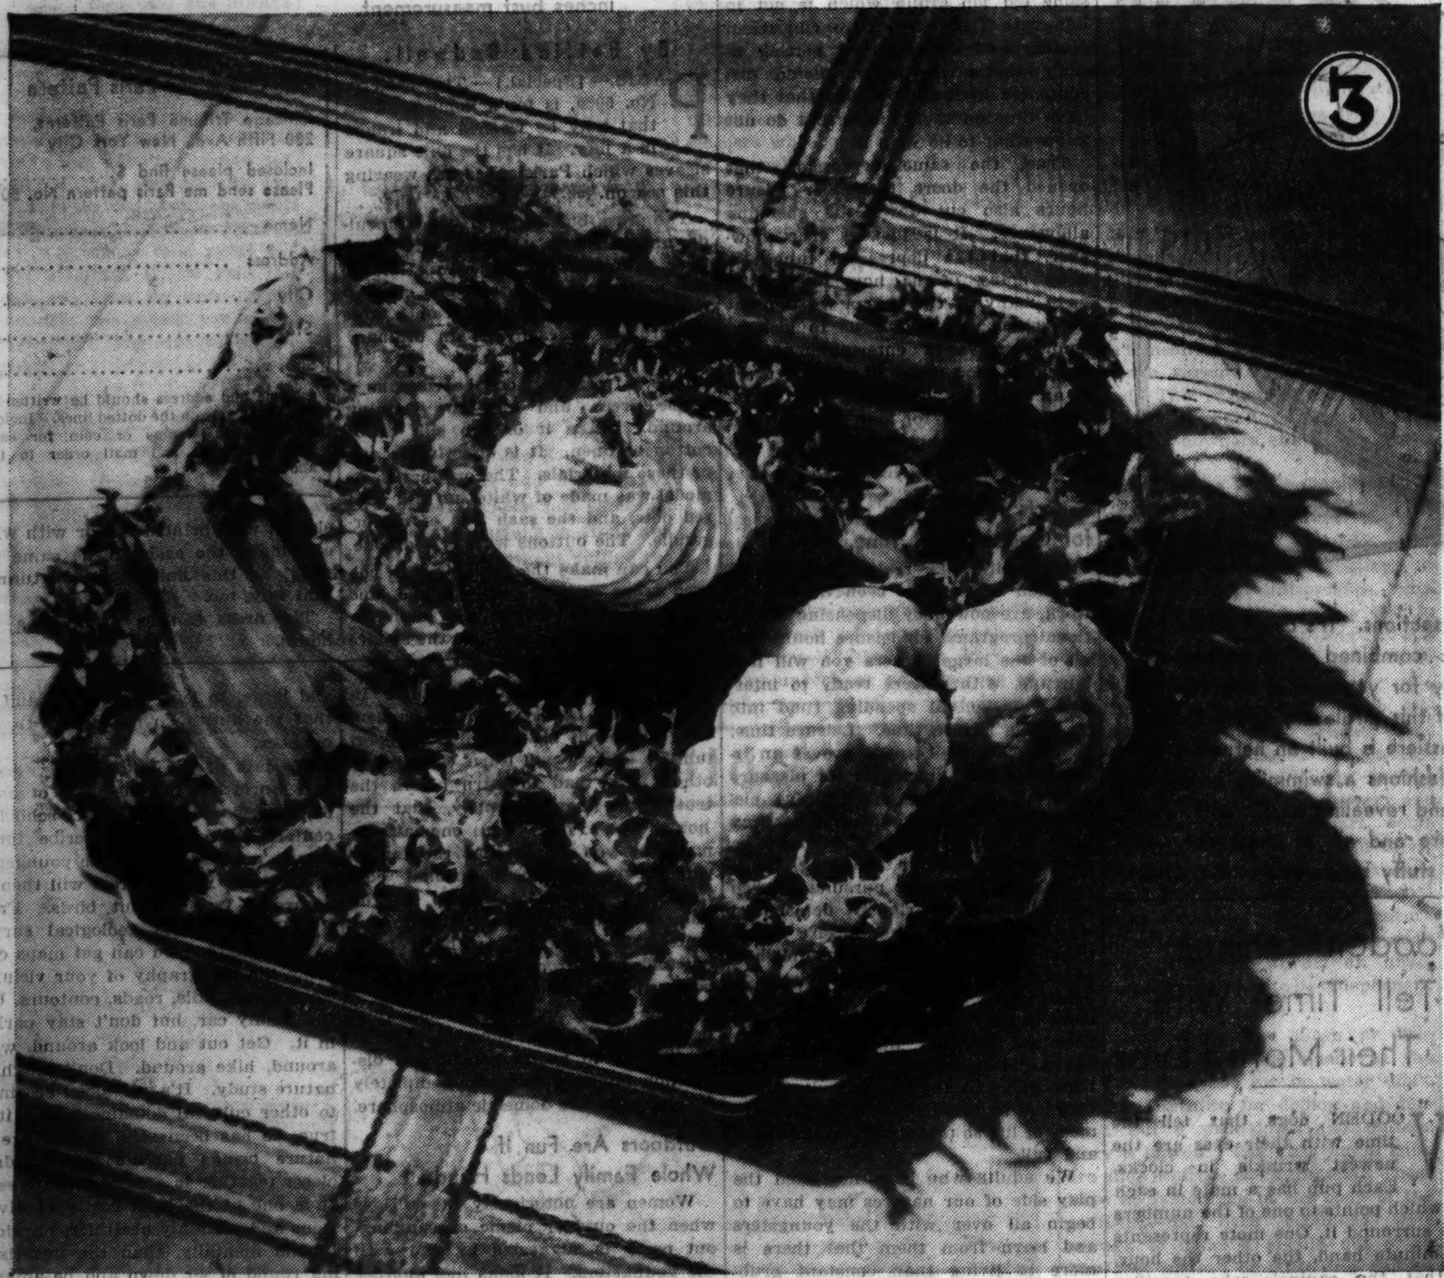
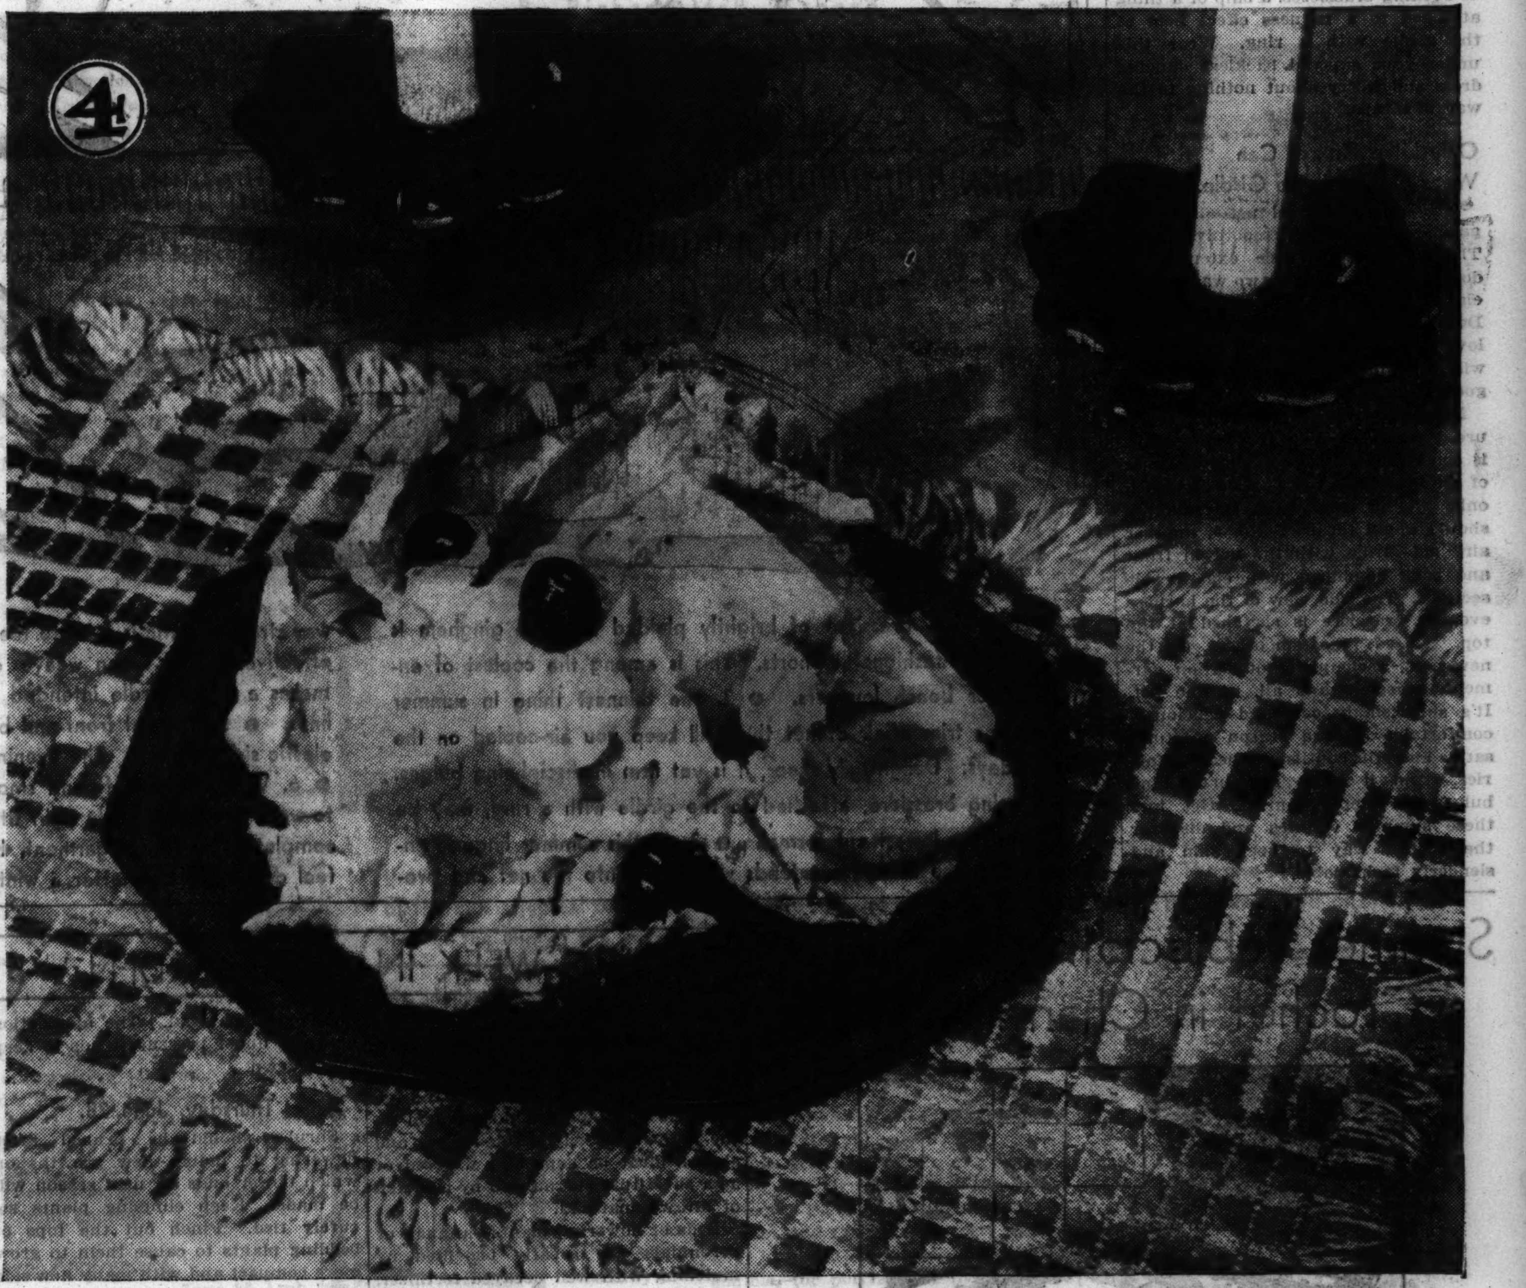
Cooling Salads Tempt Jaded Summer Appetite







1. Pears and cheese-stuffed cherries star deliciously in this crisp summer salad, while cool lettuce cups form the setting.

2. There's a merry quiver and a tantalizing nip in endive-nested tomato aspic, which upsets menu blues and lends a new joy to dining.

3. What's it? Just a chilly version of last winter's vegetable dinner—asparagus tips, cauliflower buds, golden carrots, and a tomato.

By MARY MEADE.

EVERYWHERE tables are blooming with salads. Here baby carrots, baby beans, and such very young onions show their youthful heads. There swirls of curly endive, new cucumbers, radishes, and tomatoes, blushing furiously, look coyly forth. And bedecking them all fall and twinkle the season's newest modes in salad dressings. Ah, it takes a sober soul, indeed, to keep from dancing to this summertime symphony!

And if you would know how to make the gay fellow up in the corner (he's No. 1) here's the story of his life and the reason for his lovers.

STUFFED CHERRY AND PEAR SALAD.

Pear halves	Cream cheese
Lettuce	Watercress
Large black cherries	Salad dressing or mayonnaise

Arrange three pear halves on crisp lettuce, cut side up. Remove the pits from the cherries and stuff each one with cream cheese forced through a pastry tube. Place a stuffed cherry in the center of each pear half. Garnish with small sprigs of watercress and serve with the salad dressing or mayonnaise.

Plump Tomato Halves Co-operate with Cheese.

Tomatoes likewise are getting about in all sorts of shapes and sizes. For one happy thought, peel the red laddies, cut them each in half crosswise, and put the halves together again with a generous filling of cream cheese relish. Then nest each plump tomato on crisp lettuce and garnish each salad with mayonnaise and a slice of stuffed olive.

TOMATO ASPIC MOLDS.

3 cups tomato juice	1¼ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 onion, sliced	2 tablespoons granulated gelatin
1 bay leaf	Curly endive
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves	½ cup cold water
¼ cup lemon juice	Mayonnaise or salad dressing
Salt, pepper, and cayenne

The method is simplicity itself. Cook together the tomato juice, onion, bay leaf, and cloves for 5 minutes. Strain all this and add the lemon juice, seasonings, and the gelatin, which has been soaked 5 minutes in the cold water. Pour into individual molds and chill until firm. Then unmold each on a bed of curly endive and garnish with mayonnaise or salad dressing.

Then more tomatoes. This time they're sharing the laurels with other friendly vegetables. We thought they oughta be in pictures, so you'll find them snapped above as No. 3.

MACEDOINE SALAD.

Cauliflower flowerets	Curly endive or lettuce
Carrots, cut in strips	Tomatoes, fresh
Asparagus tips	Mayonnaise

Cook the separated cauliflower flowerets, the carrot strips, and the asparagus tips until just tender. Then drain them well. For each salad, arrange a bed of crisp lettuce or curly endive and on each nest place half a peeled fresh tomato, cut side up. Garnish the tomato with mayonnaise forced through a pastry tube. Arrange a few stalks of asparagus, two or three pieces of cauliflower, and a spoonful of carrot strips in separate little mountains around the tomato. To add more zest to this salad, it's a good tip to marinate the cauliflower, carrots, and asparagus in French dressing for an hour before making up the salads.

Refrigerator Does Its Part for This Salad.

In every parade of salads, there are some content to be cool, while others tease to be made gloriously frostily cold. One most lovable coldy puts into your hands the choosing of the fruit and then proceeds to show you what to do with it.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD.

2 packages cream cheese	1 cup cream, whipped
½ cup salad dressing	Dash of salt
¼ cup chopped nutmeats	Lettuce
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper	Black cherries for garnish
1¼ cups sliced fresh or canned fruits

Blend together the cream cheese and the salad dressing. Add the nutmeats, chopped green pepper, and the fruit. Mix well and fold in the whipped cream and a dash of salt. Pour your salad mixture into a freezing tray and leave until firmly frozen. To serve, slice the salad and offer up on swirls of lettuce with a garnish of salad dressing and black cherries.

New Girdles for Summer Sheer but Efficient

Though Fashioned of Thinnest Net, They Are Firm in Disciplining Bulges.

By Rhea Seeger.

LESS than nothing at all, mere whiffs of flesh colored net and open work fancy elastic, makes the smartest super-air-cooled new summer foundation wear. Girdles and altogethers, both creations, are made with much emphasis on comfort and airy materials. Net, strong and thin voile, sheer laces, and some trick new weaves in rubber elastics are used exclusively.

New foundation garments go as merrily into the tub as the crisp cotton frocks and street suits. Just a whisk in the soapsuds, a few minutes under the sun, a bit of pressing with a hot iron, and they return for use as colorfully cool and fresh as when you bought them. Inspired designers have reduced summer groundwork to a minimum, and how we do enjoy these trifles without weight!

New Wool Brassiere Supplements Swim Suits.

This year the undergarment makers have sent out two new summertime brassieres for appreciate shoppers. Illustrated in No. 6 is the last word in wool swimming brassieres, just a shell of an idea, but just what every one has been pleading for for years. White wool, soft and smooth, fashions these timely brassieres to wear under extremely tight fitting and revealing wool swim suits. They are finds! Try them and cheer for such ingenuity. No. 1, the other 1934 brassiere, is made of brightly plaided printed linen or gingham. It is designed especially to top the fashionable shorts, a sort of blouse and bandanna kerchief combine that will be as popular as a cool breeze among the best beach loungers.

No. 2, the thinnest thing in summer girdles, is a neat trim affair of net that will keep you air-cooled the hottest of days. This trifle is deceptively simple looking, but it will fit and smooth away any unsightly bulges with a most satisfying efficiency. Topping this miracle of net is the trickiest of evening brassieres, a snip of a thing attached to a harness effect held to the girdle with a ring. Wear this under your exposed backless dancing dress and worry about nothing in the way of straps.

Only Lithe Figures Can Wear Open Weave Girdle.

No. 3, a super-cool net all in one garment, long and smoothly fitting. The brassiere of lace extends well down into the net, and two way stretch elastic is set into the side sections. Despite its air of extreme fragility, its lovely, cool transparency, this model will do wonders, keeping you in a good, slim silhouette.

No. 4, a girdle for the youthful figure, the newest of open weave elastic, is combined with cotton net. Because of the brevity of this particular model, only young and slim streamlines should apply for use. No. 5, another airy net girdle with the net in front and back combined with elastic side sections. The side view of the harness evening brassiere is sketched at the top. No. 7, the smoothest of the new nets, a complete foundation garment, brassiere and all, of fine net. It's surprisingly cool and deliciously comfortable after a season of stuffy satins and stiff coutils and heavier fabrics. And it holds all curves and bulges in supple control. Get into these summer vanities and discover the coolest way to keep slim and slenderly fashionable.

FOUNDATION MODES CREATE YOUNG STREAMLINES

● 1. The 1934 brassiere of brightly plaided linen or gingham is made to top fashionable shorts. This is among the coolest of ensembles for beach loungers. ● 2. The thinnest thing in summer girdles is a trim affair of net that will keep you air-cooled on the hottest days. Delightfully sheer, it is yet firm in disciplining bulges. The evening brassiere, attached to the girdle with a ring, may be worn with the lowest cut formal. ● 3. In this summer lingerie ensemble the lace brassiere extends well down into the net and two-way stretch elastic is set into the side sections. It's comfortable but effective. ● 4. Open weave elastic combined with cotton net makes a smart girdle intended strictly for young and slim streamlines. ● 5. The net front and back of this girdle are connected by elastic side sections. The evening brassiere is built on harness lines. ● 6. White wool, soft and smooth, fashions a swimming brassiere to wear under extremely tight fitting and revealing suits. ● 7. This complete foundation garment, brassiere and all, of sheer net will feel deliciously cool after a winter of stuffy satins and stiff coutils.

More Leisure Time Creates New Education

People of Depression Era Need Training in Use of Their Free Hours.

By Doris Blake.

AS HAS been noted frequently of recent days, "American people are better qualified for any other pursuit than that involved in leisure hours." When it comes to leisure time, the average adult man and woman are at a complete loss. As it stands now, the average woman, with extra time on her hands, can think only of bridge, guests, remodeling her old hats and dresses, or shopping or planning for new ones. And the average man with time on his hands makes an even more pathetic mess of his opportunities. Unless he plays golf and tennis, about all he can think of for a free day is attending a ball game or puttering around the house getting under ma's feet, and generally contributing to a discordant home atmosphere.

We are all for a course in leisure education. Up to now a day off for mom and dad was like playing hooky. They felt an apology was due some one for the lapse from "duty." Up to this time, too, the business woman, unless a rare individual, used her hours off for shopping, revamping her wardrobe, washing out her linens, and generally confining her time to the indoors, which is perhaps one of the reasons why women in business have not made success strides comparable to those of their male co-workers. They live too much with their jobs in the off-duty hours, whereas men have been trained to turn off the switch with the turning of the key in their desks at the week-end.

Women Are Unprepared for Sudden Leisure.

Suddenly these business women find themselves with two full days to occupy now and are unprepared to meet them. Often they go on puttering away at the same shopping and clothes-upkeep jobs, visiting, entertaining, and being entertained in the same old job group which is not in line with the new leisure education. Mother and dad keep on getting in each other's way around home, discontented in the knowledge that they have time on their hands, but do not know what to do with it.

True, the same depression that opened the doors to longer leisure hours also cut down the spending allowance. It is just as true, however, that the depression taught a good many of us how unessential were many of the things we thought necessities. It taught us to look to simpler ways of entertainment. It taught a good many of us that there is an outdoors, beckoning and promising far more for our money than the former amusement centers we patronized.

Humanitarians, realizing that folk, all their lives, have been trained for work, are now busy dispensing educational programs for leisure hours. In all of the large centers you will find bureaus, with officers ready to interpret your actual spending fund into profitable leisure time. Leisure time, as you very well know, proves an irreparable loss unless, in its pleasure pursuits, there are constructive elements. Folk who would dribble away these valued hours in idle gossip on summer porches, in drinking, gambling, hectic pleasure pursuits of such sorts, would be rightly determined wasters. What the new leisure educational programs hope to accomplish is pursuit of worthwhile hobbies, studies, constructive effort in which the element of play is not found wanting. It does not ask nor want these extra hours and days to be given over to intense effort in any one pursuit, but to broaden and widen the individual's mode of life so that it becomes rounded and full.

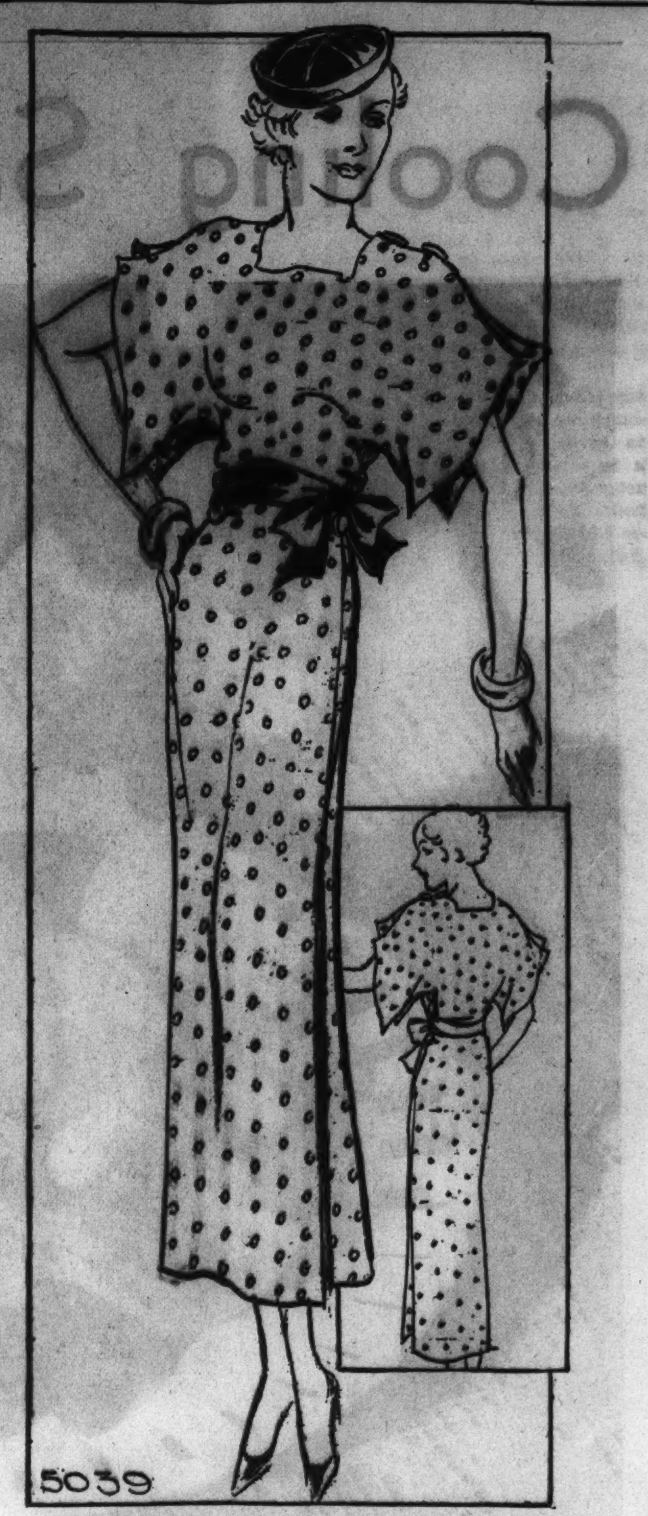
We adults who have neglected the play side of our natures may have to begin all over with the youngsters and learn from them that there is more to living than constant grubbing over desk or sink. We women, particularly, have to let go of some of those household complexes that keep us tied to the domestic mast. In these leisure hours you home women, who will profit by the outdoor opportunities offered, will learn what many others have had to learn before the truth was known, namely, that the home won't miss you one-half so much as you think, that the family will survive on an occasional cold meal, an occasional slip-up in the tidiness of the ménage. Most important of all, you will learn that getting out and away from the scene of daily occupation will do you and your dependent family more good than your present unselfish devotion. What you'll reap in health benefit and disposition improvement may completely revolutionize the domestic atmosphere.

Outdoors Are Fun If Whole Family Lends Hand.

Women are notoriously the killjoys when the outdoor picnic or camping-out party is suggested by and with the youngsters. It looks like another form of catering to their inner needs. But this whole new leisure trend is to teach each family member, small and large, to lend a helping hand, so that the duties do not rest with one member.

We talk of the outdoors because it is a world left for the most of us to discover, because it is a rare schooling center. One might subscribe for a nature publication, get the youngsters interested. Your interest will then be assured. Learn about birds. From the United States geological survey at Washington you can get maps covering the topography of your vicinity. They show trails, roads, contours. Use the family car, but don't stay parked in it. Get out and look around, walk around, hike around. Don't laugh at nature study. It's an "open sesame" to other cultural domains. And, it is true, as has been said, that "love of nature brings parents and children closer together in a common interest." It is one of the least costly of diversions and certainly healthier, physically and mentally, than the unsatisfying round of sit down and be amused pleasures [as Ralph T. Fuller, noted naturalist, calls them] offered elsewhere.

Paris Pattern Frock Comes Crisp from the Laundry Tub



No. 5039—The Paris Pattern for this summer frock is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This pattern, No. 5039, is for a summer dress that may be washed and ironed in a jiffy. It has the chic square sleeves which Parisiennes are wearing this season.

The dress buttons on the left shoulder and under the right arm. It wraps over in front, from the waistline to the skirt hem, and buttons on two buttons. You can lay it flat on a table and iron it as easily as an ordinary apron.

It is a frock that can be worn as a house dress, and also for running around. Make it of tub silk or of cotton or linen. It is effective in any of these materials. The original Paris model was made of white tub silk with red dots, and the sash was of red organdie. The buttons were of red bone.

You can make the dress of dark colored crêpe de chine, if you like, and don't want to bother with washing or ironing. If you do this, line the square sleeves with printed silk or with white and make the sash of the same material as this lining. It is stunning that way, too.

The dress can be made in a few hours.

Summer Tablecloths May Be Crochet in Charming Colors

By Ellen Bruce.

PREVIOUS to the current color wave handicrafts used for home decors, such as bedspreads, tablecloths, etc., were available only in white, natural, and ecru. Vast changes occurred and today we have any desired shade of linen cloth and a colored needlework thread to match.

The fine linen bedspread illustrated today has an edging and insertion of a crochet pattern of torchon lace that is exceedingly lovely and exceedingly easy to make, for the pattern works up rapidly.

Bed cotton used for the edging and insertion makes a fine, not too narrow, lace that takes a little more time than its stouter linen cousins. All the lovely pastel shades used in knitting and crocheting dresses may be used for edge and insertion. Fine handkerchief linen is the best material for the bedspread or table cloth, as the case may be.

Laces are so popular this season that it is quite comme il faut to combine them with linen and have a smart, crisp touch in the boudoir or dining room.

The instructions for making the torchon lace include measurements and detailed information on how to fashion perfect corners and how to adapt the lace to other forms of decoration.

If you wish instructions for crocheting and making up the torchon lace bedspread No. 13 illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower lobby, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

Javanese Brides Rub Faces with Saffron for Beauty

A JAVENESE bride rubs her face with saffron to intensify the golden color of her skin. Her hair is shaved in elaborate points and, instead of a misty coronet of tulle and orange blossoms, she wears a sort of crown made of gold leaf.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, June 25.

During hot weather all crops must be cultivated to conserve the moisture. Many gardeners fail to realize the importance of keeping a dust mulch on the garden. Newly planted trees and shrubs must be kept well watered or as a substitute surrounded by a mulch of strawy material.

Beds of flowering plants—annuals or perennials—are greatly benefited by mulching with well decayed fertilizer, leaf mold, peat muck, grass clippings, or other material.

Tuesday, June 26.

The coldframe is a fine place in which to grow Cyclamen during the summer. Burlap above the frames will offer shade. Plunge the pots to the rim in the soil of the frame, water whenever needed, and shift the plants into larger pots as often as they need shifting.

Trim hedges that need trimming or they soon become unsightly. Hedges that are to remain untrimmed should have all rampant growths removed. The burning bush (Kochia) will remain green for a long time if kept trimmed. It assumes a brilliant red color toward fall and is useful where a low hedge is wanted. It grows rapidly from seed sown where the plants are to remain.

Wednesday, June 27.

Palms, genistas, hydrangeas, and many other plants may be plunged out of doors during the summer, kept well watered, and fed occasionally. They do much better than when kept indoors. The potted poinsettias may also be plunged outdoors for the summer, but they must be brought indoors before freezing weather in autumn.

It is essential that newly sown grass be kept well watered or it will soon burn out. When watering do the job thoroughly. Watch for red spiders. Their presence is known by the gray cast of the leaves and webs appearing over the plants. Spray with any recommended material. The application of water under pressure tends to keep them down.

Thursday, June 28.

Shrubs should be pruned after flowering to induce new growths on which flower buds for next season will be made. Keep climbing plants securely tied. Pinch out the tops of bedding plants to cause them to grow more compact and with many new side shoots or growths. Save all grass clippings and use them for mulching newly made beds and plants. Plant dahlias. When growth has started remove all but a single shoot and allow side branches to grow not less than a foot above the ground.

Friday, June 29.

Keep all foreign growths from the stock of roses, as the suckers are vigorous growers and soon crowd out the desirable scions or flowering portion of the plants. Plant a few chrysanthemums in the garden for fall bloom. These should be pinched at least twice during the summer to induce shoots to form. Keep cultivated and watered when necessary. In late August or early September the plants may be lifted and potted for indoor use.

Saturday, June 30.

It is not too late to plant tender water lilies in a sunny situation. Among the best sorts for tub pools are August Koch and Pink Pearl. Fuchsias do well in a shady location, the variety Trailing Queen being suitable for window boxes, as it has a drooping habit. The tall, shrubby sorts may be used for an upright plant. Other shade plants include the Boston and holly fern, aspidistra, palms, rubber plants, and English ivy.

The common sun plant (Portulaca) is excellent for quick growth and vivid flowers. Some of the Figworts (Mesembryanthemums) are fine for sunny window boxes.

Wooden Canines Tell Time With Their Moted Eyes

WOODEN dogs that tell the time with their eyes are the newest wrinkle in clocks. Each pup has a mote in each eye which points to one of the numbers that surround it. One mote represents the minute hand, the other the hour, so that the canine's orbs together give one the exact time. They're imported. Likewise coming from foreign lands are the colorful carved wooden figures that hold clothes brushes in their backs. Jolly little peasant men and women in gay garments, or dogs, or foxes enliven prosaic bureaus.

THE darling dress made by pattern No. 2649 is easily made and will be just the thing for summer parties.

Before cutting into the material compare the skirt length and hip measurement with your own to see if any slight alteration is necessary. If there is, mark carefully on the pattern pieces just what will be needed. Use French seams on the dress, making them about one-quarter inch wide. The square neck can be finished with a wrong side, fitted facing, and the ruffles should be picoted. This you can have done professionally. Clip the upper edge of each ruffle, then turn in a seam's width and baste in place. Stitch close to the turned-under edge.

Organdy in any preferred color will be delightfully pretty and cool. A ribbon sash with long ends is tied in a bow at the center back and no trimming will be needed. You will be surprised to find how little the cost will be and you'll have a darling dress.

Daytime Dress Glorifies Prominent Role of Cotton.

Pattern No. 2567 is for a wearable, practical, and charming daytime dress and at this time of year one can hardly have too many. The cotton materials are so numerous and so lovely we all have a great variety from which to choose—piques, linens, ginghams, dimities, lawns, mercerized cotton broadcloth, and many others. One of the printed lawns made the original dress and the adjustable rever shows a flattering lingerie touch in crisp organdy. Raglan shoulders are always easy to handle and the three-quarter length sleeves are very popular this summer, and pretty, too.

Here is a smart sports frock that will be included in many wardrobes this summer and pattern No. 3440 is a good one to use. The pretty notched collar, short sleeves, and prettily cut skirt with kick plaits in both the front and back are all smart details. Plaided seersucker is going to be a great favorite this summer, so be sure to choose one of these for this dress. Then there are the lovely tub silks, linens, pique, etc., any one of which will be pretty.

Spectator Dress Is Pretty in Blue Silk.

Pattern No. 2670 is for one of those spectator sports dresses that are so lovely for town or country wear. A pale blue t[illegible] silk made the original dress and it's delightfully cool and smart looking. The way the bodice is put together is as smart as can be, and pretty, too. You won't have any difficulty in cutting or making the dress and it is suitable for any of the wash materials.

Business Girl with Evening Engagement May Bathe, Dress and Have a Facial in a Chicago Salon at Amazingly Low Cost.

HERE is a new and inspired beauty deal for the working woman! For less than half of a five dollar bill the tired business girl who has an evening engagement at the end of a wearing day may have, in a well equipped beauty salon close to the heart of town, a shower, a rejuvenating facial, and opportunities to rest and dress leisurely before she meets her Big Moment. If she has to change from street clothes to evening dress she may change at the salon, leaving her street things there over night if she wishes. She may also use the beautifully appointed drawing room of the salon as the place to meet her friends.

Personally, we think this is tremendous good news. For years we have asked salon managers why they didn't do just this. The average business woman, even if she could afford the elegant beauty services that do so much for the spirits and the weary frame, just can't find the time. She's lucky to be able to stretch her lunch hour out once in ten days to have a trim, a shampoo, and a wave.

The average beauty shop in the metropolitan district in Chicago closes around 6 o'clock. If she has a dinner engagement the tired business girl can only brush up as best she can and hope that the man she dines with is so much in love with her that he doesn't notice her lack of luster. And, as any woman can tell you, that's taking a long chance.

If, somehow, she must change to evening clothes her woes are even greater. When she's frazzled out at the end of a day, then must tear home, dive into the tub, and hurriedly pull on her frilly frock, she's about as poised for a successful evening as she'd be if she'd warmed up on twenty-seven holes of golf.

Now, thanks to the brilliant new idea of the Chicago salon, she can say good-by to all that. If her engagement calls for a change of clothes she may drop her evening things off in the morning at the salon, where she'll find them nicely hung up and unrumpled when she comes back for her pick-up treatment in the early evening.

And, after her treatment, she'll be picked up! We've ducked into this salon many a time for rejuvenation and we know how sure-fire this hitherto rather expensive treatment is. The tired girl can be transformed into a bright butterfly in remarkably quick time, although, if she has time to rest, there's no better place to loll than in the pink tinted treatment rooms.

Before her shower she is given a thorough face and neck cleansing with cream and all the restful massage that goes with it. Then she may go on to one of the roomy marble showers, there to scrub and splash and say farewell to the day's dust.

After this she has her facial proper. She stretches out in the treatment chair, half reclining, and gives herself the benefit of physical relaxation while a skilled beauty expert does the rest. The treatment consists of the application of an invigorating herbal ointment that makes a mask. It is spread all over the face and neck and allowed to dry, which takes about fifteen or twenty minutes, and pads saturated in warm water are laid gently over her tired eyes. Those fifteen minutes, with warm pads on her eyes and the miraculous mask on her face and neck, do for her appearance and her point of view what eight hours of sleep would do.

When the mask is removed the skin is given some brisk stimulation and toning. This done, the formerly weary working woman is given an expert makeup, with her rouge, lipstick, and eye shadow carefully chosen and applied.

We're being perfectly truthful when we say that this pick-up treatment, followed by an expert makeup, can transform you completely. No one would guess that just an hour before you pulled a dust cover over a typewriter, said "Amen" to another day, and felt and looked at least a thousand years old.

Try it! You've spent more on hose many a time, and they never contributed as much to an evening's glamor!

Novel Kitchen Gadgets Aid in Cookery Tasks

New Pocket Size Grinder, Fruit Corer, Breaker for Cake Are Useful.

THE wear and tear upon the jagged nerves of housewives can be lessened to some degree by having on hand little gadgets to be found on the counters of State street department stores which, with their possession and use, will prove a blessing in disguise.

Number one gadget is a pocket size grinder and just the ticket for grinding a few or several nuts, olives, or candy. It has the appearance of a child's toy coffee mill. The grinder fits to a small glass receiver about the size of a coffee cup, enabling instant visibility for the amount needed.

Grapefruit Corer Is Improvement Over Old.

Number two is a grapefruit corer and a great improvement over the old type, which left half the core besides being hard to operate. This improved corer not only cuts away all pithy centers but leaves a clean cut hollow. It may be used successfully for removing centers of tomatoes, beets, and small white turnips when these vegetables are to be stuffed.

The third and last number is a boxed combination of cheese slicer and cake breaker. Each may be purchased separately, but when bought together the bargain hunter saves some money. The cheese slicer does the work to perfection for all soft cheese, besides slicing eggs, butter, and ice cream. It completely separates the slice from the brick of cheese as it cuts and permits serving without touching with the fingers the food to be sliced.

Cake May Be Brought Whole to the Table.

The cake breaker permits one to bring the lovely uncut cake to the table without any fear of unsightly portions, for this breaker does its work with nary a crum, frosting, or filling out of order. These handy little gadgets are good looking besides being well mannered. They are made of chrome finish, with handles in ivory, green, and ebony.

Clothes Should Enable Child to Dress Himself

Zippers, Tabs, Large Buttons Make It Easier to Learn Self-Reliance.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

THE bright faced young saleswoman looked quite too young to have an offspring of her own, but she showed me the children's pajamas with a great deal of enthusiasm.

"And these," she said, "are a type of pajama, especially convenient for children. The child takes hold of this little tab and with one long slide the front is wide open and he steps in. And, of course, it closes just as easily. Then the belt unfastens in front and the seat drops, but without pulling the belt all the way through."

"Do many women come in and want this type of clothing?" I asked in this particular store, for I was trying to find out not only what the stores were showing, but how many mothers knew about this idea of self-help.

"No, not many," the saleswoman answered, "but when we show them the women are always interested. Now take these pajamas, for instance, the mothers who bought them in the winter flannel are coming back for the same thing in summer materials."

If you want your children to be as independent as possible, you've got to make it fairly easy for them. Learning to dress and undress themselves is one of the first steps toward independence. But struggling with small buttons and buttonholes, having to reach around in back for fastenings they can't see, and small armholes that they can't aim at easily are all going to discourage them in an effort to do something which isn't easy for young fingers that are learning so many other new things.

If you make your children's clothes you can work out easy-to-put-on garments yourself. Or if you don't, you can buy underwear and sleeping garments and suits and dresses that have convenient features.

At one time, mothers who knew that the beauty of little children needs to be enhanced, refused to buy these types of garments because they were ugly. Now they are definitly styled and attractive in cut and material and have self-help features that have proven of real value.

It was interesting, by the way, to hear one buyer that I talked with tell me that in their foreign importations of children's clothes there was never a sign of these convenient features. I don't mean to "wave the flag," but American parents are certainly wide awake! The parent education movement has attained proportions here that it has nowhere else in the world.

Well, to go back. Pajamas, then, show zipper or talon fastening, or large buttons and buttonholes, with the drop-seat attached to the belt in such a way that the belt does not slip all the way through and get out of reach and control.

Little suits show these same features, as do some little dresses. And the little girls' dresses, incidentally, are the—well, yes, I'll say it—the sweetest things. Some are flowery and sheer, some plaid and smart, some sailor-boyish, and some in plain colors with crisp white collars. The raglan sleeve, I forgot to say, is considered by some designers a definite feature of convenience, because it offers such a wide opening to thrust an unaccustomed but willing-to-be-independent young arm into.

In underwear, the mesh or lisle panties with the new elastic at the top that does not rot in water don't require anything for doffing and donning, but a push-down and pull-up. Nary a button! The little union suits are shown of the same material. These have no fastenings in the body of the garment—the neck stretches wide enough to make a step-in out of it. The seat instead of buttoning has an elastic across the back waistline.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen.

"Philatelic Agencies," 5 cents by mail; 3 cents at Public Service offices. If you ask questions when ordering booklets, enclose stamped, selfaddrese denvelope for reply.

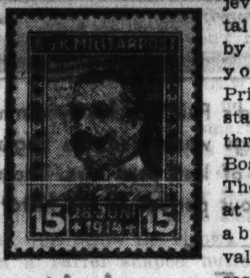
This illustration shows a few envelope stamps of the world. Many are embossed, as are those of the United States, while others are engraved, lithographed or typographed. The one in the center of the cut is typical of the British Empire registration envelopes, the stamp being engraved on the flap at the end of the envelope.

FORTY or fifty years ago, when new issues of adhesive postage stamps were not so numerous as at present, there were many enthusiastic collectors of envelopes and envelope stamps. That was before the exploitation of the collector was conceived, for at that time stamps were made to carry mail and collecting was incidental. It was an easy matter to obtain all of the adhesive stamps and only natural that envelopes and postcards should be included in collections.

In the last decade of the 19th century many countries began to realize the potential value of stamps for collections and turned loose a flood of new stamps year by year. In order to keep pace with these, envelope collections were neglected. When the publishers of stamp catalogs removed the envelopes from their pages to save space it practically ended the saving of these interesting stamps by any but specialists and genuine devotees of this branch of philately.

From an historical standpoint envelopes have the same interesting stories as other stamps, and, in fact, many are identical in design and method of printing. They are collected either "entire" or "cut square," the former being the more desirable since entire envelopes are often needed to show the watermark in the paper, and, of course, are needed if one wishes to show the size of envelope, shape of flap, and the various other details which make one envelope different from another.

Sarajevo Anniversary.



Twenty years ago on June 26 Archduke Francis Ferdinand was assassinated at Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia, by a Serbian youth named Princip. This stamp is one of three issued by Bosnia in 1917. They were sold at two hellers above face value, the excess being applied to a fund for building a memorial church.

Sporting Section.

The six centavo Philippine stamp issued in connection with the far eastern athletic games shows a tennis player in action. The game of lawn tennis is of comparatively recent origin, having been devised about 1874, it is said by lovers of the ancient sport of court tennis who did not have access to a court.

Colombian Oil Wells.

In 1932 the Colombian republic brought out an issue of stamps portraying the natural resources of this South American country. The subjects chosen were coffee cultivation, gold, platinum and emerald mining, and the production of petroleum. This stamp shows a group of oil well derricks, quite similar in their lines to those which beautify so much North American landscape.

New Air Mail Stamps.

Under date of June 13 the post-office department announced that new stamps and envelopes, in six cent denomination, in orange color, will be prepared at once and placed on sale in accordance with the reduced rate for air mail postage which is effective July 1. Without definite instructions, it is assumed that first day sale will be limited to Washington and that first day covers only may be obtained by sending self-addressed envelopes, with a money order covering the value of the stamps to be affixed, to the postmaster at Washington, D. C.

Your Questions.

D. C.—Portraits of the following Presidents have never been used on United States adhesive postage stamps: John Adams, John Q. Adams, Van Buren, W. H. Harrison, Tyler, Polk, Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan, Johnson, Arthur, and Coolidge. Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt are not eligible, for portraits of living people may not be placed on government obligations of this nature.

Cachet Notice.

Madison Memorial day will be observed on June 28, and a cachet will be applied to all fully paid covers, sealed and self-addressed, which are received by the Madison Memorial Day association, 722 National Press building, Montpelier Station, Va., prior to June 27.

Album Supplement.

The Garden City Stamp agency has brought out a set of 12 album pages for United States imperforate pairs and blocks of four. House Without Books Devoid of Real Charm

Built-in and Ready Made Cases Provide Space in Smallest Rooms.

"What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" a booklet by Edith Weigle, gives various simple and attractive methods of arranging furniture so that each room in the house is given added beauty. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower lobby, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

By Edith Weigle.

IT'S inviting a run on our stock of exclamation points to think of the astonishing lack of books in many homes of moderate means nowadays. Don't people read any more? Have they classed reading good books as a luxury and dispensed with them during the w. k. depression? Or does every one belong to a circulating library?

Of course, we're not out to sell books this morning, but we do want to assure you that there's plenty of space for them even in the smallest home and that besides their reading matter they do furnish interesting decorative notes and a pleasant, lived-in quality to a room that nothing else can quite equal. Think of a hotel room and you remember a banal, toneless sort of place that is usually utterly lacking in personality. And one big reason for this is that it has no books. It's not intended to be lived in for long at a time.

Unused Doorways Can Be Filled with Shelves.

But your home should be something different. The living room certainly should have an air of comfort and—we hate the word but will have to use it—culture about it. A room without books is like a beautiful woman with a rasping voice; she may have outward charm, but once she begins to speak she shatters the illusion of perfection. The room may be nicely decorated, but if it has no books it's nothing more than a stage set.

There are two types of bookcases—the built-in styles and the separate models available at the stores. One of the most logical places for built-in shelves is on either side of a fireplace. They can be the height of the mantel or they may extend from floor to ceiling or a little below. Another nice spot for the shelves is between two windows. If you have a living room with too many doors you can block up one of them by means of beaver board backing and sides and painted shelves. Then fill the shelves with books and you'll like the effect immensely.

Bookcases Fit Both Nondescript and Period Rooms.

The stores are showing all sorts of clever bookcases these days. From the most informal maple types for the simple early American room and the more graceful fruitwood and beechwood styles for a similar interior to the distinguished classic lines of an Adam cabinet or the carved beauty of a Chippendale piece there are bookcases for every period and for rooms that "just growed" and aren't of any particular design.

The model pictured today is finely made and, although distinctly empire in feeling, is so simple in line that it will fit into almost any conservatively furnished room. It's sold by a long established Chicago furniture house and comes in all white or mahogany, the two little lower doors being of brass grillwork and the crossed arrows in the inner recess panel of gold. In the all-white model this panel is of light green with gold arrows, and light green and brown decorations take the place of the brass mounts. This stunning cabinet is 45 inches high, 42½ inches wide, and 12½ inches in depth.

SIMPLE ENOUGH TO SUIT ANY ROOM

This interesting classic-modern bookcase, sold by a long established Chicago furniture store, comes in mahogany and in all white and is a particularly decorative piece.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

THE P. family can't boast of quintuplets or quadruplets, but they do have a pair of tiny twins who are in need of a carriage. They made their first appearance at a local hospital early in November. They resided there in an incubator for some three months before they were sent home, and have since been rehospitalized a number of times. At present the little boy is only in fair condition and his tiny sister is doing very poorly.

This pair are the youngest of a family of nine. The oldest boy in the family is only 13, and the youngest, other than the twins, is only 2 years old. The father has been out of work for some time, in spite of an honest effort to secure employment and is, at present, working for the landlord in return for his rent. Mrs. P. is an excellent mother and spend a great deal of time with her children, who are kept clean and tidy and have excellent manners. She has no baby carriage, which makes it difficult for her to keep the babies out of doors as they should be. She also must carry them to the clinic each week, and, in order to do this, she is forced either to keep the older boy out of school, or have her husband stop his work. The hospital has recommended that the infants have a great deal of sunshine, in view of the fact that they are so small and weak.

Has anyone a twin or at least a very large buggy for these babies? If so, the parents will greatly appreciate having it, as they are worried about the health of the youngsters.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a married man, 39 years of age, at present receiving relief. Although I appreciate what the organization is doing for me, I do need clothing, which it is unable to supply. A suit, size 38, would help my appearance and, I believe, help me to secure work. My wife is also in need of clothing, size 18 or 20."—R. F. R.

Have you a man's suit or some women's clothing in these slizes? Mr. R. lives on the northwest side.

Mrs. R., on the south side, has several bird cages of which to dispose. Any reader in need of one, and able to call for it, may send a request to the donor in care of this department. Letters will be forwarded to her for selection.

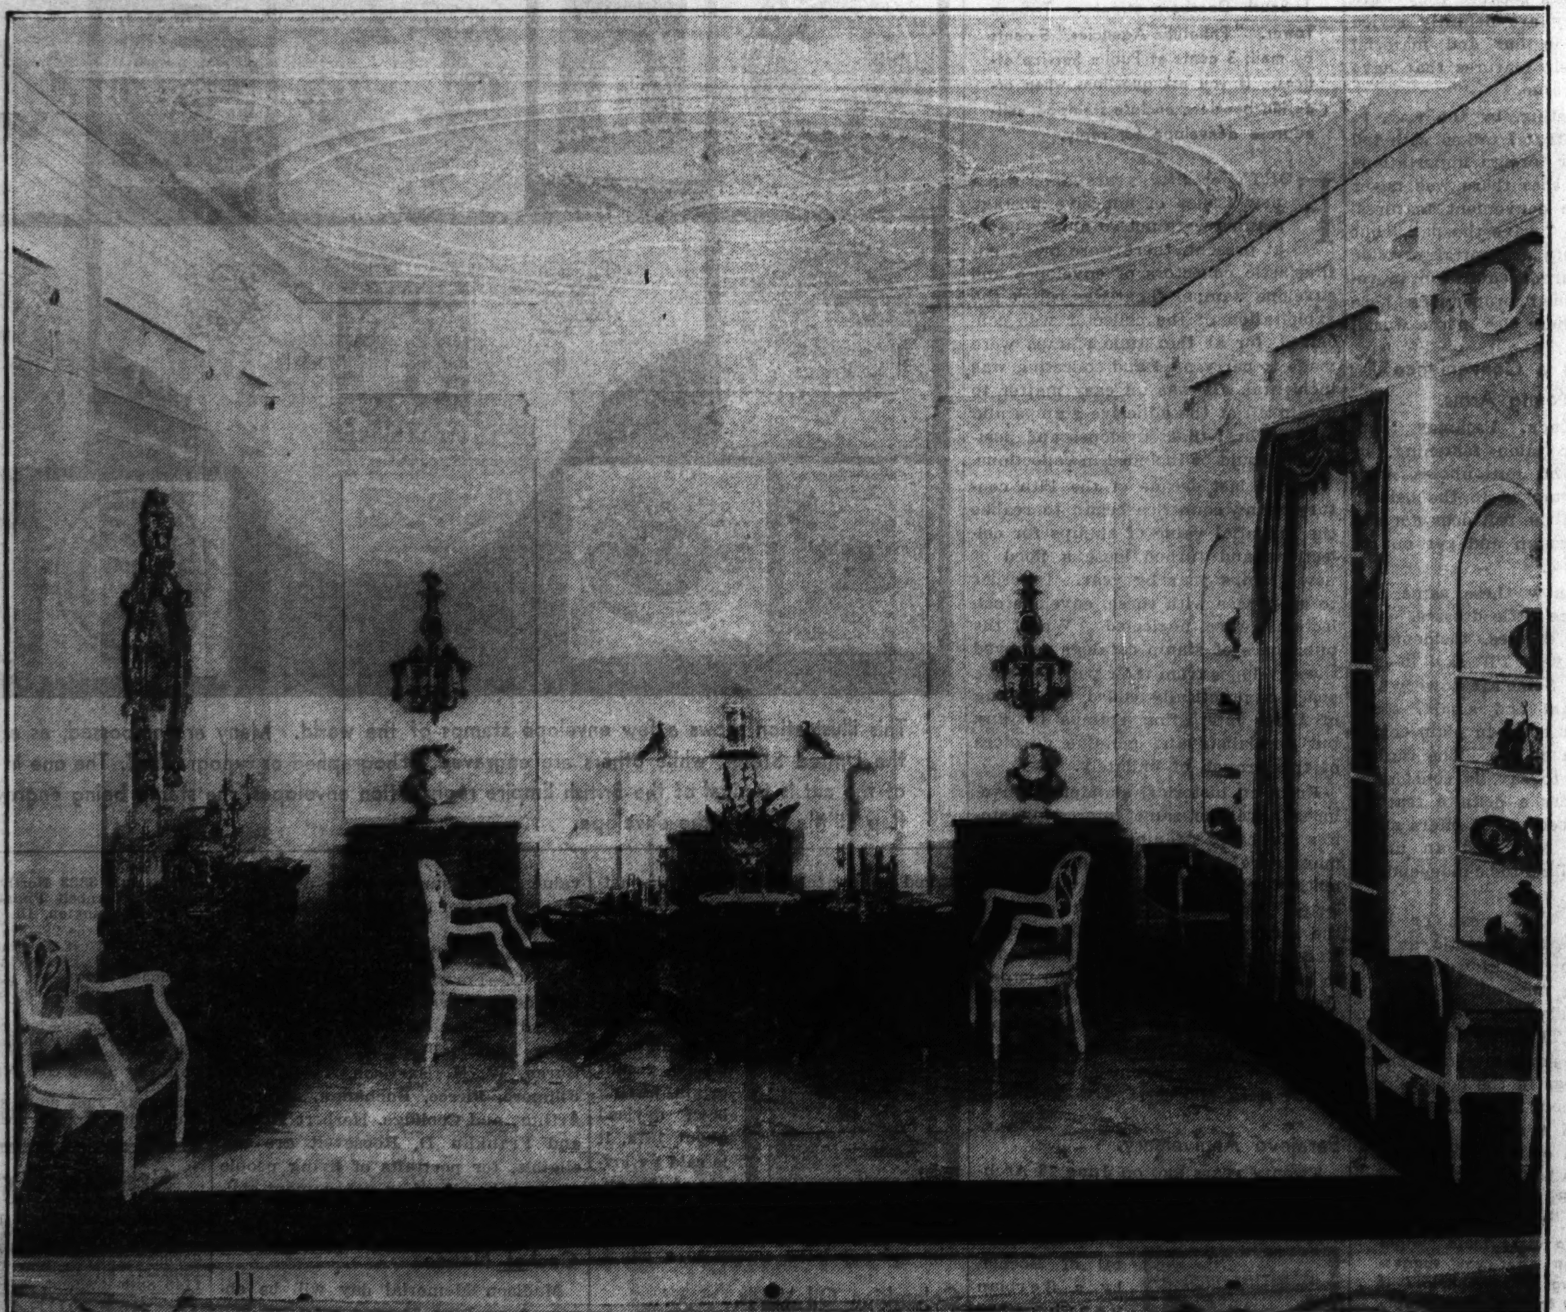
Mrs. S. has a large Bible, St. James' vesion, in pulpit size, to give to some reader in need of one. It is in perfect condition. Letters requesting it should be sent to her, in care of this department.

RECREATION MAY BEGIN AT HOME

Summer won't last forever, and we can't work all the time. So when we play, let's play out of doors—as much as we can. Let's eat, drink, and be happy in the open spaces of our own yards and terraces. For outdoor recreations rooms and little screened-in garden houses, garden furnishings, and garden pleasures can mean so much!

Most of us bought or built our houses to give the children plenty of space to play—and to develop in. So, whether it's a tinkling fountain or a wading pool, a sandpile, merry-go-round, slide, or swing—let's see that the youngsters have some open spaces in the yard—playground space which is all their own. Let's get the outdoor habit. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

MRS. JAMES WARD THORNE'S TINY VERSION OF ADAM DINING ROOM



Among the marvelous miniature period rooms being exhibited by Mrs. James Ward Thorne at the World's Fair this lovely dining room, done in the Adam manner, is perhaps the most exquisite. The tiny classic medallions decorating the walls and ceilings were made in England, but the perfect, tiny reproductions of Adams chairs, tables, and consoles were created here in Chicago. To her display of last year Mrs. Thorne has added fifteen complete new rooms, making a comprehensive showing of apartments representing practically all the famous periods in the history of furniture design.

Period Furniture Is Reproduced in Exquisite Miniature at a Century of Progress

"Color Magic In Your Rooms," a booklet by Claire Winslow, tells how to select color schemes for every room in the house and how to beautify old homes by means of color. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower lobby, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

By Claire Winslow.

THAT the love of tiny objects, skilfully and beautifully made, is universal is proved by the throngs of fascinated observers who are visiting the miniature rooms created and exhibited by Mrs. James Ward Thorne in her own pavilion at the World's Fair this year. Fifteen exquisite additions have been made to the miniatures shown last season, the result of a special trip to Europe and many months of painstaking planning and work not only on the part of the owner, but also by craftsmen employed by her.

Each tiny room, built on a scale of one inch to the foot of an ordinary sized apartment, most of them about twelve inches long and the smallest about eight, is completely furnished from floor coverings, paneled or papered walls, window draperies, to every item of furniture and the most minute accessories. And so perfectly is everything in scale that when photographs are taken and reproduced, as is the one on this page today, the average reader would never guess the room was not one of normal size.

In a recent illustrated lecture given at the Art institute of Chicago Mrs. Thorne used a postage stamp to show the relative size of a marvelous little French cabinet-desk of inlaid woods. Without the stamp in the picture one would have said the desk was of adult measurements, so perfectly was it made in every detail, but with it you realized it was only about three times the height of the stamp. This treasure is now to be seen in one of the miniature rooms.

From all over the world Mrs. Thorne has assembled the furnishings for these Lilliputian rooms. Tiny brasses from Brittany, furniture in perfect replicas of Chippendale from London, objets d'art from Paris and the capitals of Europe go to make up the jewel-like quality of the décor. To any one interested in interior decoration there is a wealth of information to be gained by studying each room, for each is an example of a famous period in the history of furniture design.

Among the new miniatures there is a luxurious Georgian salon, the walls an antique green, the Chippendale furniture with its lovely carving, mahogany, the draperies matching the walls; there are a perfect colonial American bedroom and a dining room of the Federal period; a walnut paneled library in Louis XVI. style, and two modern rooms, one a French modern salon, the other in the Chinese modern vein. Utterly charming because of its naiveté is a Breton kitchen with fish nets drying in the sun outside the window and a distant glimpse of the sea. On shelves and racks is a marvelous array of tiny brasses, and a little carved figure of a Breton woman stands before the hearth.

But to our way of thinking this Adam dining room is the most beautiful of all the rooms. The furniture for it was made here in Chicago, the light woods of the chairs and the satinwood consoles in the rear contrasting with the mahogany of the table and sideboard.

To those of you who have never seen Mrs. Thorne's miniatures we say only this: A new experience awaits you, one you will add to the treasure house of your memories.

Yard Is Easily Converted Into Ideal Play Spot

Address inquiries on home building and remodeling to Louise Bargelt, Home Builders' Editor, The Chicago Tribune. For personal reply, enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

By Louise Bargelt.

LET'S step out—out of doors—this summer. Let's step out in our own yards for a good time! And let's have it, too.

That is—if we love the out of doors. Of course not all of us like the same things—or the same people. Which is fortunate—we can realize that. Still, on the subject of summer and the open spaces, the vast majority of us feel about the same. And since there's plenty of room under the skies for all of us, why not spend as much time as we can enjoying fresh breezes and summer sun?

Why not be happy and enjoy these summer days? Why not make the children happy in play spaces all their own?

Vacation time is here. It costs so little to give our yards—side or front or back—a primitive framework of tents and teeters, swings and ladders, poles and bars and sandpiles and pools.

Outdoor Playgrounds Stop Flow of Parental Restrictions.

Here in our own yards the children can have play space which is entirely their own, if we will only plan it for them. A place which will be free [most of the time anyway] from the "mustn'ts" and "stops" and "don'ts" which accompany much of their indoor play. [Not that these many "mustn'ts" of ours are unnecessary, but it's nice to be able to stop them a little in summer. Heard about the woman who made up her mind that for a whole day she wouldn't say "don't" once to the children? Well—she kept to her resolve, but at the end of the day the house was completely wrecked!]

So getting back to our story—if we give the children their own sunlit quarters where they can fill the air with the shrieks and laughter of safe, fair play, of friendly rivalry, and of an exciting sense of lively comradeship and fun, we will give to them never to be forgotten memories of a happy childhood.

Just what we do for our own house yard will depend somewhat on how old the children are.

For the tiny tots we will want a protecting fence of some sort, a bit of a wading pool, perhaps, and a merry-go-round and a playhouse, a sandpile and a small teeter. We can buy, or we can make or have made, all of these delightful accessories to the small child's playground.

Charming Playhouse Can Be Built at Home.

It is a practical idea to enclose the play space intended for small children with a fence of some sort and a gate. In this way one's need for worry lest the small tots get out into the streets is eliminated. A wading pool is simple to build. All that is necessary is a little knowledge of concrete; and of course one must follow directions carefully.

A playhouse is a grand retreat both in rainy weather and when the sun grows too hot. It's always useful when the youngsters tire of outdoor sports. These playhouses may be bought already made, portable, easy to put up and to take down. Or they can be made perhaps from discarded shingles, siding, blinds, etc. As simple—or as elaborate—these playhouses can be as the parents decide.

Where there is a swing, provision should be made that it clears everything. Making the ropes spread a little at the top will lessen the tendency of the swing to sway sideways and make it safer.

For the older small boys and small girls in the family there are the chute-the-chutes, the ladders, the horizontal bars, the tennis courts and paddle courts, and outdoor tables for games.

Old Auto Body or Crate May Substitute for Tree.

If there is a tree anywhere in the yard—that's the place de luxe for the small boy to roost on, curled up on a platform all his own. If there is no tree, an old automobile body may serve as a besieged fort or a packing crate be brought into play as a police hideout.

And no playground can really be called a playground unless it has a good strong tent to yield a thousand hours of joy and fun to the boys in the family—and the neighborhood too.

No doubt about it but happy, imaginative, constructive play is the best laboratory for children's development. The swing, the pool, the playhouse, and the tent, the slide and the teeter, bars, and trapezes are among the standard equipment items to be considered. There are many other accessories to the play space—different ones to suit different tastes.

Constructing Chute a Simple Trick.

By way of showing how simple it is for a handy man to make some of these childish outdoor play items take the chute-the-chute as an example.

For a metal face we can substitute a plywood panel, curving it to the shape we want. If the framework strips are about two inches by four inches, the panel can be fifteen inches wide by twelve feet long. The boards on each side of this panel should be about four inches high. The slide can be supported by a ladder some seven and a half feet long. It may take a few minutes to soak the slide well with linseed oil and a few minutes more to varnish it. And there we are!

Simple horizontal bars can be made from galvanized iron piping or a balancing beam be manufactured out of a length of two by fours fastened to blocks. This will act as a ground tight rope—fine to develop self-confidence and muscle control in a small boy or girl.

If we want to provide opportunity for many a warm weather lark—for ourselves as well as for the children—we shouldn't forget the outdoor fireplace. [Send for directions if you want to make one of these this summer!]

Garden House Source of Pleasure for Adults.

Of course grownups just have to come into this picture some way. Once we have seen that the children are provided for—we can turn our attention to ourselves, look to our terraces and garden paths.

We can reflect on the fun we could get from a small well screened garden house. If it has awnings we can play cards there in the afternoon and if it is equipped with electric wiring we can stay out there as late as we wish in the evening.

We can make sure that our chairs are comfortable; no fun sitting outdoors if we have to use chairs that are frankly hard to enjoy. Umbrella shades are a luxury that cost little. Tables should be steady. We may love the out of doors ever so much and yet if everything which contributes most to our enjoyment is indoors, we'll find ourselves going in pursuit of it—and staying with it.

It's a grand habit—once we acquire it—this out-in-the-open habit. Try it and see, if you haven't ever indulged much before.

FRENCH CAPITAL SUCCUMBS TO RUSSIAN INFLUENCE

Paris Frocks Flare in Bold Cossack Style

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The French dressmakers usually hint at something novel in silhouettes when they have their midseason style shows. Two new ones came out of the recent midseason shows.

The first of these is a line that is wide below the waistline, and that buyers are speaking of as the Russian line. The second is bulky above the waistline and narrow below it. This is simply an improvement on the current summer line, but some of the big dressmakers are doing it and hinting that they're going to keep right on in the same way.

The first mentioned silhouette comes in long jackets that are fitted neatly above the waistline and have flared skirts, like the figure in the foreground of our drawing. It also comes in dresses that have neat form-hugging blouses and bell skirts. Mainbocher shows coats in this line with big-topped sleeves, and you'll be seeing them soon on this page. Vionnet has a summer coat with sleeves that look as if your upper arms were all swollen out in rounded curves and the shoulders that are small and normal. This coat has a slightly flared skirt portion. You can see it at the extreme left of the our drawing.

Postilion Hats May Greet the Autumn.

Straight, knee length jackets, worn over dresses or skirts, and blouses are shown by the thousands in the midseason collections of the Paris dressmakers. Most of these have fancy sleeves. In fact, fancy sleeves are present in most of the Paris clothes for here and hereafter. The loose kimono and other oriental sleeves are the simplest of the lot. Sleeves big at the top and narrower below the elbows are prominent in all of the shows, but they are all made to keep you looking girlish. Square shoulder lines are decidedly not present.

The first of the fall hats that appear with the fall clothes are mostly wide-brimmed. Many of them are made of velvet. There are narrow brimmed hats with crowns considerably higher, and a new postilion hat, such as you see on gentlemen riding beside stage coaches in old engravings.

Fancy Sleeves Will Be Good for a Long Time.

The lady sketched in the center foreground is wearing the so-called Russian jacket, made of white linen, and having a flaring skirt portion. It buttons up the center front from waistline to neck on white pearl buttons. The standing collar has a narrow band of black around the top. The sleeves are loose and plain, and the jacket has four set-in pockets, two above and two below the linen belt. Flaps make them obvious. It is worn over a black satin frock and the postilion hat is made of black straw with a white linen ornament in front.

At the left, background, is Vionnet's smartest summer coat in pastel blue silk. Bulky topped sleeves are its outstanding feature. It is double breasted, the four buttons that make it so being placed on the bosom.

Rochas Does Neat Things with Black Cloky.

The Marcel Rochas suit shown second from the right is made of black silk cloky. The knee length swagger coat has big topped sleeves and a neat shoulder yoke that fastens on two silver buttons at the back, buttons in the form of birds with folded wings. The black cloky skirt is straight and plain, and the printed blouse, which is shown in detail on the right in the background, is made of red silk printed with spread winged white birds. It is a simple fitted bodice shirred down the center front and crossed on the front by bias bands of the material that tie around the waistline. The sleeves are made of twisted bands that show the arms in the intervals where they don't meet. The Maria Guy toque worn with this suit is a flat hat of black straw with three white birds perched on it.

At the right is a smart plaid ensemble from Alix. It is made of light gray crêpe plaided with dark gray and has the smart swagger jacket with a circular body and loose sleeves which get wide below the elbows. It fastens on a barrel shaped button of gray wood banded with silver. The skirt is made of the same material and flared a bit in front.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

WHAT shade polish to dress the fingertips?

1. If the skin is fair or rosy the shades of nail polish which have a pinkish or rosy quality are becoming. These include extra pale, pale, medium, dark, blush rose, blood red, carmine, and Chinese red. If the skin is yellowish, sallow, olive, tan, or sunburned, smart women prefer nail polish with an orange tone, such as pink coral and tomato. Tomato was created especially for fashionable clients who are tanned from outdoor sports the year round. Deep shades of polish tend to make the hands appear white.

2. All shades of red nail polish are harmonious with costumes of black, white, and neutral shades such as beige and gray.

3. Plain or extra pale are appropriate for sports wear, and on all occasions when conservative colors are required, and also safest for vivid, difficult colors such as empire blue, Kelly green, purple, orange, and bright red. Pale is suggested for wear with clothes in pastel shades such as delicate pinks, water greens, pale moss green, amethyst, hyacinth, orchid and tearose.

4. Medium is good with costumes of light and medium blues [powder, French and sapphire], lavender, violet, black, white, beige, gray. Dark is good with clothes in dark blues [navy, Prussian, etc.], jade and bluish shades of green, black, white, beige, gray.

Carmine can be worn effectively with clothes of pale gray, sand, beige, dark green, dark blue, black. Blood red is striking with white for evening, American beauty red, dark blues, black.

Oxblood is particularly good for dark olive skin or very fair skin. Suggested to wear with dull blues and greens, browns, dull yellows and very dark colors. Mahogany, perfect to wear with various shades of brown and beige. Effective with white, black, peach, yellow and most shades of green and blue. Cyclamen, a lovely medium shade with a rosy cast, is excellent to wear with most pastel shades, medium and dark blues, and off shades of green.

Because I, and maybe you (if you're a bright little boy or girl) will be there, watching the game as the opening treat of the great number which THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE provides every summer for boys and girls in Chicagoland.

Every week during July and August, you know, we have a party. We go to all kinds of places and have just loads and loads of fun! There are some extra special treats in store this year, but I'm not going to tell you about them all, because I like surprises better, don't you? Every Sunday from now on we'll announce another party, so you'd better keep your eye on this column. All the boys and girls who came along last year know just how good a time we have and if you've never been on a trip with me you don't know what you're missing!

Boys and Girls All Will Like First Party.

Our very first party is going to make a hit with you, I know, because it's something you're all crazy about and we want you to have what you like. So on Thursday, July 5, we're off to Cubs' park.

Mr. William Walker, president of the Cubs, following the usual generous custom of the club, has invited me to bring a party of 100 boys and girls out to see all their favorite heroes—Gabby Hartnett, Woody English, Charlie Grimm, or whomever it might be—when they meet the Pittsburgh Pirates.

I know you'll all want to come and I'd like to take you, but fifty boys and a similar number of girls are about all I can manage at one time, so we'll try to take the youngsters to whom the party will mean the most. Now how do I know that? I don't, so YOU have to tell me! Every one is invited to write me a letter telling just why you want to come, and we'll pick the winners from the best letters.

Here Are Simple Rules to Remember.

There are only a few simple rules you must remember to make your letter eligible to be judged. Here they are and you're certainly a Simple Simon if you can't remember these!

All letters must include your name, address, and age.

AND they must be on my desk by Thursday morning, June 28, at the very latest.

Out goes any letter which does not comply with these rules.

You'd better get to work now, write your letter, and then, next Sunday morning, July 1, if you've really been able to convince me that you want to come very much, your name may be printed in this column. You don't have to buy anything or sell anything or go to any other trouble. So if you really follow the rules and are honestly and truly anxious to be included in this treat, mail your letters to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. You may be a winner!

I'll tell you more about our party tomorrow, so if there is anything you don't understand watch for tomorrow's CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

At the Lake

By Eleanor Jewett.

My mother said that I might swim
When I went down upon the beach,
But I was scared of all the waves
And only touched a toe to each.

I patted lots of waves like that,
I only missed a very few;
And I kept hoping that my feet
Perhaps might turn a little blue.

For all the waves and all the lake
Were blue, as blue as blue could be,
But something probably was wrong
For not a bit came off on me.

PARIS SNAPSHOTS

French silks that are primed for autumn make a great point of gold or silver threads that are woven in with the silk or used to make patterns on it.

Fashionable women around Paris are buying their gloves short and once again a wide expanse of bare arm between the glove and the short sleeves is chic.

Mme. Martinez de Hoz, famous member of the Famous Forty, is the first of that group to launch the new wide-skirted silhouette. She appeared at Longchamps last Sunday wearing a black chiffon dress with a smocked blouse and full black skirt.

Aviatrix Orders Fastest Airplane Flown by Woman

MISS JACQUELINE COCHRANE, former nurse and beauty parlor operator, who learned to fly less than two years ago on a bet that she could not qualify for a pilot's license in three weeks, has placed an order for what promises to be the fastest airplane ever flown by a woman, with the announced intention of winning the MacRobertson international air race from England to Australia next fall in competition with some of the world's best airmen.

Home Knit Socks Increase the Golfer's Peace of Mind

By Jean Macdonald.

GOLFERS as well as other sportsmen seek comfort when wearing heavy boots and shoes. Soft, well made socks are essential to every man's happiness.

Hand knitted with any worsted, sports, or tweed yarns, these long socks are so intriguing to work on four sock needles. The ribbing is an integral part of the work, and the fun of shaping and balancing is another interesting item. The double heel of the sock is not a new style, but the reenforcement withstands rough wear—something of which the younger children as well as dad are deeply appreciative.

All the actual knitting processes a needleworker should know are contained in directions for a sock or stocking. One of the easiest ways to learn the meanings of all the terms used is to make a pair. If there is a doubt regarding the size of a man's hose, don't blurt out, "What size sock do you wear?" Inquire quite casually the size of his neckband or his collar. From this information the work is balanced accordingly and perfectly. When the socks are made according to instructions there will be none of the violent exclamations uttered by some of our ex-soldiers during their maneuvers, but the "Oh's" and "Ah's" of a happy man.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instructions for making the men's golf stockings illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter. Also state size of stockings worn.

English Flower Is Inspiration of Vivid Quilt

DIANTHUS.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, or Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

By Nancy Cabot.

FROM England comes this brilliant quilt block, made in colors of scarlet, purple, and soft green. It is an old block, and the flower from which it was adapted dots the English countryside. If you haven't a growing garden, a quilt made of these blooms will afford even more pleasure, because it will be in flower the year round. The completed square measures fourteen inches, and twenty applique and ten plain blocks constitute the finished coverlet.

Parasols for Sun and Shower Come in Bright Colors

GAY parasols that can be used in both sunshine and showers are a boon to the Fair going lady, or the shopper, sportswoman, or teabound damsel for that matter. A specially treated silk makes this dual use possible. A convenient twenty-two inches high, the parasols come in green, brown, pink, blue, or white and have white composition handles. Rain umbrellas that, because of their gayety, are equally appropriate for use in the sun, are the new plaids in blues, reds, greens, and browns. They measure only seventeen and one-half inches and have a gleaming chromium ball end.

Khaki Covered Lamp Dims Glare in Cottage or Camp

THE neatest lamp yet for the summer cottage or for the camp wired for electricity is the little model covered with a khaki colored wool cloth, seen in a Chicago department store. The base is small and the cone shaped shade comes down almost to meet it, assuring a subdued glimmer for reading or for all night illumination.

FIVE OF FILMLAND'S FAVORITES

They're keeping Helen Twelvetrees busy lately! After finishing work in "Now I'll Tell" she was handed "All Men Are Enemies." (State-Lake.)

This late and lovely photograph of Kay Francis came rolling in the other day and we roll it right on to you. Miss Francis is coming soon in "Dr. Monica."

Lilian Harvey loves her work, but she loves Willy Fritsch better. So—she's going back to Germany to be plain (O, never that!) Mrs. Willy Fritsch. You last saw the little blonde foreigner dancing, singing and making merry in the feature photoplay, "Heart Song." Remember?

"Strictly Dynamite" Just One More Attempt to Satirize Radio's Gods

By MAE TINEE.

GOOD morning!

Again radio personalities become the butt of somebody's idea of satire. (Screen play by Maurine Watkins and Ralph Spence, who are smarter than you'd ever believe from this script.)

Satire's a grand thing! There's nothing like it for pepping up and correcting wrong or stagnant conditions. BUT it's got to effervesce! To have natural sparkle and sharpness. Bubbles stirred up with an egg beater aren't any good.

"Strictly Dynamite" is satire of the egg beater variety. It deals with the case of that ambitious young author, Nick, who, accompanied by his adoring wife, Sylvia, comes to New York to set the world on fire.

Meeting with singular lack of appreciation, he is persuaded by Sylvia to try radio gag writing as a stop gap. When, argues Sylvia, by this lamentable deviation from the paths of good literature, he has made a fortune he can sit back on his haunches and turn out works of art undisturbed by the growlings of the wolf at their door. . . .

Moxie and Vera are the broadcasters for whom he becomes ghost gag writer. Vera's Moxie's sweetie—and her infatuation for Nick results in wildly

FLASHING EYES, FLOWING HAIR

THEY DANCE ON THE WATERFRONT

"Dances in the modern mood" is the slogan of this pair of graceful steppers, "Wes" Adams and Lisa by name. They are prominent in the cabaret entertainment offered on the Beach Walk of the Edgewater Beach.

Theater Guild Suffers When Stars Desert

Forced to Withdraw 'Mary of Scotland' as Hayes, Merivale Leave Cast.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Directors of the Theater Guild thought they would run "Mary of Scotland" through a part of the summer after Helen Hayes, going back to the movies, and Philip Merivale, going back to England, left the cast. But after a fortnight's playing they withdrew the play. The drop in receipts, I hear, was something like $20,000 a week as compared with the last week of the Hayes-Merivale engagement, and $15,000 under the last several weeks' average.

This should not be accepted as a reflection upon the ability of Margalo Gillmore and Stanley Ridges, who took up the rôles and played them well. It is no more than a further evidence of the hold stage personalities exert upon the imaginations of playgoers.

Miss Hayes having become fixed in the public mind as the real Mary of Scotland, playgoers, even though they had not seen the performance, could not bring themselves to accept another type of actress in the part. This, coupled with a feeling that they were in some way being cheated by not seeeing the original cast, kept them from seeing the play, which is unfair to Maxwell Anderson. His drama is so eloquently and so interestingly written that it is much less dependent upon its players than most plays are.

Play Does Not Deserve Its Fate.

There are dozens of actresses, known and unknown, who could play Mary with as much technical facility as Miss Hayes, and many of them with as much charm. And the stage is literally cluttered with actors capable of all that Bothwell demands. But because no other two will ever be the same Mary and Bothwell as the original two were, the Anderson drama stands in danger of being cheapened as a work of art because of its early association with a pair of flaring personalities who happen also to be gifted actors.

We are having quite a series of substitutes these early summer days. Mae Murray, the dancer, has just gone into the farce called "The Milky Way," replacing Gladys George as a prize fight manager's wife. It is Miss Murray's first appearance in straight drama. She began as a dancer in an early "Follies" and went into pictures something like twenty years ago. She stayed in pictures for twelve or thirteen years before she came back to Broadway for a series of personal appearances and vaudeville engagements.

Miss Murray's adventure as an actress is not particularly happy up to now. She is badly placed as to type. Her rôle is that of a hard boiled, lightly profane, smartly wise cracking Broadway type. Mae is the fluffy blonde, cutie type. She tries to be hard, but the effort is a bit painful and there is no conviction back of it. She gives what I assume to be an excellent performance of Mae Murray but a disappointing one of the character.

Acting Helped Save "Tobacco Road" from Failure.

Next week Jim Barton takes over the rôle made nationally famous this season by Henry Hull, that of Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road." This will offer a particularly interesting comparison. Hull's performance of the lazy, shiftless, verminous Georgia primitive is credited with having saved the play which started badly and was dying a cut rate death when the cut rate brokers themselves took it over and advertised it into a sort of popular priced fad.

The story, which Jack Kirkland took from an Erskine Caldwell novel, tells of those somewhat swinish unfortunates who live an animal-like existence at the side of the dirt roads on which the tobacco is hauled in from outlying plantations in the deep south. A forbidding play in its Gorky-like ugliness, and not one, I decided the night of its first showing, that even the fairly fastidious playgoers of Broadway would buy. But here it is in its seventh month with people still talking about the wonder of the Hull characterization and snickering at the lustful exhibitions of the other characters.

Barton will find himself in a tough spot taking over the Hull rôle. But if he succeeds with it much will be proved as to the necessary equipment for an actor. Jim was a dancer in burlesque originally and never has played anything more serious than a bit in a revue sketch.

"Are You Decent?" Amazingly, Plays On and On.

I don't believe I ever wrote you more than a paragraph about a farce comedy called "Are You Decent?" a trivial affair and rather deliberately written by Crane Wilbur to trade on a snickering audience's delight in loose sex talk. I gathered from reports that it would not last long.

The other night I stopped in at the Ambassador and found the theater sold out. This is the play's second month and they are selling tickets four weeks ahead, with a promise of a year's run. The sale, it appears, is confined for the most part to coupon tickets—this coupon and forty cents entitles you to some sort of seat, and that coupon and sixty cents gets you a better location. A way has been found, under codes and NRA, to distribute the coupons.

"Are You Decent?" as you probably do not remember my explaining, is a backstage term. When an actor calls upon an actress in her dressing room it is customary for him to knock first and inquire "Are you decent?" before entering. The actress thereupon slips into something and allows that he may enter.

Modern Science Succumbs to Good Old Romance.

The play is about a youthful and attractive eugenist who had read Freud and Jung and decided that matrimony involves much too great a risk. Being maternally minded she decided to select a mate and produce a child without benefit of clergy, mayor, sea captain, or license. The play's three acts are pretty much taken up with her discussion of her plans with a couple of prospective collaborators.

At the end of the second act the young man who has been accepted as the father is standing outside the young woman's cabin door on a houseboat, his pyjamas and slippers in his hand, blandly inquiring "Are you decent?" before entering. In the last act the young woman, halted in her plans by a jealous suitor, agrees finally to marry the boy she really loves.

Originally Eric Dressler, Claudia Morgan, and Lester Vail were featured in the leading rôles, and by their intelligent playing saved the situations from being vulgarized. Now the cast is being changed. Dressler and Miss Morgan are leaving this week.

The fleet has sailed. The officers, it appears, did a good bit of play-going the two weeks they were here. But the enlisted men spent most of their shore leave wandering Broadway and wondering where to go next. They did not seem to care particularly even for "Sailor, Beware!" which everybody figured they would rush to see.

The only theater-minded sailors I heard about appeared one day at the Belasco theater, which has been closed for weeks, and asked if they could go inside. The caretaker informed them that the house was dark. They said they did not care, they would like to see it. The caretaker took the message to Morris Gest, who, representing his wife, Renee Belasco, in the settlement of the Belasco estate, has an office on the fourth floor. Mr. Gest, remembering the days when sailors frequently came to the theater in such a state of stimulation they often broke up the show, decided that this was some sort of raiding party and went to investigate.

He found the gob quartet lined up below stairs. They saluted respectfully and asked if they could see the inside of the Belasco theater. They were, they said, interested in the theater in general and in the drama, and had long been worshipful admirers of the late David Belasco. It would give them great pleasure, they said, if they might see something of the late master's workshop and the stage on which he had made so many famous productions.

Mr. Gest, being an emotional sort, threw upon the doors, turned on the lights, and gave the boys such a talk on David Belasco and his works as they never had heard before and are not likely ever to hear again.

The Actors' Dinner club is about to close unless a number of generous folk come forward with sustaining funds. Organized in 1931 to help feed unemployed actors, the club has served something like 300,000 meals, 200,000 of which have been free.

Leading Men of Nation Vote on Best Drama

THE New York Times recently decided to find out if the leaders of American life—men of high achievement in various walks of life—are interested in the drama. It asked for an answer to the question: "What do you consider the best modern drama written since the time of Ibsen?" The inquiry was sent to 200 men of prominence in public, professional, and business affairs.

Only one-third of these leaders answered. Many of those who replied proclaimed themselves "unqualified," chiefly because they were not frequent playgoers. Here are some of the answers:

M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company: "My choice is Bernard Shaw's 'St. Joan.' Other plays that I remember with great admiration are Frank Craven's 'The First Year,' 'What Price Glory,' and the one act sea plays of Eugene O'Neill."

James M. Beck, congressman from Pennsylvania: "On the spur of the moment I should answer that the most impressive play I have seen, because of its implications, was 'R. U. R.'"

Clayton Hamilton, playwright, critic: "'Cyrano de Bergerac.' No play in the last eighty-four years can approach it in theatrical dexterity, literary artistry, and universal popularity."

Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, through his secretary: "At the present time Mr. Hoover is not making any statement of any kind for publication."

Alfred A. Knopf, publisher: "'They Knew What They Wanted,' 'Beyond the Horizon,' 'The First Year,' 'Mary of Scotland.'"

Fiorella La Guardia, mayor of New York City: "'The World We Live In.'"

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE: "'Dinner at Eight' made a great impression on me as a play with a vital interest in almost every character.'"

H. L. Mencken, author, journalist: "During the last twenty years I have visited the theater so seldom that I am quite ignorant of what is going on in it."

Ralph Pulitzer, publisher: "'Cyrano de Bergerac.'"

Col. Theodore Roosevelt: "'The Green Pastures.'"

Alfred E. Smith: "'Turn to the Right.'"

Gene Tunney: "Shaw's 'St. Joan.'"

Stephen S. Wise, rabbi: "Ibsen's 'Brand.' After that, 'Yoshe Kalb.' But that my judgment on the drama is highly inconsequential is best proved by the fact that I got inordinate enjoyment out of 'Abie's Irish Rose' and 'Potash and Perlmutter.'"

Among the men who confessed themselves "unqualified" were: Vice Admiral F. H. Brumby, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press; Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator; Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury; John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross; Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania; Donald A. Richberg, NRA general counsel; Admiral David Foote Sellers, and Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state.

Katharine Cornell Finishes Her Tour; Proceeds, $650,000

KATHARINE CORNELL ended her nation-wide tour in Brooklyn last Wednesday night. She began her season in Buffalo on Nov. 29. She traveled 16,853.6 miles, acted in 74 cities and 31 states and gave 217 performances before over a half million playgoers. Three plays were presented, Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," Shaw's "Candida" and Rudolf Besier's "The Barrets of Wimpole Street."

The record attendance and receipts of Miss Cornell's tour for a single performance were in the Shrine auditorium, Des Moines, Ia., where 4,251 people saw "The Barrets of Wimpole Street" and paid $7,795.70 at the box office, including the federal tax. In Toledo, O., the public paid $8,165.90 for a single performance, but as both a ten per cent state and federal tax were charged, Des Moines holds the record for net receipts, possibly the world's record for a spoken drama given indoors. San Francisco has the record for single performances of "Romeo and Juliet" and "Candida."

Texas has the state record, having paid $42,436.90 during the nine days Miss Cornell toured the state. The largest single week was $29,721.25, which was taken in six one night stands, Waco, Fort Worth, Tex.; Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Okla.; Emporia and Wichita, Kas. In Williamsport, Pa., the record for standees was reached when 236 people stood to see the play. The oldest theater played on the tour was the Charleston, S. C., Academy of Music.

The approximate gross receipts of the tour were $650,000. Miss Cornell will spend the summer on the Riviera and in Bavaria.

Chicago Prospect.

A play called "Venus Pays Off," by Kubec Glassmon, will be staged in San Francisco July 19 under the management of Louis O. Macloon. If successful, it will be brought to Chicago for a late summer run. Marion Burns and Edward Woods will have the leading rôles.

tumultuous incidents which you may or may not think funny. Personally, I couldn't be much amused—though Jimmy Durante gives all he has—and you know Jimmy!

Lupe Velez performs with drummed up pep, wearing the most goshawful clothes. Norman Foster and Marian Nixon play sincerely and are likable, and William Gargan, as Moxie's—and Nick's—agent, who falls for Nick's pretty wife, gives a high powered portrayal. Other rôles are well presented and the Mills Brothers oblige. Direction wasn't bad.

Means Moxie. What else?

BitsaBOUTem.

Small CORA SUE COLLINS adores red nail polish, but her mother has forbidden her to use it. The other day a makeup man gave the little girl a leftover bottle of bright red stain. Well—you should have seen the fancy toenails of Cora Sue's canary bird! . . . MYRNA LOY has been signed to play opposite WARNER BAXTER in "Broadway Bill."

MERIAN C. COOPER, who directed "Grass," "Chang," etc., plans an 8,000 mile journey to Pompeii to gather correct background and material for the production of "Last Days of Pompeii." He will be accompanied by his young wife, DOROTHY JORDAN, well known to film fans. . . . FRED ASTAIRE and GINGER ROGERS are rehersing a new dance behind locked doors for "The Gay Divorce," a musical picture in which they are to be featured. . . . RICHARD CROMWELL doesn't like dinner jackets and doesn't own one because he doesn't like 'em. You have to admire a man like that!

The FILM VERSION of Walter B. Pitkin's best seller, "Life Begins at Forty," is being prepared. For the life of me I don't see how a movie could be made from that book. Probably the producers have just bought the title. . . . ANTONIO MORENO may go to England to work in pictures. . . . LAURA HOPE CREWS is receiving offers from major studios to do special coaching and story selecting for feature players. She has done much of this work, GLORIA SWANSON being one of her more notable pupils.

See you tomorrow.

SHE'S A WAMPAS OR BABY STAR

This year's bevy of "Wampas baby stars" from Hollywood — adolescent girls selected for beauty and cinema promise—is appearing in the current program of stage entertainment at the Chicago theater. Here is a pretty member of the group —Jacqueline Wells by name. Nobody knows what the word "wampas" really means, but when Jacqueline hears it she answers: "Here."

Clean Cinema Movement May Affect Drama

Value of Film Rights to Stage Authors Factor in Probable Reform.

By Charles Collins.

THE unseen but nevertheless formidable march of the recently organized Legion of Decency upon the Byzantine citadels of the motion picture industry has caused no flutterings of conscience or pangs of remorse, as yet, in the camp of the cinema's naughty little sister, the legitimate theater. Broadway has shown no signs of sitting up and taking notice, perhaps because at this time of year its mental alertness is low, and the drowsy numbness of the summer siesta weighs heavily upon all its faculties. Nevertheless, this nation-wide protest against indecency in the films is certain to have a marked effect upon dramatic production.

The facts in the case are well known, but they may be reviewed briefly, as follows: [1] For a number of years the stage has been getting bolder and bawdier every season, reflecting obvious retrograde tendencies in the public taste. [2] Any one who protested against the stage's contribution to this lowering of standards of manners and morals has been the object of cheap hisses and cynical jeers from the element of froward and rebellious "intellectuals" [usually half-baked] as a puritan and a hypocrite.

Drama Takes Themes from Freud.

[3] The playwrights, taking to Sigmund Freud's studies in psychopathology like ducklings to a pond of dirty water, have wallowed in degenerate material, seeking to turn morbid public curiosity on subjects of sex abnormality [especially incest] into box-office profits. [4] The stage has been leading with its chin for a wallop from a censorship. [5] Although official censorship in art matters of chief appeal to adults is contrary to the national spirit, an important syndicate of newspapers, some two years back, expressed strong editorial opinion in favor of a stage censor. [6] Nothing has happened to change the situation, but during the past year there was a drift toward improvement of taste and ideals on the part of stage authors and producers.

But when the existence of the Legion of Decency dawns upon the mass-mind of the area in New York City that goes by the name of Broadway [the focus of 90 per cent of the country's activity in the drama], and when the effect of the legion's vow to abstain from patronizing indecent film shows becomes noticeable at the box-office, there will be a change. I suspect that it will be a drastic change. I do not maintain, of course, that the drama will surrender the ground it has won in the march of modernism as a medium for the artistic interpretation of life and ideas; but I believe that its bad little boys will cease their deliberate flagrancies. Obscenity, prurience, and corrupt innuendo will pass out of fashion.

The reason for this probable reformation will not be the sudden vision of a new spiritual light on the part of the old offenders. It will come simply because the playwrights and the producers hope to find rich profits in the sale of motion picture rights. If the movies reform, the legitimate theater, for the most part, will follow, because of the economic relationship between these two branches of "show business." The production of plays in New York has become largely a matter of speculation in cinema rights.

Stage Re-Action to Film Crusade.

The social need for the work that the Legion of Decency is undertaking has been manifest for a term of years. I am surprised that the movement has been delayed so long. Incidentally, while the matter of indecent, over-sexualized films is under consideration, the members of this organization might give some attention to the stage entertainments that accompany film exhibitions in many theaters, particularly those popularly called "cinema palaces." Those that have come under my observation during the past six months are in fairly good order, but last summer's antics of Texas Guinan and Milton Berle in this city were highly obnoxious. However, now that "the heat is on," as they would say, the dirt-slingers of the continuous shows will correct their manners.

The focusing of the reform spotlight upon Mae West, the cinema's super-woman of bawdy suggestion, brings great glee to the followers of the legitimate theater. For this amazing portent of the loose and libidinous times infested the drama until chance removed her to the more exalted realm of Hollywood, and she was generally regarded with alarm.

Mae West as Fugitive from Footlights.

Even the hard-shelled managers of burlesque shows would shake their heads dubiously over some of the stuff that Mae used to write and act as drama. When the New York police carted Mae and her "Sex" and "The Drag" companies off to the hoosegow, some five or six years ago, the feeling among theatrical folk was that it served her right. And when she ascended to Hollywood her colleagues in the "profession," perhaps a little envious, piously opined that she had reached the right destination, and that the drama, although not privileged to throw stones, was jolly well rid of her.

The past theatrical season in Chicago has contained only one cause for strong remonstrance during the past year—the play, highly popular in New York, called "Sailor, Beware." Its decisive failure here had a sanitary effect upon the other bookings. This failure, attributed in the east to faulty casting, was really due to the fact that a low-minded, bawdy play in the worst possible taste was promptly labeled as such by the dramatic critics. In New York the press spoke of "Sailor, Beware" with adjectives that implied admiration of its material [including a scene advocating rape], such as "salty," "lusty," and "gusty."

"Porgy" to Music.

The Theater guild will stage a musical version of "Porgy" along about next Christmas. George Gershwin is busy at the score. He plans to visit Charleston, S. C., where the Dubose and Dorothy Heywood play is set, gather atmosphere, and listen to the Negro singing in churches and elsewhere.

DANCER IN FOLIES BERGERES

Maria Desty is prominent in the festive proceedings at the French Casino [formerly the Rainbo Garden], where a troupe of French music hall players are giving an elaborate revue called "Folies Bergeres." She is the feminine member of a trio of acrobatic dancers — Delso, Desty, and Juan. Messieurs Delso and Juan toss Mlle. Desty around the stage furiously, but she always comes up smiling. [Maurice Seymour Photo.]

Back Stage Humor

ON her 17,000 mile tour of America Katharine Cornell has played all sorts of theaters, vast civic auditoriums, motion picture "palaces," college and school auditoriums, and here and there a few of the remaining old academies of music and opera houses, relics of another era. Recently in New York state she acted for the first time in a playhouse devoted to the trafic of "burlesque." On the mirror in her dressing room she found this note left for her by the regular inhabitant of the place:

"Dere Miss Cornele: Pleas do not steel this mirror. The last company of actors we had hear took my best mirror. Kindly let this one alone. With admiration for what you are trying to do, yours Truly . . ."

Bubble Dancer in Sky Room at Stevens

Mme. Desha on Program at Stevens Hotel; Star Mimic at Chez Paree.

MYRIO AND DESHA, the team of dancers now appearing in the Sky room and also the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel, have a repertory of interpretive numbers that includes "Nocturne" to Chopin's music; "Famous Gavotte," based on a Harlem "blues" song; "The Champagne Bubble Dance" [solo by Desha], and "A Tango of Love." Mme. Desha, born in Jugo-Slavia, has had a notable career as a dancer and sculptor's model. Other entertainers at the Stevens are Bernice Stone, acrobatic dancer; the Embassy Four, singers and instrumentalists; Keith Beecher's orchestra, and Charlie Agnew's orchestra. The Embassy Four appear in the new street level café at the Stevens during the cocktail period.

● Eddie Garr, now on the cabaret bill at Chez Paree with Veloz and Yolanda, made a reputation in the musical comedy, "Strike Me Pink," with his imitations, especially of Jimmy Durante, who was in the cast. Since then he has become a vaudeville headliner. He is now regarded as the best male impersonator on the lyric stage.

● "Wes" Adams and Lisa, interpretive dancers on the Beach Walk cabaret program at the Edgewater Beach hotel, are now making their first appearance in Chicago. They came here from the Château Madrid, Havana, where their engagement was interrupted by the recent revolution and insurrectionary violence. Harry Sosnik's orchestra continues at this hotel, with Bob Hanon, Adele Girard, and the Campus Trio as singers.

● The dancing girls in the "Folies Bergères" revue at the French Casino [Rainbo Garden] are happy to be in America, for the motion picture scouts have been studying them and announce that about 90 per cent of the troupe has Hollywood possibilities. Harry Warner of Warner Brothers has selected Olympe Branda, a 16 year old Mlle. Ad-del-hadi, a half Arab girl, and Mlle. Martine, another member of the chorus, for screen tests.

● Eddie Duchin, new orchestra director in the Joseph Urban room of the Congress hotel, has risen to a commanding position in the dance band business in three years. He is only 25 years old. He made his reputation at the Central Park Casino, New York.

● Harry's New York cabaret, on the near north side, carries over the atmosphere of the Streets of Paris from last summer's World's Fair festivities. A typical street scene in Paris is the motif of the decorations. The entertainers include Germaine La Pierre, Billy Meyers, Al Wagner, Harry Harris, Elmer Schoeble, and Don Penfield's band. The prototype of this place, Harry's New York bar in Paris, is a favorite rendezvous for Americans in the French capital.

● Although its location is off the beaten track of night club life, the After the Show club at 2052 North Halsted street seems to have caught the attention of cabaret-goers. Eddy Hanson's band plays at night, Earl Smith's in the afternoon.

● L'Aiglon, French restaurant on North Michigan avenue, has Jack Page's orchestra, Dan Devitt and William Olufs, strolling singers, and Audrey Call, violinist. Every waiter is a Frenchman, with the exception of Headwaiter Emil Abler, who is German. He is a brother of the late Frank Abler, German war veteran, who killed two bandits in an attempted holdup of L'Aiglon several years ago.

Tour for Pageant

THEATER goers in many cities will see the pageant, "The Romance of a People," first produced at Soldier field last summer, in a revised version now in rehersal in preparation for a nation wide tour. Already seen by nearly 1,000,000 people in Chicago, New York, Detroit, Cleveland, and Philadelphia, the pageant will be staged in a form which reduces the cost of production by more than one-fourth. After a Broadway engagement the pageant will be taken on tour.

Mrs. Coolidge Plans Chamber Music Festival

Former Chicagoan Sponsors Three Day Program in New England This Fall.

By Edward Moore.

IT is perhaps not too early to announce that Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge has perfected her plans for another Berkshire festival of chamber music. It will take place on South Mountain, Pittsfield, Mass., Sept. 19, 20 and 21.

The occasion is more important than its bare announcement would indicate. For many years Mrs. Coolidge, once a resident of Chicago and now an occasional visitor thereto, has devoted herself to the cause of chamber music. It is by no means the most popular subdivision of music, but it is an exceedingly fine and subtle art, and Mrs. Coolidge has constantly and unceasingly striven to widen its scope.

She has organized and presented chamber music festivals, occasionally here, sometimes in Washington, generally at South Mountain. She has discovered and given public performances to unknown scores, thereby gaining recognition for the composers, but with the broader idea of increasing the field of the chamber music public. As a permanent monument to chamber music, she built and equipped a music hall in the Library of Congress at Washington where public performances may be given and coöperation established with the famous collection of music on file at the library.

Many New Compositions Will Be Played.

In the circumstances it is not surprising to know that she is quite as much interested in bringing out new music as in clinging to the old. So on the lists of the coming event, in addition to the names of Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, and Brahms, one finds promises of first performances of new sonata for violin and piano by Henry Eichheim, of a quintet for piano and strings by John Alden Carpenter, of a woodwind sextet by Edward Burlingame Hill, of a trio by Roy Harris, and other presentations of works not quite new but scarcely well known by Joseph Jongen, Burnet C. Tuthill, Vittorio Rieti, Frank Bridge, Bohuslav Martinu, Ottorino Respighi, Cyril B. Rootham, and Alexandre Tansman.

Apparently these works are to be performed in a notable manner. At any rate some notable artists are to take part. There are schedules of the South Mountain quartet of Pittsfield, the Casella-Poltronieri-Bonnucci trio of Rome, the Laurent wind quintet, the Kroll sextet, a chamber orchestra of members of the Boston Symphony orchestra, such individuals as Alfredo Casella, John Alden Carpenter, Jesus Maria Sanroma, and Frank Sheridan, pianists, Louis Persinger, violinist, and Olga Averino, soprano.

About the only thing to be said in disfavor of "Practical Musical Criticism," by Oscar Thompson, published by Witmark, is that its title does not offer sufficient inducement for the layman to read it, when as a matter of fact it would be quite as valuable for the many laymen as for the few critics. For it defines the functions of the critic clearly, sanely, and practically, and it also defines the fields in which the critic should have no concern. The critic knows this himself, perhaps unconsciously, by experience if by no other means. It would be well if the knowledge were more widespread.

"Music criticism," says Mr. Thompson, himself a critic of long experience, "is a form of literature concerned with music; not a form of music that has flowed over into literature." Later he adds that it has one central and dominating function. "That function is to hold up a mirror to what has been composed or performed and to the performance. The mirror is an intensifying one. It reflects the essentials, eliminates the unessentials. Its purpose is to present a clear picture of what the music is, with its good points and bad, or what the performance was, with its salient characteristics, meritorious or otherwise. It aims to be informative . . . to convey an intelligible report and analysis to those who were not present, so that the music or the performance has substantially the same meaning for them, so far as that is possible, that it had for those who attended."

Critic Should Not Try to Teach the Artist.

And still later: "The critic is not a super-teacher. It is not for him to tell the artist how to overcome faults. It is for him to point out that the faults exist. The latter is an essential of his function as a mirror, to enable the reader to see, in words, what the trained ear has heard in sounds. The mirror is not a studio. It does not conduct master classes. The teaching profession is something else. To that profession should be left the repair work or the advanced study that is needed in particular instances. The reader, for whom the mirror functions, is not concerned with this. The artist may also be a reader, but the review was not written for his benefit. He comes into the picture only incidentally. And it is only incidentally that the critic has an obligation to him. His obligation to himself imposes upon him all the fairness, the courtesy, the seriousness that the artist can ask of him."

The Detroit Symphony orchestra, now going into the second of its twelve weeks at the Ford Symphony Gardens, is making that pleasant spot one of the most popular points of A Century of Progress. Whenever it has been visited, afternoon or evening, in any sort of agreeable weather, the seats are almost constantly filled and refilled as patrons leave to go elsewhere. So that the number of patrons probably figures considerably more than the number of seats.

Outdoor Music Need Not Be Light, but Must Be Loud.

Short compositions and many of them from many different sources make up the programs. They run all the way from movements from Beethoven symphonies to Sousa marches and Victor Herbert melodies. Four hundred and twenty numbers are scheduled for the first forty-two concerts without repetition.

The orchestra has had the experience of the last seven summers in playing for hot weather audiences at Belle Isle, Detroit, and from this experience the concert programs are drawn.

"One thing we have discovered at Belle Isle," says Victor Kolar, conductor of the orchestra, "is that the public will enjoy almost any type of selection at an outdoor concert if it can be heard. Subdued passages, so effective in a concert hall, are not as desirable in an outdoor concert.

"But it has been our experience that the public appreciates the truly great music as much as the lighter selections. In our concerts in Ford Symphony Gardens we intend to give them plenty of both."

Chicago Symphony Offers More Elaborate Musical Fare.

It would seem that when the Chicago Symphony orchestra comes to the Swift Bridge of Service the programs will be constructed on a somewhat different plan. One can hardly call it sterner musical fare. It is just as tuneful and bright and colorful, but the compositions are rather more elaborate in construction.

The first two programs on the afternoon and evening of July 1 are typical. Eric DeLamarter, associate conductor of the orchestra, will be at the baton for at least the first week. For the afternoon the orchestra will play Wagner's "March of Homage," Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," two Hungarian dances by Brahms, and the overture to "Mignon" by Ambroise Thomas. By the way, this is the same Thomas, though on another overture, who has been announced at least once this summer from A Century of Progress as Theodore Thomas, the first conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Programs Like Those of Winter Popular Concerts.

Following the intermission there will be Tschaikowsky's "Capriccio Italien," Glazounow's "Ruses d'Amour," and the dances from Borodin's "Prince Igor." The evening program contains only three names, the overture to Weber's "Euryanthe," Goldmark's The "Country Wedding," and a large group by Wagner that contains excerpts from "Rienzi," "Lohengrin," "Die Meistersinger," and "Tannhäuser."

In other words, these would seem to be the sort of programs that have been worked out by years of experience as being in a high degree satisfactory for the orchestra's series of winter popular concerts. Later in the week there will be some entertaining experiments.

NIGHTLY IN CONGRESS

Eddy Duchin and his Central Park Casino orchestra have recently moved into the Congress hotel, where they are being heard nightly. They divide their time between the Pompeian room at the dinner hour and the Joseph Urban room for later entertainment. Reports give them the acclaim of popularity.

Of all the things which you will do at A Century of Progress none will be more fascinating than to watch how a great, modern metropolitan newspaper is produced. You are invited to visit Tribune Tower to watch the making of the Chicago Tribune.

Here is your opportunity to see at close range the activities in the workshop of the men and women who produce the Tribune—where news is received from all parts of the world by cable, telephone, and telegraph to be written into concise, interesting stories.

See all the complex mechanical operations . . . the transferring of photographs and drawings to metal plates . . . the casting of hundreds of thousands of words into metal on the 67 linotype machines . . . the making of matrices . . . the casting of printing plates . . . and the battery of 88 giant presses which now print over 775,000 week day copies of the Chicago Tribune and over 900,000 copies of the Sunday Tribune.

You will long remember the beauty of Tribune Tower. Its graceful Gothic design won first place in the Tribune's $100,000 international competition in which the foremost architects of the world competed.

Be sure to make at least one trip to Tribune Tower. Write now to Tribune Tower Tours, Room 1217, for tour reservations, or telephone Superior 0100 upon your arrival in Chicago. The tours are conducted by trained, courteous guides. And, as you leave, you will receive a handsome souvenir booklet.

"YOU'RE TELLING ME"

Joan Marsh has been going to school, public and private, in Hollywood for eight years. School days over, she recently signed a long term contract with Paramount. "You're Telling Me," at the Oriental, is her first release.

Hollywood Jobs Bank Heavily on the Figure

HOLLYWOOD. — To insure his continued screen popularity a motion picture actor must hold his shape. No star has ever lost or gained a "figure" and kept his stardom.

The lean and hungry look which distinguishes Leslie Howard and the red faced rotundity of Guy Kibbee, are, in each case, a part of that actor's stock in trade. A tall Edward G. Robinson or a fat Gary Cooper would not be accepted by a public which has grown used to them as they are.

Every actor knows he must keep the physique which he had when he started in pictures and most of them spend many hours a week exercising to make sure they do. Studios, with thousands of dollars tied up in each screen personality, are always willing to help.

Any sudden or obvious change in weight is certain to bring a warning from the "front office."

Actors Weigh Selves at Least Once a Week.

Most actors step on the scales at least once a week and guide themselves accordingly. Few have a tendency to become too lean. Leslie Howard and Cooper, already mentioned, and Warren William are three of these. Their efforts are generally directed toward gaining a few pounds. All three exercise regularly and energetically.

James Cagney's sweet tooth makes it necessary for him to go in for strenuous periods of training. Paul Muni is known as a "worrier" and as such shows little inclination to grow fat. Warner Baxter, who admits he likes to eat, plays tennis regularly and diets frequently.

Polo, having become one of the colony's favorite exercises, keeps many stars in the shape they must remain. It is not difficult to imagine that Will Rogers might be paunchy without so much exercise. On the other hand, the appearance of Guy Kibbee on a polo pony or a tennis court would bring consternation to his studio and his fans, all of whom know his "figure" is literally worth its weight in gold at the box office.

He-Men Frames Won Them Reputations.

Try to picture a wan Victor McLaglen or an underweight George Bancroft. Both made their reputations as big he-men and while their frame work undoubtedly always will keep them big, both exercise a lot. And they never have to diet, either.

To keep their actors "in shape," literally speaking, studios provide all sorts of ways and means for exercise. In almost every one there are steam rooms, rubbing tables, and Turkish baths, masseurs, punching bags, weight lifting machines, and other patent exercisers.

Notes of Music

The Illinois Host house sends word of a series of musical programs by Illinois artists and composers for the entertainment of guests at the Exposition. Beginning today, programs will be given on the first and third Sunday afternoons of each month at 5 o'clock and on the second and fourth Wednesday evenings of each month at 7:30 o'clock. Dorothy Lee Jones, Springfield pianist, and James Arthur Edmunds, Chicago baritone, will give this afternoon's program. The series is arranged by the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, of which Mrs. Louis E. Yager is president.

The St. Olaf Lutheran choir of Northfield, Minn., will sing at the East Aurora High school tomorrow evening under the direction of F. Melius Christiansen. The concert is being given under the auspices of the Redeemer Lutheran church.

The Edgewater Beach hotel announces the first of a series of outdoor summer musicals on the beach walk of the hotel tonight at 9 o'clock. The program will be presented by a seventeen piece orchestra under the direction of Harry Sosnik. Between 5 and 8:30 o'clock the orchestra will play a program of classical dinner music in the dining room.

The Drexel Park Presbyterian church will present the final concert of the season tonight at 7:45 o'clock under the direction of Fred Farrel, organist and choirmaster. Among the numbers to be sung will be Mendelssohn's "How Lovely Are the Messengers," Christiansen's "Beautiful Savior," John Hyatt Brewer's arrangement of "The Lost Chord," and Gounod's "By Babylon's Wave." J. Alan O'Connor, violinist, will play a group of numbers.

The Nightingale chorus will sing at the Swift Bridge of Service this afternoon under the direction of Helen Leefelt. Through an error in program memorandum the soprano part in last Sunday's performance of "Elijah" was credited to Mrs. George L. Teeney, when it should have been Margaret Lester. Beg pardon.

"Mary" for West Coast.

A Pacific coast production of Maxwell Anderson's drama, "Mary of Scotland," will be made late this month, with Helen Gahagan in the title rôle. The actress appeared in New York recently in a play about the Brontes, by Dan Totheroh, called "Moor Born." Ian Keith will play the rôle of the earl of Bothwell in "Mary of Scotland." An opening in Santa Barbara is scheduled for June 27, with a San Francisco engagement to follow.

"Dodsworth" Holiday.

"Dodsworth," Sidney Howard's dramatization of Sinclair Lewis' novel, will start a seven weeks' vacation on June 30. The intermission is brought about by Walter Huston's wish to play in the Central City, Colo., revival of "Othello." The New York run of "Dodsworth" will be resumed on Monday, Aug. 20, with the same cast.

Mae Murray Acts.

Mae Murray, who has not appeared on the stage in more than a decade, has joined the cast of "The Milky Way" in New York. She has the rôle played originally by Gladys George, who left to enter motion pictures, and by Mildred Wall.

EXOTIC PERFORMERS AT VILLA VENICE

The tradition of the Villa Venice, de luxe cafe on the Milwaukee road at the Desplaines river, for exotic cabaret entertainment, is in full flower this summer. Impresario Bouche has staged a cosmopolitan revue in which this pair of dancers, St. Clair and Day, is prominent. They add a certain touch of old world sophistication to the night life of the north suburban area.

Surveys Show Public Doesn't "Like 'Em Hot"

HOLLYWOOD. — Movieland's standard answer to critics [lately increasing in number, importance, and vociferation] of the moral qualities of its films seems to be disproved.

The public does not agree with Hollywood, which has always said of this public that "it likes 'em hot."

A survey made by a world-wide film organization shows that there is scarcely a community in any part of the world in which the stars who are proponents of sweetness and light are not liked best.

Mae West is the exception, but almost everywhere there was the comment that in all probability she will not remain long in favor. She was invariably referred to as a "flash in the pan" as far as film popularity is concerned.

First Poll Consulted Theater Men and Managers.

This poll on the likes and dislikes of the customers, the first of its kind, was made among theater men and exchange managers and asked for complete honesty. Since theater men are ever trying to add to the discomfort of Hollywood, it was not difficult to get them to answer the several questions with utter candor.

Sex is acceptable everywhere if it is done with deftness and good taste, the poll reveals. But the best liked stars, from Zagreb [in central Europe] to Elmira in New York, are those like Will Rogers, Marie Dressler, Ann Harding, Janet Gaynor—who always are seen in clean films.

The pictures of the last six months getting the most mention were: "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," "Footlight Parade" [although the objection to backstage stories is quite general], "Little Women," "Carolina," "Tugboat Annie," "Dancing Lady," "Flying Down to Rio" [the most popular of the straight musicals], all of the Rogers films, and, of course, Mae West's "I'm No Angel."

One Recommended Shooting Dialog Writer.

The comments of the exhibitors, reflecting the views of their customers, are interesting. Said one: "Shoot the next dialog writer who uses 'so what.'" Another suggested that the line, "I'm going to have a baby" be eliminated from at least every third picture.

"My public, as a whole, likes good, clean pictures," was the tenor of numerous comments. The belief that films presenting the real side of life in a simple manner are the best is general.

One answer put it like this:

HOLLYWOOD HAPPENINGS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Will Rogers, playing in Henry Duffy's stage production of "Ah Wilderness" on the Boulevard, has attracted full houses every performance. His curtain speech the other night was full of the Rogers brand of humor, with every soul in the audience holding his or her seat and applauding through three curtain calls till Rogers finally appeared to speak.

● "I have made lots of speeches," said Rogers, "on every subject under the sun, and I didn't need to know anything about the subject to talk, any more than a senator does.

"But what I want applause for is this new departure of mine. You know I've started out as an actor. What I want to know is how long has this sort of thing been going on? I mean, being able to sit in a rockin' chair through most of a performance and people askin' me questions that I answer as we go along?

"You folks can be assured of a different show as the run of this play goes along. I'm learnin' more of Eugene O'Neill's lines every performance, so the show's gettin' better and better. Of course, the part I play is foolproof, as I wired O'Neill when I began rehersing it. I think any one could play it. I bet Dillinger is playin' the same rôle at some police benefit somewhere around the country right now.

"They sure spoiled a good vaudeville act when I started actin'. They ruined a good rope twirler. I wonder what Barrymore would have done in makin' a speech on an occasion like this?" Here Rogers dropped his speaking tone several tones and assumed a Napoleonic attitude that was extremely funny.

● Other picture personalities in the cast included Charlotte Henry of "Alice in Wonderland" fame and William Janney. Following Will Rogers' play comes Conrad Nagel and Violet Heming in "There's Always Juliet."

● Douglas Montgomery has just completed his stage run at Pasadena Community playhouse in "Playboy of the Western World," which drew practically the whole film colony during its run, including Dietrich, who came to see and remained to dine with the talented young screen actor. As a curtain raiser Montgomery did the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," with Erin O'Brien-Moore as Juliet.

● Colleen Moore, with Tom Keene and little Cora Sue Collins, enacted the final scenes of "The Scarlet Letter" this week out in the valley at the foot of Laurel cañon. The movie scene showing the death of the young minister on the scaffold, with the woman who should have been his wife and their little child soothing his dying hour, was moving. Cora Sue has developed into a trouper and her childish tears moved onlookers powerfully.

● The mob of Puritan villagers, intermingled with stalwart Indian braves, made as picturesque a crowd as could be imagined. Shirley Jean Rickert, leading lady of the Mickey McGuire comedies, was enacting a little Puritan maid, her hair in demure curls under a white bonnet.

● Strange as it may seem, the site of the Puritan village is the same as that used for the Cossack village in the picture "The Cossack," starring Jack Gilbert back in silent days.

Strange how only a few details could turn the old group of buildings into a Puritan village; a tower on the church and a few railings and porches made Russia into typical pioneer New England.

Lupe Velez and Wampas Girls in Vaudeville

LUPE VELEZ, star of the films and the musical comedy stage, leads the current vaudeville program at the Palace theater. Songs, dances, and impersonations are in her repertory of tricks. Others on the bill are Ken Murray, comedian and master of ceremonies, in his fifth and final week; Lew Hearn, comedian, with assistants; Wilbur Hall, Helen Charleston, comedienne; Loretta Dennison, recently of the "Follies"; Chaney and Fox, dancers, and the Palace ballet.

The full roster of Wampas Baby Stars from Hollywood are making personal appearances on the stage program at the Chicago theater this week. They include Lucille Lund, former Northwestern university student; Judith Arlen, Betty Bryson, Jean Carmen, Dorothy Drake, Jean Gale, Hazel Hayes, Ann Hovey, Lu Anne Meredith, Gigi Parrish, Jacqueline Wells, Katherine Williams, and Jean Chatburn. They appear in a special production arranged by Leroy Prinz of the Paramount studios in collaboration with the Chicago theater staff.

The State-Lake theater's new vaudeville bill contains Joe Frisco, Jed Dooley, and Edith Griffith. The first two are well known comedians; the latter is a singer of "blues" songs who has appeared in several Chicago night clubs. Other performers are the Harris Twins and Loretta, dancers; Al Tucker and Manny Smith, comedians, and Verne Buck and the State-Lake ballet girls.

The Uptown theater's current vaudeville bill contains Johnny Burke, comedian; Roy Smeck, banjoist; Bellett and Lamb, comedians; Lou Duthers and the Carroll Sisters, dancers, and the Four Arleys.

Drama for Tour.

"Mary of Scotland," Maxwell Anderson's historical drama, ended its New York run last night. The play will reopen Sept. 24 in Newark, N. J., with Helen Hayes, Philip Merivale, and Helen Menken in the principal parts, starting a tour of forty-four cities, including Chicago.

Leslie Howard Has a Hobby: It Is Acting!

For Him Being an Actor Is Such Fun That He Cannot Call It Work.

HOLLYWOOD — Leslie Howard calls acting his hobby. He says he likes it too well for it to be an occupation.

Howard's 9 year old daughter, Leslie Ruth, is his playmate and resembles him greatly. His son, Ronald, 15, takes after Mrs. Howard. The father is going to begin teaching Miss Leslie polo, his favorite game, soon. He talks to his children as though they were grownups.

He prefers comfortable, unmatched clothes, chutney, blackberry jam, scotch and soda, and beef tea cubes. When he's wearing a tie that harmonizes with his shirt it's a sign that Mrs. Howard made him change before he left home. He thinks dancing is a waste of time.

Leslie Believes in the Copy-Book Maxims.

He believes in copybook maxims because "they must be true, after all these years of experience." If he's nervous, he smokes in the morning instead of eating breakfast. And he always shaves himself.

Howard made his stage debut after the war, in a small company, playing in "Peg o' My Heart." Of ordinary physique and not particularly handsome, he seemed to have little chance in competition with the good looking leading men of the stage. But audiences felt his dominance in even the smallest rôles and he became a star almost overnight. His real name is Leslie Stainer.

He spends a great deal of his spare time in photographic experiments. A huge leather chair, big enough to sleep in, is shuttled back and forth between Hollywood and London.

Insists on Returning to Stage Every Year.

He refuses to sign a movie contract which would prevent him from returning to the stage once a year. When he gets mentally tired he rests by playing polo for two or three hours. He collects match boxes. He has several hundred. He likes to gray his hair for stage and screen rôles.

When he thinks he has done a particularly good job of something he says to himself, "Well done, Dulwich, well done." Dulwich is his college. He is said to have a hidden desire to sing at a concert, but he doesn't have a particularly good voice.

If he ever retires, which Howard doesn't think he will ever do, it will be to his country home in England, where he spends but a few weeks every year.

STUDIO AGAIN TRIES ENTICING P. G. WODEHOUSE

HOLLYWOOD.—The movies are trying to entice P. G. Wodehouse again. Paramount would like to hire him, despite his contention of a year or so ago that it was practically shameful to take money for writing for the movies.

Wodehouse worked for a studio for a year, at $2,000 a week. When he left here with most of his $104,000, he maintained he hadn't done a thing to earn such a tidy fortune.

But P. G. did do something. I have it on very good authority that he put a handful of "toodle-oos" in one screen play. The story just came to me the other day.

M. G. M. sent Wodehouse, who worked at home, the manuscript of a new picture. He was asked to read it and make suggestions. He read it while the emissary waited. "What do you think of it?" asked the messenger.

"I think it's just fine," said the Englishman. "In fact, I couldn't have written a better script and I certainly don't want to make any improvements. I shouldn't like some other writer to tamper with my stories."

"But you must make some changes," the studio man pleaded. "That's what you're being paid for."

"O, very well then. I will. The Englishman in this story never says 'toodle-oo.' Englishmen should y'know. I'll put some in."

He wrote in a half dozen "toodle-oos."

Actually, however, Wodehouse did do repair work on several stories and contributed dialog to others. Whether he earned $2,000 a week is a matter of his own judgment and that of the studio.

"King's Horses" Author.

Frederick Herendeen, author of the book and lyrics of "All the King's Horses," has gone to New York to complete arrangements for the sale of the motion picture rights of the show to the Paramount company. He will also put the finishing touches on his new musical play, "Orchid Squad," which is scheduled to go into rehersal within the next few weeks. The music for "Orchid Squad" has been composed by Dave Stamper, who has written the scores of numerous "Ziegfeld Follies." Edna Leedom has been engaged for one of the leading rôles.

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper only. If you want personal replies please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelopes.

Another Fan Praises Paul Lucas' Singing.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am just another who wishes to voice admiration of Mr. Lucas' singing of Tschaikowsky's "None but the Lonely Heart," which he rendered very artistically. Being very fond of German songs, it appealed particularly to me.

Another bouquet for Norma Shearer in "Riptide," a beautiful woman and an outstanding artist in whatever she undertakes. I was wondering if she designs her very elegant and becoming gowns. She is 100 per cent with me and I judge her to be a lovely character as well. Herbert Marshall was wisely chosen for the picture, as he was particularly fine.

Another finished actor, in my estimation, is Frank Morgan. Too bad there are not enough suitable parts for him to fill. Having always seen the best actors and plays, I can fully appreciate their very fine acting and think there is so much to admire and appreciate in pictures instead of censuring them.

Hoping you'll agree to some of this. Thanking you, H. F.

Editor's Note: Kind of you to take the time to say such nice things!

Lauds Another Fan's Opinions About Films.

Dear Mae Tinée: I can't help but tell you and the world [maybe] that I feel so much better after reading Katherine Garvey's letter in Sunday's TRIBUNE.

My husband and I saw George White's "Scandals" last night and I came away feeling O, so sick at the stomach. I suppose it would be more refined to say a feeling of nausea. My husband said it is because I am getting old. That didn't help me any. I am a little past forty, with two grown-up children, and it sickens and saddens me to see so much filth in the pictures.

Katherine Garvey must be a young woman, and I feel much better to know that some one not so old feels as I do about them.

I was pleased to note that the theater was only two-thirds full last night, whereas Will Rogers in "David Harum" packed the house. Sincerely, MRS. J. R. R.

Here's for Better Wild Animal Pictures.

Dear Mae Tinée: I am a movie fan who is strong for wild animal pictures and hope there will be more but different jungle thrillers in the near future.

"Devil Tiger" was great in spite of the fake fight between a man and a python. I suspect that the last round of the buffalo-python scrap also was faked. While the camera wasn't looking the movie people killed the snake and loosened its coils, whereupon ("Camera!") the buffalo recovered, got to his feet, and shook off the ten yards of limp and lifeless reptile.

"Ubangi" was disgusting—slaughter from beginning to end. Hunters with high powered rifles sneaking about and sending bullets through peaceful and unsuspecting animals.

The Tarzan pictures were interesting and highly exciting, but their fights between man and beast were positively silly. Imagine a man, any man, wrestling with a 400 pound wild lion and coming out of the fracas without a scratch! In a real fight the lion would handle the man as easily as a dog would handle a jackrabbit.

"India Speaks," "The Big Cage," and "Devil Tiger" convinced me that the lion is a better fighter and has far more courage than the tiger. Numa's motto seems to be "Victory or death," while the tiger does not hesitate to run when the fighting gets too hot.

Sincerely, J. R. COOPER.

Editor's Note: These animal thrillers sure do provide food for thought.

Objects to Musical Background of Films.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am writing with the object of enlisting your coöperation in a worth while cause.

As far as I have been able to determine, I have not yet seen in print ar— of your reactions towards the superfluous, needless orchestral din behind the dialog. I have talked to numerous people regarding same, and they, too, are of the same opinion. The picture "Little Women" was a complete "flop" on that point alone. It appears that some moronic directors will continue in the same old rut until your pen jolts them off their pedestals.

If you agree with me, and if you are similarly annoyed with the needless noises behind the dialogs, please write a special article on the subject. I shall hope that your voice will register with the tin gods in Hollywood [and, then, perhaps we'll enjoy a quiet, peaceful, and restful evening in the theater].

Yours very truly,
D. A. LEVINE.

Editor's Note: We'll just print your "reactions" and see what happens.

School Loyalty.

Students and faculty members of the Morgan Park Military academy attended "All the King's Horses" at the Grand Opera house last Friday night to honor their noted alumnus, Fred Herendeen, author of the show. The group marched to the theater from the station, headed by the school band. The orchestra incorporated several of the Morgan Park school songs in the overture.

Marian Marsh Again to Make American Films

The 'Trilby' of 'Svengali' Back from Many Months of Doing English Movies.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—You remember Marian Marsh, the pretty little blonde girl who played Trilby in John Barrymore's "Svengali"? The question of where she's been for many months is solved. She's back in Hollywood after many months abroad making pictures.

She has a lovely soft English accent and has become much more the sophisticate than could have been believed. Poised, faultlessly dressed, Miss Marsh is in the happy position of coming home a success, with a British lord dangling in the offing as well. What girl could ask for more?

Lord Waleron, whom she met on the boat going over through picking up his ping-pong ball, sounds like a quite plausible reason for her return to England in August.

British Actors Good Scouts, Full of Practical Jokes.

"Working in English pictures was lots of fun," she reports. "The actors are such good scouts, lively and full of practical jokes. People think of the English as dignified. I don't know why.

"One morning out at Elstree, where I was working in "Over the Garden Wall," I was in my dressing room at 8, making up. Something was thrown at my window, and when I opened it to look out there was Bobby Howes, also in the picture with me, pelting my window with mud and doing a good job of hitting me with it as well. We both started laughing, and in the fight that ensued I threw all my shoes out the window at him, my gaiters, my stockings, my coat and hat, and then all my maid's things, too.

"I wasn't such a good shot as he. I was quite covered with mud when it was over.

American Deserts Make Alps Seem Dull.

"Twenty days at St. Moritz, Switzerland, with no work to do was a lovely experience. I was working on 'The Prodigal,' a Universal picture, with Louis Trenker of 'White Hell of Pitz Palu,' and as he is an enthusiastic Alpine climber it was great sport for me. I learned to be a pretty good skiier. My brother, Anthony, was also in the film and became a great pal of Trenker's.

"It was funny to hear the two California enthusiasts discussing the charms of the Mojave desert and the cactus gardens on those Alpine climbs together. Trenker fell in love with California while he was in Hollywood and thinks the Alps rather dull in comparison with the desert at Palm Springs."

Studio People Try to Get Locked Up in British Museum.

"Love at Second Sight," another British international film, was a third story made on the trip abroad. In it Miss Marsh made her acquaintance with real London fog, the kind that made it impossible for her to see herself in a mirror, even with an open fire blazing in the grate.

"The museums in London were a constant source of interest to me," she says, "and grand places to go with a crowd of studio folks who were always trying to see if they couldn't get locked up in the mummy rooms overnight at the British museum. They were always routed out by the guards, but it was fun to play at trying."

The departure at Southampton was something of a thrill, one gathers, for the demure little Miss Marsh was bidden good-by by her romantic lord in his airplane, which flew over the boat and stunted for an hour after the ship started home. A picture in Hollywood is to be made and then back to England for Marian Marsh.

Cæsar, Ace Scenarist, Jibes at Hollywood.

Arthur Cæsar, coming up to greet the visitor home again from her travels, remarked that he and his wife, Dora, had had a wedding anniversary recently. In characteristic fashion he greeted his spouse with a wire, "Like your closeups; I have taken up your option." "Our marriage," says he, reverently, "is a tribute to Dora's endurance. What a woman she is."

Cæsar, ace scenarist and man about town, as colorful a character as the film colony boasts, has a thumb to nose attitude towards most of Hollywood, good natured, but gibing. "I'm teaching them how to talk English over at Radio," says he, when asked about his present activities. "I've got the endurance if they have."

When a comic throws a pie it's slapstick. When an artist does it it's art. Janet Gaynor has thrown a pie, so it's art. She smacks Ned Sparks a juicy one in "Servants' Entrance," and they do say it landed beautifully right in his face. The company at the moment is filming scenes up at Lake Arrowhead in the Sierras and many are the murmurs of gayety that come rumbling down the mountains.

Gaynor and Ayres Take to Speedboat for Relaxation.

Louise Dresser, who plays Janet's mother in the film, was hostess to the entire company at the inn, and the merriment waxed extraordinarily merry and did not wane till morning.

Janet and her leading man, Lew Ayres, are having fun riding speedboats all over the lake and playing ping-pong at the hotel in the evening.

Jimmy Gleason, dialog man, has Ned Sparks interested in a battle to the death poker game—what a pair of pans for poker.

Sparks even got a pat straight flush dealt him, which happens once in 25 years or some such time.

Viennese Director Thinks America Crazy but Fun.

The newest thrill at Fox's is the new German director, Hans Schwarz, Viennese, who is full of wonderment over things around an American studio. He's quite sure they're all crazy, but he likes everything and everybody, anyway, and is eagerly sopping up the Americana.

With a Hungarian father and an Italian mother, he has a Viennese bringing up to make him what he is today, which is a great artist and a swell person. He thinks the lavish dressing rooms of movie stars are a scream. Sezee, "In Europe we do better. We make them small and disagreeable places so that the star is glad to stay on the set and work."

Has to Be Told What Remarks Are Wisecracks.

He can't understand the custom of placing actors and actresses in lights over theaters with no mention of the directors. Seems the European custom is vice versa.

Schwarz is to start on "The Lottery Lover," with Lew Ayres and Pat Patterson, a musical comedy with locale in Paris, concerning the adventures of a group of midshipmen and a couple of other Americans and French folk thrown in. Dialog is by Sam Hellman, who is a constant source of mystification and interest to Schwarz.

The Viennese has implicit faith in American humor, especially Hellman's, though he doesn't get at all. He listens, and when the crowd of wisecrackers let out a roar he inquires solicitously, "Is that funny?"

The other day he tried to tell Hellman an involved German story with much enthusiasm and laughter as he told it. Hellman looked at him with those sad Irish setter eyes of his, dewlaps, and floppy ears, and said sadly, "Well, Schwarz, that may be funny in Baden Baden, but it'll die in Kansas City."

Starred Lederer When He Was Not Yet Famous.

Schwarz has a distinguished career as a director in Europe behind him. He made his own films for a time after starting out as a stage actor, but on a vacation met Lubitsch and watched him work at UFA. He sold several films to UFA and starred Francis Lederer with Brigitte Helm in "The Beautiful Lie of Nina Petrowna" [don't you love those yard long foreign film titles?] when Lederer was as yet undiscovered in films. He worked with Erich Pommer and made "Hungarian Rhapsody" with Nina Parlo and Willy Fritsch. It got the gold medal of the year from the Berlin Kurrier. Later Schwarz started a new trend in sound films with his musical, "The Burglar," starring Lilian Harvey and Willy Fritsch.

His is the Lubitsch type of direction—little touches, light, sparkling comedy stuff, for which Fox's imported him, hoping he will do likewise for them with some of the Fox stars.

Sam Hellman, whose fame as a magazine writer preceded his film work, has a recipe for writing stories. He starts out with any idea at all and no definite aim for it except the mail box. At the sixteenth page, he says, he realizes he has to start winding up for the end. Page 21 is torn out of the machine and the manuscript is then mailed, willy-nilly. He never keeps carbons and never rewrites.

Society Agog Over Wedding at Bar Harbor

By COUSIN EVE.

THE social scene changes. Grand is the World's Fair, but a fashionable wedding at Bar Harbor a grander lure. There on June 30 that statuesque girl, Eleanor Morris McCormick, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick of Chicago, will marry Sargent F. Collier of Boston.

A reception follows at Burnmouth, Mrs. McCormick's lovely old house by the sea. The bride is handsome; her eyes are dark, her hair fair. The future husband is a writing man and they will live in Boston.

Guest Slid to Hostess' Feet.

In their new home, interesting pieces of furniture and art objects which once adorned the R. Hall McCormick house in Rush street. Here the bride's grandparents entertained with great pomp and circumstance. Mrs. R. Hall McCormick was a charming New York woman who lived with the utmost formality and kept regular Monday afternoons at home.

People "called" in those days, white gloved. One day a highbrow friend of the hostess, trying to conceal her galoshes, slipped on the rug at the drawing room door and tobogganed to Mrs. McCormick's feet, galoshes in the air. She tells the story still with agony.

R. Hall McCormick, the bride's grandfather, drove four-in-hand and was a collector of old English portraits, some of which will also hang in the Baltimore home of young Helen McCormick after she marries at Bar Harbor in September.

At the right: Miss Carol Crocker and Miss Bonnie-Jean Clark will be sisters-in-law early this fall. The former is to be married to Miss Clark's brother, Carrington Clark, in September. Miss Crocker, whose home is in Boston, visited her fiance, his sister and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Clark, in Barrington early this month. Miss Clark will be a debutante of the coming season.

Upper: Naturally curly blonde hair is one of Mrs. Lawrence Williams' chief beauties. She is the former Barbara Kirk and is the sister of Mrs. C. Ross Cuthbert (Beatrice Kirk), who is equally noted as a beauty, although she is darker in coloring than her very fair sister.

Lower: Always chic and well groomed is Mrs. Harrison Manierre, mother of two sons, and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison. She has turned her clothes sense to good advantage and is manager of the Lake Forest branch of a smart Chicago shop.

Cherry Sue Orr, Marian Carry and Ginevra Mitchell, three young but expert equestriennes who ride in Lake Forest, where the latter lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell. Marian is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Champ Carry of Mundelein, and Cherry Sue is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carey Orr of Wilmette. All three are pupils in equitation at the Onwentsia.

old and Mrs. Howard, who own a house with forty bedrooms at Bar Harbor; Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, with Pauline and Gordon Palmer; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer and their children, close relatives of the McCormicks; Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Odell, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gillette, and a score of members of the younger set. One hears of magnificent gifts; Eleanor and Helen have each received from England a dinner service of old Spode from a member of the family.

Bar Harbor is a resort of great houses, of wealthy families from New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago. Nightly dinners, daily luncheons, horse shows, flower shows, tennis tournaments, golf tourneys, thé dansants, a world of pleasure. Even during our darling depression a friend says she dined out nightly for ninety-seven nights. Sounds rather like a racket to me, but that is Bar Harbor life, a friendly merry-go-round with a background of pine-clad mountains and a foreground of sea.

Good Relations with France.

Here at home we have been renewing our good relations with France this week. Consul General and Mrs. René Weiller gave a large and handsome private dinner at 1420 Lake Shore drive for Messieurs Rossi and Codos, two brave countrymen of the Midi, who had just flown the Atlantic the difficult way. Not that either way is so especially easy. But of the many who have begun the westward flight they are among the very few to arrive. Stocky, powerful men with black hair and ruddy, sunburned faces, they speak only French and are modest about their exploit.

Somebody asked: Would they fly back? And the look of horror that crossed their faces! Having already flown across the easterly way two years ago, they said that after thirty-eight hours in the air there was no point in risking their lives for nothing and so would thankfully hop aboard the Ile de France.

Dining with Weillers Is Being in France.

It is really being in France to dine with the consul general. Mme. Weiller, tall, charming native of Tours, where they speak a pure, exquisite French, received her guests in clouds of black taffeta with silver linings. Here, as in France, one meets the highly polished parquet floor, the formal dining room arrangement, the closed doors and windows.

A guest arrives; the butler throws open the doors and at once there is an effect of grand entrée and importance. I was astonished to see how grand my friends looked as they entered, how imposing. It was a long dinner with short complimentary speeches and toasts to the brave, dashing guests of honor. I could not help thinking that these men showed the strain terribly. There was a sort of sad wistfulness in their bronzed, meridional faces.

At the dinner M. Jean Strauss, Mr. and Mrs. René Grimm-Provence, she the lovely little Spanish bride from Barcelona, full of lively charm; Robert Hall McCormick, president of the Alliance Française; Mr. and Mrs. Allais, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, the latter a vision in much ruched black mousseline; Mr. and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr., Mrs. Orville Taylor.

Each Cake Topped by a Plane.

The high moment of the evening was when the butler brought in the huge cake, covered with red, white, and blue icing, on top of which was a plane. Each guest read the legend which gave the dates of the great flight and the places where they left and landed, and the cake was heartily cheered. In the drawing room later one had a choice of black coffee or tilleul, and the tilleul made me really homesick for France, the way she used to be. This is an infusion of the bark of the linden tree and is supposed to make one sleep well, although sometimes I have thought it had the opposite effect. But the tilleul was the finishing touch. I do love French manners and customs and M. and Mme. Weiller are merry and delightful hosts.

It was amusing to see Bud Dewey wrangling with one of the aviators as to the merits of their own magnetos.

Next day the entire French contingent went to the Chicago Historical society in the morning and saw the ceremony in which the flyers presented their altimeter to Chicago in memory of their visit.

Charm of Tea Room Triumphs Over Carpenters' Concert.

This was in the Hall of States. We were met by a chorus of carpenters hammering a merry tune. But the tearoom was en fête, beflagged, etc., and the walls peach color and blue, and there were tea tables and at them a large gallery to see the fashion show. There were several pretty girls to wear the clothes, such as Peggy Hambleton, Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr., and Mrs. Stewart Harvey, Mrs. John Root, Emily Owings, Mrs. John Barnes, Dorothy Wheelock, Mrs. Philip Maher.

ENJOYING LIFE IN VACATION TIME

Miss Priscilla Morse and Miss Katherine McLennan, two of Lake Forest's pretty young subdebs, are at home from school for the summer and are enjoying life with their families and friends in the fashionable north shore community. Priscilla is the daughter of the Milton Morses, and Katherine is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan.

What they wore is all a jumble now of linens and silks, of cottons and hats, of plaids and stripes, of bathing suits with "the Chinese influence."

The comtesse de Gramédo, who is a demurely witty woman from Paris, remarked as we sat "that life was surely complicated enough without 'Chinese influence' in our clothing." I seconded the motion.

Lake Michigan Pinch Hits for Zuyder Zee.

For tea we strolled over into the Dutch village. A radiant day and it all looked delightful, tiny houses, canals, windmills, with Lake Michigan swelling up like the Zuyder Zee, big and green.

We saw diamond cutters from Amsterdam at work; silversmiths from Rotterdam and sabot workers, all fabricating. A particularly soft spot was chez the old maps—how I adore them—and such a good line of ancient tomes.

There were husky lads and lassies in sabots in a clattering dance on the village market place, and we took coffee with a gay old bonneted dame in a shop like a postage stamp, neat but not large.

From Holland we turned into the Streets of Shanghai and this has a certain charm. I was looking for Herbert J. Devine's exhibit of the gold service used for centuries by Chinese emperors. It is said to be the finest thing of its kind in existence and we were rather thrown down to find it still in transit.

But Mr. Devine's gold invitations came later in the mail for a grand opening supper party. The Streets of Shanghai, with its orientals and their intriguing wares, made one feel one had traveled a long way.

Next came a superb breadmaking exhibit, a packing exhibit, and the jungle show, Lost River, with a plethora of gorillas, pythons, and dinosaurs acting as they did a million years ago. The spectator takes a rowboat and sees the sights.

Younger Set Takes Up Community Singing Lustily.

Along with fashion shows, community singing has great vogue. "The Drunkard," a successful play now running at the Opera club in Walton place, was written in 1843. Revived some time ago, it had a run of two years in Newark, where "all New York" drove over nightly to see it. It is a piece where the audience hisses the villain and applauds virtue loudly. The entr'actes are filled by members of the cast who sing solo songs such as "There Is a Tavern in the Town" and "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage."

Mrs. Jacob Baur took in a large party who had been dining in her conservatory, and I was amazed to see that the bright younger set were all out in force, and what they wanted to do was to sing. And what they wanted to sing was "The Man on the Flying Trapeze," again, again, and yet again. A clever master of ceremonies made the thing go over largely. And, too, a rumor that a blond, slinky looking young man down in front was Walter Winchell added a touch of the macabre. Dorothy Schmidt, one of our best beauties; Otto Teegen, her fiance from New York; Peggy Hambleton, Walter Frazer, Paget and Emily Cady, Mr. and Mrs. James Offield, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan, Helen Rend, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Owen, Ford and Mrs. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Taylor, the lovely Mme. Joanna de Higersberger of Poland, and a hundred others were there.

A party of a quite other sort was an all day one in honor of the army in the person of Mrs. Preston Brown, delightful wife of the commanding general. This was luncheon at the riding club at Wayne, the hostesses being Miss Mary West and Mrs. Charles C. West. Mrs. George Marshall and eight other charming wives of officers were present, and three ladies with no army titles: Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Arthur Small, Mrs. Lewis Bernays. Some of the party diverged and passed the gates of Cantigny farm at Wheaton, where is the original farmhouse of the first editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Joseph Medill. Here are splendid herds of cattle in normal times and a rich rolling country. Just now brick stables are being rapidly built to replace the ancient barns, burnt with such havoc early in March.

The army women were delighted with the ancient landmarks of Wheaton and Wayne, the wonderful trees.

Mrs. Marshall Field Pronounced Not Beautiful, but Charming.

And then there was the prize fight! Various Chicago women of high fashion who saw Baer punish Carnera are back, each with a story. It was the thing to dine at the River club, which was packed and jammed for the occasion. All over the balconies they ate, and on the terrace. Rushing by was the East river. Across the way, Wards island for the criminal insane, to be moved some time.

There were the James Simpsons, the Jack Simpsons, William and Ginevra Mitchell, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, and Alicia and Joseph Brooks and a party of their friends. All going later to the ringside. Marshall Field and his wife were with the Simpsons, and expert opinions of Mrs. Field vary. She is not really so beautiful, her eyes are a little near, but extremely simpatica. She has electricité, charm, accomplishments; does everything well; is alive, up and doing.

Marshall Field's house at Lloyd's Neck, Long Island, was open last Saturday for charity. Guests paid $1.25, were served an elaborate tea in the garden, and allowed to wander over the newly arranged estate at will. I have never seen the house, but a unique feature is the great number of bedroom suites. So many indeed that no fashionable married couple is obliged to occupy the same suite.

It all sounds hectic but nice, especially tea in the garden. To me, eating al fresco is the best of outdoor sports.

Society Opening Its Southampton Homes

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Yuille are at Sunnyside for the season. Their daughter, Melissa, is with them, as is another daughter, Mrs. Wolcott Blair, the former Ellen Yuille. Mr. and Mrs. Blair recently returned from the south. It was at Louwana in Palm Beach, occupied by the Blairs last winter, that the former Nancy Yuille married Viscount Adare, son of the earl and countess of Dunraven.

Other regular summer inhabitants here are Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Hamilton Tyng, who attended the Harvard-Yale boat races yesterday at New London; Mr. and Mrs. George Barton French, Col. Henry H. Rogers and Mrs. Rogers of the Port of Missing Men, Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Gould Jennings, and Mr. and Mrs. Rufus L. Patterson.

N. Y. Society Girl to Make Stage Debut

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Society's interests nowadays are a great deal broader than ever before. Following the seasons, from Palm Beach to town and from town to Newport or Southampton, isn't enough for the elect. Every one avows some "interest in life"—and truthfully these "interests" are varied.

It is nothing new for the daughters of New York's notables to take to the arts, to acting as mannikins, and to the stage. One need only point to June Blossom, Hope Williams, and Elizabeth Young—and now particularly to Mary Taylor.

Mary seems somehow more fitted for the stage than many of the other girls of society who have gone on the "boards." If a penchant for the theater can be inherited, then Mary has inherited hers, for her father, Bertrand L. Taylor Jr., is the most gallant of all squires. No lady who aspires to fame as a great beauty considers herself arrived until she has been squired at some time or the other by Bert.

All the Family Approves Mary's Thespian Ambitions.

Mary is extremely young and equally beautiful. She wears her clothes with such verve that advertising men implore her to pose for the smartest magazines. She has been around town, a boon companion of her gay father, for ages, and now she is definitly identified with the theater. Tomorrow night in Woodmere, L. I., Mary makes her professional debut in the only feminine part in the gay and rowdy play, "Strictly Dishonorable."

Bert Taylor is quite pleased that his daughter has gone on the stage. Her mother, Mrs. Francis H. McAdoo, is not at all displeased, and her aunt, Countess Di Frasso, is positive that Hollywood will see Mary on its sets before too many moons have passed. All the smart set will push out to Long Island tomorrow night to give Mary a great big hand. With her amazing aplomb and confidence, it won't be surprising in the least if Mary turns out to be a real actress—something rare in the ranks of the social Thespians.

Fiermonte to Spend Summer Training for Prize Ring.

The Astors, who have figured much in the news of late, will be quite scattered this summer. Vincent and Helen will be abroad, to spend part of their time on the lovely Nourmahal along the coast of Norway. John Jacob, after his marriage to Tucky French at Newport, will be busy honeymooning, and John's mother and Vincent's stepmother, Mrs. Fiermonte, will pass the heated term at Westhampton, while the latter's young and handsome husband trains for a return to the prize ring.

Westhampton isn't Southampton, being quite lovely and desirable, but not at all fashionable. Mrs. Fiermonte has decided that since her Enzo wants to go back to the ring he might as well have his way. The Westhampton Pied-a-Terre serves both as a training camp and a summer home.

Entre nous Mrs. Fiermonte is happiest in the winter when she is at Palm Beach and the atmosphere of laissez faire is all about. From what I can understand, the former Madeleine Force hasn't any ideas as to whether Enzo can best Max Baer and become champion of the world. Her friends say she isn't interested—but she's glad that Enzo is happy at his task of getting into condition.

Joan Blake Betrothed to Henry Harjes.

The engagement of Joan Blake, daughter of the late Mrs. Blake and of Dr. Joseph Blake of Agua Caliente ranch, Tucson, Ariz., and Henry Herman Harjes promises town a famous wedding.

Joan is one of the lovely daughters of the famous beauty who was the first Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay and as such she is a halfsister of Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, Mrs. Irving Berlin, and John W. Mackay. It was under the wing of these latter that Joan and her sister, Katherine, made their bows last winter.

Henry Harjes is a son of Mrs. Harjes and the late Colm Harjes, who died in 1926 from a fall received while playing polo at Deauville. The late Mr. Harjes was senior partner of the famous firm of Morgan, Harjes & Co. of Paris.

Wedding Will Take Place in Autumn.

His mother is the one time Frederica Berwind, daughter of the late Charles Berwind, and was once married to Charles Gilpin III. Henry is a nephew of Edward J. Berwind and Julia Berwind of Newport and of Mrs. Robert E. Strawbridge of Philadelphia. He has two brothers, Charles B. and John F. Harjes. He was educated at Radley college, England; at Magdalen, Cambridge, and at Harvard.

Incidentally just a week ago his uncle, Edward J. Berwind, celebrated his 86th birthday at Newport and all the colony turned out to honor the noted millionaire.

The wedding is to take place in the fall. In the meantime Joan and Katherine and their younger sister and brother, William and Mary, are to be at Southampton, where young Henry Harjes, just arrived from Paris, will be with them much of the time.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Racing Events Rule Society's Life in Europe

Turf Enthusiasts Are Commuting Between Paris and London These Days

By May Birkhead

PARIS.—[Special.]—The chic racing set has been gravitating these days between Paris and London to take part in the leading turf events on both sides of the channel. Most of its members were seen last Sunday at Chantilly for the French Oaks, or Prix de Diane. They made for the Derby at Epsom Downs on Wednesday and will all be back at Chantilly next Sunday for the Prix du Jocky club or French Derby, which gives a good line on the probable winner of the Grand Prix in Paris two weeks later.

Chantilly shook out of her sleeve one of those brilliant Prix de Diane days which the racing fans have learned to expect. The rather cloudy skies of the morning and the chill in the air became a day of splendid sunshine by the time lunch was over. But there was a touch of rather cool dampness in the brisk wind which forced countless fair hands to hang on to the innumerable huge wheel-like hats. Aside from this slight indiscretion, the afternoon was perfect.

Dark Horse's Victory Adds Zest to Race.

The crowd seemed quite as big as in recent years and thoroughly enjoyed the sport. For the big event, with the fifteen fillies in the Prix de Daine, or French Oaks, Mary Tudor seemed so much a foregone conclusion that some of the zest was taken out of the betting. She was one of those sure things which gave the turf enthusiasts a shock when she was beaten, by two lengths, by an outsider, which paid 13 to 1.

Mrs. Honoré Palmer had an entry in one of the smaller races, but she has not yet arrived on this side for the big racing season. Several other American women who own race horses in France were seen. Among them Lady Granard, who shares her French racing interests with Lord Derby. She and her daughter, Lady Moira Forbes, left the next day for London to be present at the English Derby and will return for the French Derby at Chantilly next Sunday. Mrs. Constance Coolidge, who has an important stable in France, was seen. Other American turf figures were Col. and Mrs. William Littauer, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Parker, who arrived from America only the day before the race and went directly from Havre to Chantilly, where they have horses in training. To tell who was not there would be almost easier than to tell who was.

Cool Weather Cramps Styles at Chantilly.

The opening day at Chantilly is always the time when the summer styles are definitly launched, but the coolness failed to bring out all of the organdie and flowered chiffon that had undoubtedly been ordered for the occasion. The wife of the Aga Kahn, called the Begum Aga Kahn, was well turned out in a navy blue crinkled heavy crêpe dress with tiny shoulder cape and small white satin hat stitched in rows and trimmed in a veil to the eyes.

Society Finds Summer O. K. in Montecito

Days Are Full of Sunshine, but Nights Are Cool; So Chicagoans Linger.

By Mrs. Joseph Coleman.

"Why not Santa Barbara in the summer time?" said I, adding that I had been coming here for twenty-five years and that I have always found Santa Barbara perfect in the summer. The days are full of sunshine, it never rains, and the nights are always cool; so cool, in fact, that one always sleeps under a blanket.

I arrived yesterday after a comfortable journey in a modern, air-conditioned train, which has contributed so much to the joys of travel across the continent. How well I recall the days when we stretched cold wet towels over the car windows and sat with ice bags on our heads. The twenty-four hours crossing the desert that used to be something to be endured are now a delight. Of course, if you are air-minded a luxurious plane will land you in Los Angeles in seventeen hours.

Cabanas and Umbrellas Help One Keep Cool.

I found charming Santa Barbara unchanged; the mountains just as intimate and friendly as ever, and the Pacific that same deep rich blue. The perfume of the eucalyptus trees is so refreshing that somehow one is never conscious of motors and their unpleasant odors. Today is superb, with bright sunshine and cool breezes from the ocean; not even a morning fog, and it's all to the good, for today both of Santa Barbara's beach clubs have their openings.

One, with its cabañas whose gray awnings lend color to the scene, is most inviting. If you are fortunate enough to have a cabaña you have an umbrella opposite and can lie lazily in its shade and watch the passing show, which is bound to be amusing. If not, you sit on the other side of the board walk where you look longingly at your cabaña friends. In any case, it is a gay and pleasant way to pass the morning.

South of the cabañas is the swimming pool, which is one of the most attractive I have ever seen, with tables, chairs, and umbrellas around it. At 12 o'clock the radio announces the stock market reports for those who just can't get away from it.

Nearby is the grill, where one gets an excellent luncheon, and where one has the fun of watching his chicken, chops, or steak being prepared. Delicious French bread is served, which isn't so good for the figure, but, O, how appetizing!

Joe Ryerson to Join Family in Montecito.

Our Chicago friends are not yet as numerous as they have been in the past, but there are already enough of them here to make one feel quite at home. The Joe Ryersons are in their lovely house in Montecito, or at least Mrs. Ryerson and the children are here and Mr. Ryerson will come later.

The leading hotel and most of the clubs which Chicagoans frequent are in Montecito, which, by the way, is only about a ten minutes' drive from Santa Barbara, and many of the summer activities center in this beautiful suburb.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor are planning to spend the summer at Far Afield, their beautiful estate on Hot Springs avenue. The Clive Runnells have the house they occupied all winter in Montecito and will not go to their ranch in Goleta for the present. Goleta is where the Colin Campbells spend the winter, on the magnificent ranch inherited from Mrs. Campbell's mother, Nancy Leiter Campbell. This summer, unfortunately, they are in Lake Forest.

Evans Home Once Owned by Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson.

A few weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. C. K. G. Billings left in their private car and probably will not return until August. This is a real loss, as they add greatly to the life in Montecito.

I saw Mrs. Walter Franklin Cobb at the hotel where she is staying, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King will soon arrive to occupy their charming home on La Paz road. The Ellicott Evans, whose delightful old place, Stonehedge, was originally the home of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson, are leaving shortly for Honolulu, where they will pass the summer.

A club of farm women claims to be the first woman's club organized in the United States. It was organized in May, 1857, at Sandy Spring, Md., and it still exists under its original name of the Mutual Improvement association.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boby, of New York.

Chicago, April 18, 1884.

DEAR JULIA, dear dear friend: How cah I put on paper the news of the dreadful calamity that has befallen us?

But my first impulse in joy or sorrow is to write to you, my sympathizing friend, and so, as I sit in Martha's silent apartment—alas, so silent now—I am penning a few words about our grievous trouble.

MARTHA'S BABY HAS BEEN KIDNAPED!

It happened yesterday, but I couldn't bear to write and worry you in the beginning, for we felt he must soon be found. Then too, Sandy felt it was wisest to keep the matter quiet at first, though he reported it to the police at once. They are working on the theory that a ransom will be demanded, and Will says he will give all his small fortune, and I shall give everything I have, even my diamonds, if it will restore Baby Esmond to his mother's arms.

It puzzles us to know why the child of a doctor should be abducted, for, though some physicians in Chicago enjoy large incomes, Sandy is young and hasn't been long enough established for that. The Prairie avenue millionaires would naturally be the ones to lose a child if money were the object.

Revenge—another motive—is always suspected by the police, but again that theory is baffling, for Martha and Sandy have no enemies, so far as we know, who would do such a dastardly deed to hurt them.

My poor Martha looks so pathetic as she waits for news. I found her this morning by the baby's crib, on her knees, sobbing a prayer to God for help. "Give me back my baby, O God," she cried. "You gave Your son for the world. You must know what I am suffering."

Will and I spent the night at their apartment and were present when the morning paper was brought in. Martha had kept a semblance of poise before us until then. But the awful headline was too muc. for her.

She gave a cry like one stricken to death and laid her head on the table, sobbing bitterly. Sandy rushed to her side, to soothe and comfort her, assuring her that their baby would be found. But I know both thought of little Charlie Ross, who has been missing for twenty years.

Martha has gone now with Sandy to see one of his sick patients in the neighborhood. Sandy felt it would do her good to try to help some one else in sorrow. I am staying here, hoping each moment the doorbell will ring and the baby be brought in.

It was just at this time yesterday morning that the baby's absence was discovered. You remember I have told you what an excellent nursemaid Martha has . . . a Scotchwoman in her early forties . . . rather austere, but reliable and careful. She took baby out for his daily airing, in his cab, or buggy, as I call it, and stopped, by Martha's request, at the grocery on Clark street, where they trade. She was to get a few supplies and bring them in the buggy as she came home.

Her story is that she left the child in his buggy outside, having adjusted the parasol so the sun wouldn't shine in his eyes. She stood in the store where she could watch him except for a brief interval when she went to the back of the store where the grocer wanted to show her some canned fruit he thought Mrs. Macleod might like to order. On coming back to the front of the store, she says, she noticed the baby buggy just where it had been. She took up her package, chatted a few minutes longer with the grocer—a fellow countryman—and went out to put the package in the buggy. It was then she found baby wasn't there. She thought, she says, that Mrs. Macleod had come along, taken him up in her arms and run in to show a Dearborn avenue neighbor her treasure. So she wheeled the empty buggy home and finding Martha in, asked where baby was. Martha, alarmed, at once telephoned Sandy who came home to direct the search.

So far no demand for money has been received. The police are working desperately. Mayor Harrison has called to express sympathy and to say the villain will be found and prosecuted to the limit. But O Julia, what if they can't find baby? Or what if they find him sick or injured? He is a strong healthy child of nine months, but babies can easily be made ill by change of water and food.

Do say a prayer for us, in our extremity. Your sorrowing friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Wedding Guest Should Observe Specific Rules

Etiquet Editor Presents Examples of What One Must and May Not Do.

By Helen Bartlett.

ONE of our associates made a happy suggestion the other day [we are very open minded to suggestions] for our etiquet column. It seems the idea came to her as she was witnessing a wedding. The thing which struck her was the obvious lack of good taste on the part of the wedding guests. The wedding party performed perfectly, she had no criticism to make there, but she did think that a column of advice directed to the wedding guests would not be amiss. This being the month of June and the month of brides, her suggestion was a very timely one.

This Is Example of Improper Wedding Conduct.

There are certain rules of etiquet which the wedding guests are expected to know and observe. For instance, this young lady said that when the organist began to play the wedding march she discreetly glanced back over her shoulder to get a glimpse of the beautiful bride, but whom do you suppose she saw sauntering down the white carpeted aile? One of the guests, wandering from side to side looking for a place to sit. Now, in most cases, at church weddings, the neighboring public is quite welcome to come in and view the ceremony, but if they do they should show better judgment than that and not try to eclipse the bride. Another thing that happened was that after the bride had reached the vestibule in the recessional none of the guests had the courtesy to wait until the bride's and groom's mothers had been ushered out. Instead, everybody rushed out into the ailes and the parents of the principals were completely overwhelmed. Then, at the church exit, the bride's and groom's passage was completely blocked with admiring, congratulating, and loudly talking friends. No matter what kind of a church it is, voices and actions should be subdued and respectful. And no bride favors the idea of being kissed on rather a wholesale scale by everybody present. That, I guess, is enough fault finding with one wedding. But if other weddings are anything like this one the general public needs a little instruction.

Mothers Are Last Persons to Be Seated.

The groom's mother and then the bride's mother are absolutely the very last persons to be seated in the church. Even while the mothers are being escorted down the aile no one should be admitted to the side ailes, and certainly not after the bridal procession has begun. Late comers must stand in the vestibule or sit in the gallery.

Guests at Reception Have Specific Duties.

After the ceremony has been performed the recessional takes place. The ushers walk last, just the reverse of the processional. As soon as they reach the vestibule they hurry back to escort all the ladies who have been seated in the first pews—that is, the immediate relatives of the bride and groom. They should be taken according to their precedence, first the bride's mother, then the groom's mother, next the other occupants of the first pew on either side of the aile, and then the second pews. In the meantime all the other guests remain in their places. Not until the occupants of the first pews have left are the ribbons removed, if there are ribbons, and are the guests free to leave.

If you are a guest at the reception or the breakfast you must go down the receiving line, shake hands with the hostess, who is usually the bride's mother, greet the groom's mother, give your best wishes to the bride, and congratulate the groom and make some bit of polite conversation. Be brief, although not hurried, so as not to hold back all those other guests waiting behind you to perform the same duty.

Questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior are invited. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request. Address mail to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune.

I had to do something so I answered an ad from a company selling door-to-door. They showed me how to sell. Now I make as much as I ever did as a nurse!"

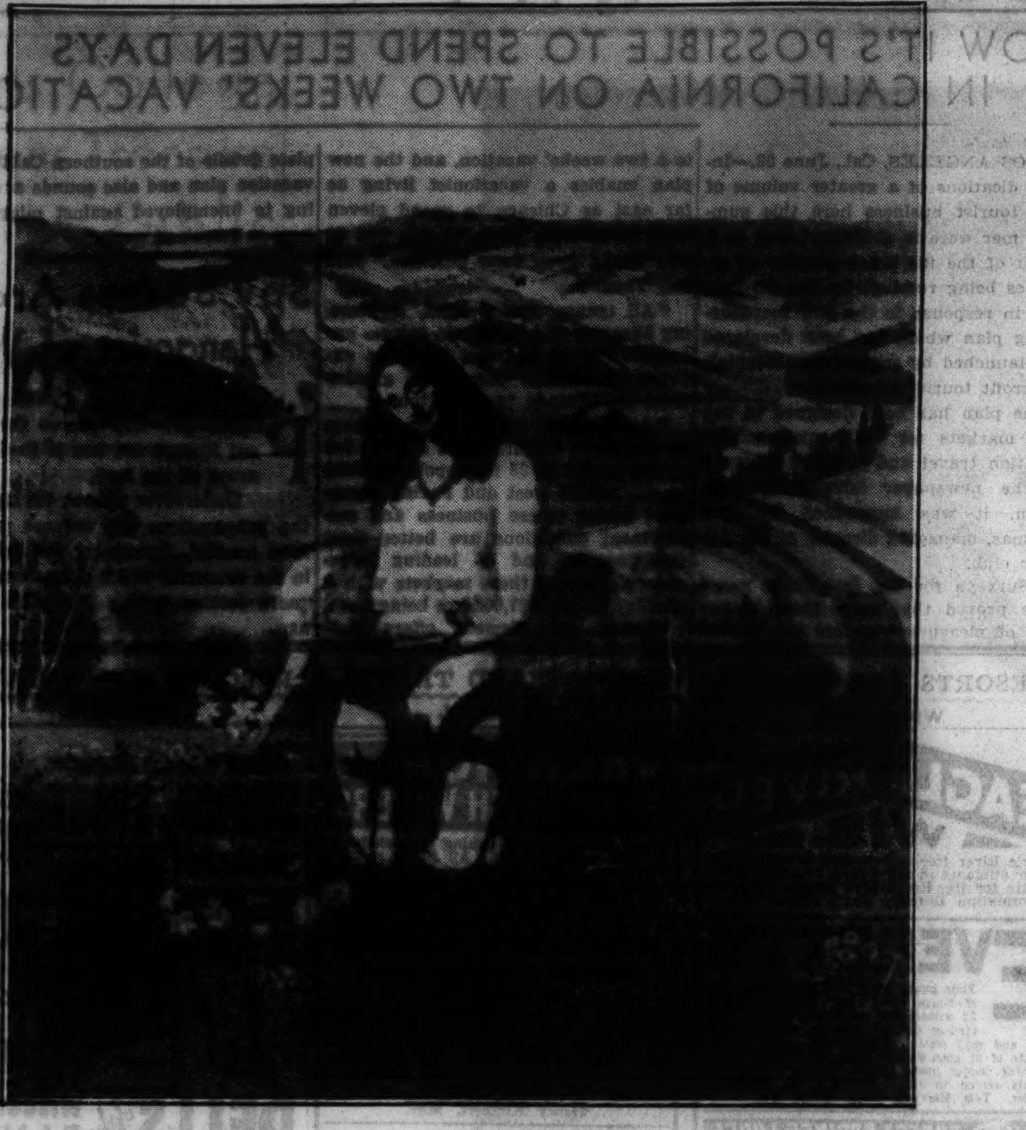
All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts Opens Three Superb Exhibitions



"Spring," by Julius Moessel, on view in that part of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts Century of Progress Exhibition being shown in the Lord Nelson room, Drake hotel.

Unique Order of Hanging Groups Works of Same Character Together.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is covering itself with glory this summer. It has three superb exhibitions in various galleries to offer to A Century of Progress visitors. The chief exhibit is in the society's main gallery at the Stevens hotel; second in importance is the exhibit in the Lord Nelson room of the Drake hotel, and third is the exhibit in the Florentine parlors of the Congress.

The show at the Stevens contains many brilliant paintings. There are oils, pastels, and water colors. Scattered through the gallery are several significant pieces of sculpture. Particularly fine is the bust of Clarence Darrow by P. K. Kufrin, and most charming are the delightful bas-reliefs of children by Helen Adele Lerch Miller.

The paintings have been hung in an interesting manner. The portraits are more or less grouped together, the still life arrangements flank them, and farther on are the landscapes and imaginative compositions. The pastels and water colors are to themselves around the bend of the corridor.

When you are looking through the water colors be sure not to miss "The Homestead," by Frederic Dalrymple; "In All Their Glory," by Nina Griffin; "Small Time," by Mary Hellmuth; "Street Scene," by Louis Kaep; "We Protest," by Julius Moessel; "Brownies and Fairies," by Carol Proctor, and "Atlantic City," by Ethel Spears. In fact the water color group is worth serious consideration, a number of the other paintings not mentioned here well might be. Some of the best things in the exhibit are found among them.

Portraits Stand Out Among Large Canvases.

Returning to the larger canvases, there are many striking portraits. "Estrid's Mother," by Claude Buck, stands out for the beauty of its handling. Mr. Buck paints with a meticulous delicacy which is fascinating. Florence Wilkins Furst shows a brilliant study in "Black Primitive." Adam Emory Albright, dealing in figures, not portraits, gives us a bewitching summer idyll with "End of the Pier," enriched by the presence of children.

John Goossens, who has achieved a number of portraits, is represented by "In a Chinese Garden," a romantic conception, pictorial and very decorative. Edithe Jane Cassidy has a stunning thing in "Winter." Gerald A. Frank pours out a multitude of fragrant, perfect blossoms in his gorgeous "Say It With Flowers." Bessie Helstrom offers a picturesque bouquet, "Flowers of Spring," and Jess Hoby shows a fine winter scene, "From Studio Window."

Kilbert Shows New Talents in "Equestrians."

Robert P. Kilbert in "Equestrians" gives us a different note from that to which he has accustomed us. Carl R. Krafft is strong and decided in "Labor." Jefferson League still wears the spurs of gallantry in "Isle of Wanderlust." Alice Mae Jackson charms us with "Mitzie." Louis Jensen offers a fine marine, and Charles Hallberg presents another brilliant seascape in "Sunset on the Atlantic." Alice Mason carries us to the smell of tanbark and sawdust with her good portrait, "The Clown." Elizabeth Krysler Peyraud is represented by one of the finest paintings in the show, "A Window in Ravinia," and Frank C. Peyraud intrigues us with his stunning "Winter on the Desplaines." Marques E. Reitzel has snapped out of his mannerism of granite clouds and offers the magnificent "Before the Storm."

Some of the artists carry over into the other two All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts exhibits. This is true of Ted Vognild, Berenice M. Newman, Lane K. Newberry, Florence Ezzel Stevenson, and Buell Mullen, among others. They serve as distinct links between the shows, having a foot [or canvas] in each.

Ted Vognild, who offers "Her Name Is Lael" in the Stevens exhibition, is represented at the Drake hotel by a stunning canvas of two Russian wolf hounds on a breezy hilltop, and at the Congress hotel by a brilliant portrait of Alice Newton Johnson. It is to all intents and purposes the finest piece of painting in the latter group. Mrs. Johnson is an eager, ardent, and hard worker in the All-Illinois organization. She is printing chairman and co-chairman of exhibitions. As an individual she is sweet and as a worker she is irreplaceable. Ted Vognild has made a great success with her portrait. The likeness is remarkable; the composition delightful. The coloring is particularly charming.

"Sunflowers," by Florence Ezzell Stevenson, also catches one's eye at the Congress. It is an impulsive, dominating canvas. Richard A. Chase offers there, too, an interesting portrait of a lady, remarkably well handled in its values. Kate A. Townsend presents an amusing and clever scene from Darkey Town. Florence Furst depicts a page from "Alice," the little girl day dreaming on the couch while above her a frieze of curious animals from Wonderland make their bow. Nina K. Griffin shows a strong painting in this exhibit, a street scene with something of Ruth Van Sickle Ford and Francis Chapin in it. It is frankly modern, but effective.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts has at the Drake hotel a number of characteristic canvases by members. Berenice Newman walks off with much of the honor there for her remarkably lovely still life of flowers and a screen on which two blackbirds seem to come alive. Carl Krafft shows a stunning landscape, "Winter," and Bessie Helstrom offers phlox in a jar, a colorful composition, beautifully painted. Gerald Frank is seen in his tender "Mother and Child" conception, veiled in green. Buell Mullen offers a distinctive boy's head, striking in its simplicity.

The All-Illinois is supporting with proof the contention that Illinois has painters of whom we may be proud.

AT A FASHIONABLE WEDDING

The tall and graceful Miss Dorothy Dewes was looking very solemn as she entered St. Chrysostom's church for a recent fashionable wedding. Miss Dewes always dresses with great chic. This time she was wearing a perfect gown for the occasion. It was a navy, green and white print, with a broad-brimmed navy straw sailor. White gloves completed the ensemble.

TOURS—CRUISES

Trader Ships Offer Traveler Exotic Voyage

Cargo Boats Have Comfort and Economy to Tempt People Abroad.

By Eugene Speck.

BEHIND the cold facts of commerce which send a fleet of twenty-eight American ships in constant trade through the Mediterranean and the Black sea lie travel opportunities which, for an American who wants to see three continents in one voyage, are as attractive as any existing in the world today.

The vessels have a total of 375,000 tons displacement. There are constant sailings from New York and Boston. Almost every port of interest in the Mediterranean is touched by one or another of the ships, and those of the "vagabond cruises" pass through the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus into the Black sea, loading cargo at Constanza, Roumania, and sometimes at southern Russian ports.

There Is a Choice of Trips to Be Had.

Either a set cruise of forty-three days can be made on one of the four new boats which make fortnightly sailings, or on one of the smaller cargo boats, which are sometimes gone as long as eleven weeks before they tie up in Jersey again.

These cruises are conducted by guides wherever passengers go ashore. They provide trips to Pompeii from Naples, and a number of sightseeing excursions in Egypt after the ships reach Alexandria. The traveler goes overland to Cairo, where he spends a day seeing the pyramids, the sphinx, the Coptic churches, the mosque of Amar, and the Egyptian museum, with a fresh collection of objects from the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen.

From Cairo the excursionists are taken by overnight sleeper to Jerusalem where they see the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the wailing wall, Church of the Redeemer and, outside the city by automobile, the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem and the Mount of Olives.

From Jerusalem One Proceeds to Seaport.

From Jerusalem they go to its seaport, Haifa, where they rejoin the boat and, on the following day, land at Beirut, famous Syrian port. From here they visit Baalbek, inspecting the most ancient temples of Asia Minor.

There is a steamer excursion from Naples to Capri, on the way back, and a visit to Pisa, with its leaning tower, the Baptistry and the famous Cathedral from Genoa, afterwards. The steamer's schedule calls for a return to New York on the forty-fourth day.

These cruises are made in vessels of only one class, with modern conveniences which, in a cargo boat, is comparable to that of any trans-Atlantic liner. There is accommodation for 125 passengers.

The second type of boat, of 9,000 tons displacement, carries only from twelve to thirty-four passengers, all one class. These are the vessels of the "vagabond" cruises, cargo ships which tramp through the eastern Mediterranean and, in the Black sea, fill their holds with whatever commodities the east offers to America.

Boats Stop Along the Line for Various Cargoes.

Oriental tobaccos, chrome or manganese ore, cork, whatever cargoes are offered to the agents of the line, the ships gather up, with neither captain nor passengers knowing when the sailing schedule will be altered by wireless en route. This is genuinely traveling at random for, beyond a few fixed ports, and an approximate date for the return, nothing more is known about the voyage.

The sea ports, however, are among the most interesting in southeastern Europe and the near east. After Gibraltar the first stop is at Piraeus, the port of Athens. The ancient seat of Attic culture is only five miles away and can be reached quickly either by automobile or a fast electric interurban train.

Athens stands in one of the most concentrated areas of historic and legendary past of any city in the east. Still dominating the plains is the Acropolis, with the most perfectly proportioned piece of architecture ever conceived in the whole history of classic art, the Parthenon.

Various Monuments of Ancient Greece Remain.

Also on the hill stands another monument to the glory that was Greece, the Erechtheum with its famous porch and the Caryatids. Nearby is the prison of Socrates, the temple of Zeus and, at the foot of the Acropolis, the ruins of the theater of Dionysus. The ancient holy way leads to a relic of the conflict between east and west, the church Daphni which has, in its ceiling, one of the most perfectly preserved specimens of Byzantine mosaics in the world.

A great face of Christ, which once looked down on worshippers below, is marred near one eye, where a Frankish crusader aimed his crossbow to show his feelings for what he believed to be a pagan Christ.

The traveler on these trips is free to go where he likes, and often there is time at Piraeus for automobile rides to ancient monuments nearby. One famous place often visited is Marathon, site of the battle and the source of modern Athens' water supply.

Farther along on the cruise there is Istanbul, standing on a cluster of hills overlooking the Bosphorus and the Golden Horn. The city, which is the metropolis of the modern Turkey, is an impressive sight from the harbor, the needle-like minarets of its numerous mosques still recalling the capital of Ottoman emperors.

Walls Which Repulsed Islam Still Are Standing.

The walls, which so long withstood the attacks of Islam still stand, as does the Adrianople gate where the Byzantine empire fell, and the city passed into the hands of the Mohammedans.

After Istanbul the ships proceed to Constanza, on the Black sea, and then turn homeward. They may stop at any one of several hundred ports on the way back, for any variety of cargo. The ship may stop at Batoum, in Soviet Russia; it may tie up at Bona, French seaport on the Algerian coast; at Mitylene, capital of the famous Agean iland known to antiquity as Lesbos, the birthplace of Sappho, or at any one of fifty ports at which ships are regularly loaded for the United States. In Spain, Italy, the north African littoral, in Asia Minor, passengers always have opportunities of going ashore to visit historic relics or shop in eastern bazars.

Passenger Accommodation Fulfills Demands for Comforts.

Passenger accommodation meets every demand for comfort, despite the fact that the ships are freighters. There is ample desk space, some of the vessels have outdoor swimming pools, the saloons are sumptuous, and the food as good as can be had. The ships are manned by American crews, the food is American and, because of the small passenger list, those on board soon cultivate an intimate friendship with everybody.

All the cabins are amidships, in the superstructure. They are all outside, well ventilated, cool, and clean. Although the ships are small, they are extraordinarily steady, due to the fact that they are weighted down with cargo.

Historic Resort in Canada Opens Season on July 1

TADOUSSAC, Quebec.—Oldest white settlement in Canada and one of the most frequented of the Dominion's family resorts, Tadoussac will start its summer season on July 1 with the opening of the Hotel Tadoussac and fishing camps.

In addition to its natural holiday attractions, its beaches, parks, nine hole golf course and salt and fresh water bathing, Tadoussac this year has a special interest, since America is celebrating the four hundredth anniversary of the landing of Jacques Cartier. It was at Tadoussac that Cartier wintered during one of his voyages to Canada and it was here that the history of French Canada had its real beginnings. At Tadoussac the first house in Canada was built, as well as the first Christian church on the continent. It was once the center of a thriving fur trade and boasted a shipbuilding industry. Long before that, tradition says, Tadoussac was visited by ancient Iberians, and in later years it was visited by Vikings.

A few hundred yards from the hotel stands the oldest church in America. Nearby is a stone cairn, marking the spot where Champlain signed his disastrous treaty with the Indians.

NOW IT'S POSSIBLE TO SPEND ELEVEN DAYS IN CALIFORNIA ON TWO WEEKS' VACATION

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 23.—Indications of a greater volume of tourist business here this summer were in evidence today as a result of the increased number of inquiries being received by the All-Year club in response to the new merchandising plan which has been developed and launched by southern California's nonprofit tourist bureau.

The plan has been designed to tap new markets for California summer vacation travel and is being featured in the newspaper advertising campaign, it was announced by Don Thomas, managing director of the All-Year club.

"Surveys for the last three years have proved that more than 80 per cent of pleasure travelers are limited to a two weeks' vacation, and the new plan enables a vacationist living as far east as Chicago to spend eleven days sightseeing in California out of two weeks away from business," said Mr. Thomas.

"All transportation lines, sightseeing agencies and California resorts are coöperating to the end that the expense of such a trip is no greater than the average vacation tour.

"An analysis of the best markets in which to feature such a plan led to the choice of 28 metropolitan cities of the middle west and Pacific northwest states where business and employment conditions are better than the average, and 48 leading newspapers covering these markets with a circulation of 6,221,000 are being used.

"Every advertisment offers complete details of the southern California vacation plan and also sounds a warning to unemployed against migrating here in search of work."

Spy Scares Are Hangover of War

Undercover agents, prying into the praparations for defense in the next conflict, frequently are detected in the countries which themselves had more serious spying to do 20 years ago.

Proclamation of Earlier "Treaty of Versailles" Is Put on Exhibition.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON.—[Special.]—The treaty of Versailles has achieved such an unenviable notoriety that one rather assumes there has been only one such in history.

At any rate it was with rather a shock that I discovered, this week, what my school books must surely have failed to stress, that American independence was made secure in 1783 by an earlier "Treaty of Versailles."

The College of Arms is celebrating it four hundred and fiftieth anniversary this month by throwing open its treasures to the public, and among those treasures, I notice, is the proclamation issued by the college, in 1783, in formal recognition of "The Peace of Versailles," by which the independence of the thirteen colonies was acknowledged.

London School Has Mock Trial of Biographers.

Mr. Francis Hackett, well known to Chicagoans, was one of the three biographers who were placed on "mock trial" at the London School of Economics, charged with being "valets to heroes." In Mr. Hackett's case the charge was based on his popular "Life of Henry VIII."

Prof. Ernest Barker, a very formidable historian, was the prosecuting attorney, and he "flayed" Mr. Hackett in most amusing fashion. But the Irish-American made a strong speech in self-defense, in fact, quite the most engaging of the three speeches made by the defendants. He pointed out that there was a distinction between "valet biography" and "lackey biography," accepting the first for himself and accusing Boswell of being guilty of the latter.

But all three were found guilty, and Mr. Hackett was sentenced to be deported to the United States and handed over as "a token payment of the debt."

Former Chicagoan Is Given Honorary Degree.

Dr. Edwin Powell Hubble, another former Chicagoan, also came into the academic limelight this week when Oxford university conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of science for his distinguished astronomical work.

The public orator, speaking, of course, in Latin, said that Dr. Hubble had devoted himself in his youth to astronomy. After commanding a regiment in France during the war he settled in the great observatory at Mount Wilson, Cal., and there won a world-wide reputation.

Talk of a women's polo association is increasing. It is surprising to learn that women were playing this game in England before the war. True, not very many, but enough to have occasional games at Ranelagh, in which the players rode side saddle and, so history says, spent a vast amount of time extricating their sticks from their too-flowing riding habits. But habits have changed, and now the Southdown Ladies' Polo club has games scheduled for three times a week.

No doubt international ladies' matches will be the next stage.

This Year Marks the Centenary of Big Fire.

This is the centenary year of the great fire which destroyed, on Oct. 16, 1834, the then existing house of commons and house of lords. Of the former structure only the old stone-built Westminster hall remains today.

Members of parliament are discussing what sort of commemoration should be held. The Daily Mail remarks, genially, that "they will, of course, reject the suggestion put forward in other quarters that another totally destructive fire would be a popular scheme."

Englishmen like to say that the fire of 1834 was due to "excessive taxation." The notched "tally sticks" on which the accounts of the treasury had been kept for centuries were put in a stove in the basement of the house of commons. The stove, unaccustomed to such well seasoned wood, became overheated and set fire to the whole place.

Two Scottish Nationalists Collaborate on Odd Book.

Two well known Scottish nationalists have combined in a crazy book called "Scottish Scene, or the Intelligent Man's Guide to Albyn"; the authors are Lewis Grassic Gibbon and Hugh MacDiarmid, and very amusing and heterodox they are in their conceptions of Scotland and England and the act of union. Of the two, Mr. MacDiarmid is perhaps the more quotable:

"Edinburgh has never been made the subject of any good, let alone any great, poem.

"One detests Aberdeen with the detestation of a thwarted lover. It is the one haunting and exasperatingly lovely city in Scotland.

The Clergy Pensions institution has been holding some fifty thousand dollars of its funds invested in the shares of Vickers', the big steel and armaments firm, but "socially conscious" clergymen, discovering the fact, have kicked up such a fuss that the board, apparently in considerable annoyance, has agreed to dispose of its holdings.

But the prejudice against "armament shares" is by no means confined to clergymen. If one may judge by one's ordinary contacts, it seems shared by a large number of laymen, especially those who were in the war.

It includes, I believe, Lord Rothermere, an extremely wealthy man who lost two sons in the war.

"Rain" Provides Tipplers' Excuse

RADOM, Poland.—(AP)—Husbands, dawdling over their food and drink at a local restaurant, can look out its windows any time and find a good reason to give their wives for staying longer.

So his guests might explain their absences from home, the proprietor placed pierced pipes under the eaves and turned water into them.

Now the restaurant is crowded late with men who can always swear they were afraid of getting wet.

WORLD MISSES CHANCE TO GRAB EASTER ISLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES.—For the last forty-five years a sizable No Man's Land in the Pacific ocean has awaited some nation to formally take possession of it.

This No Man's Land is known as Easter Island, and is situated 2,000 miles off the Chilean coast. It was discovered in 1722 by the Dutch navigator Roggeveen, but excited so little interest that it was left for Peru to doned it, and it apparently lay at the mercy of the first comer until 1888, when Chilean expeditionaries took possession. It has remained nominally a Chilean possession ever since.

In January of this year, however, a diligent searcher in the Chilean foreign office archives made the startling discovery that the island had never been formally incorporated in the Chilean dominion—in effect, that it had been occupied by Chileans but not by Chile. Proceeding with the greatest secrecy, President Alessandri's government promptly remedied this oversight, with the result that Easter Island is a No Man's Land no longer. It is definitly Chilean.

It is now too late for the "imperialists" of any nation to feel anything beyond regret that they knew nothing about this matter.

Easter Island at one time was the seat of a civilization of which the modern world knows little or nothing. It is to gather information on this head that a French scientific mission is on its way to the island aboard the French scoutship Rigault de Genouilly, which recently made a halt at Buenos Aires on its voyage to the island.

Easter Island is remarkable for the possession of more than 500 stone idols, some of them thirty-six feet high. Little so far has been learned of the religion professed by the builders of these idols or of the life they lived. Their descendants are a dying race. In 1870 they numbered approximately 3,000, but today their numbers have been reduced to a few hundred. They have a language of their own (of Polynesian derivation), and they live isolated from the world except for the yearly visit of a vessel which brings them their few wants unobtainable in their own land.

The French mission is headed by Prof. Wathelin and Dr. Alfred Metraux, and the outcome of their researches will be awaited with interest by students of bygone civilizations.

D E T O U R S

By Frederic Babcock.

IF you are going traveling this summer and are under the impression that you'll have to undergo the discomforts of other years you might take a jaunt down to the World's Fair and come to a stop near the southern end of the grounds. In and around the Travel and Transport building you'll find out how touring facilities have been brought up to date. Your discovery may prove quite a revelation.

● Some time ago the railroad officials realized that the saving and restoring of passenger business to their lines would require a radical change in their equipment. Air conditioning, with its elimination of noise, heat, dust, and dirt, was one of the first results, and then along came such startling innovations as the Union Pacific's M-10000 and the Burlington's Zephyr. Others are just speeding in over the horizon.

● At the Fair you'll see the Milwaukee road's electric locomotive, used in hauling the Olympian through the Cascade mountains; the Baltimore and Ohio's completely air conditioned train, the Burlington's Aristocrat, the North Western's giant class "H" locomotive, the navy's two ton seaplane, the United Air Line's 200 mile an hour Boeing, and exhibits by the Pennsylvania road, the New York Central, the Illinois Central, and many others. All of them are getting the crowds. But the center of attraction for the travel-minded is the streamlined train.

● From fishlike nose to finlike tail the exterior of the M-10000, canary yellow with brown trimmings, presents a pictur as striking as the fact that the train is capable of 110 miles an hour. Inside, the color scheme is more subdued, shading down from the nearly white ceiling to a dark blue beneath the window sills. The windows take the glare out of the sunlight. The sills are of black bakelite; the aluminum chairs are upholstered in brown tapestry. The whole scheme is designed to please the eye and rest the body.

● All this, of course, is to be found outside the Travel and Transport building. Inside is another lesson in modernism. Standing side by side under the vast dome are No. 9, America's first Pullman sleeping car, and the George M. Pullman, America's first all-aluminum sleeping car. The one was remodeled from a Chicago and Alton coach about the time Lincoln and Douglas were staging their debates; the other is the result of three years of scientific research and designing. The one was lighted by candles and heated by an iron stove; the other has indirect lighting and thermostatic control, cooling the air in summer, warming it in winter, and keeping it well filtered. The one didn't have much in the way of comfort; the other has such things as adjustable reading lamps, folding stairways, and collapsible washbowls.

● After you've had your fill of contrasts you can wander across the street and see how transportation has progressed in the last hundred years. The Wings of a Century show is hailed as one of the most authentic in detail and one of the most elaborate in cost and cast ever given in America. The episodes have been enlarged, and historically important scenes which could not be given last year because of lack of rolling stock are included this year. The pageant carries the spectators from the days of the ox cart to the air, water, and rail transportation of today. It is a thrilling open air spectacle—moving in more ways than one.

● Finally, no traveler or hopes-to-be traveler leaves the Fair without a stroll through the foreign villages, synthetic, of course, but nevertheless coming remarkably close to the authentic. Many of the buildings were made from casts of the originals. Their combined effect is of a world tour in miniature.

Aborigines Always Go Nude.

ADELAIDE.—(AP)—Australian aborigines, among the most primitive people on earth, wear no clothes even when the temperature drops below freezing, says a report by an expedition of the University of Adelaide. The blacks carry firesticks or sleep between two small fires.

There's Fun in Michigan for Vacation Guest

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 23.—Thousands of travelers are on the highways to happiness, says Hugh J. Gray, secretary manager of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association. They are invading the state with everything from the old broken down car of the vintage of several years ago to the finest house car that can be had. They are pleasure bent and Michigan is ready for them.

All up and down the coast and inland along the arterial highways the cities have arranged fêtes, festivals, regattas, tournaments, and homecomings for the entertainment of these wandering guests. Early in the season these festivals began with the coming of the blossoms and they continue far into the fall—and, in some sections, on into the winter. Some of these festivals have already assumed national importance. Many of the regattas draw boats from the surrounding states. The tournaments bring men and women from all parts of the country.

People Want More Than Scenery on Their Vacation.

"We learned from experience," said Mr. Gray, "that people want more than scenery and fresh air when they go on a vacation. The old idea that people want to "rough it" has passed. Now the visitors want more conveniences than they have at home. They want these conveniences and then they want a lot of things they can't get in their own surroundings. They want to be entertained.

"The dunelands are interesting, but when we can add festivals and regattas to the dunelands the visitors are more interested. It is nice to have fine resorts, but visitors don't want to come and merely sit on verandas. They want to swim and play golf, ride horseback, and go to fairs, play cards and go fishing, look on at tournaments or enter these tournaments themselves.

Anglers' Wives Must Have Entertainment, Too.

"Some come to Michigan to fish and, unless we can furnish entertainment for the wives and children of these anglers, we are very liable to cause friction in the family and eventually lose the whole family. Husbands and wives may compromise on a vacation, but I find that it is the wife who has most to say, so we have arranged programs of entertainment to keep these families happy.

"Two and a half million cars entered Michigan last year, and spread out on our 78,000 miles of highways. Close to ten million persons visited our state parks. Michigan was ready for them with programs of entertainment that have made them want to come back again this year, and again we are ready for them."

"Pack Rats" and "Heavers" Taking Care of the Dudes

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo.—With the arrival of nearly a thousand employés, the 1934 season has gone into full swing. Recruited from all over the United States, largely from colleges and universities, these Yellowstone "savages" were brought in special trains to Gardiner and West Yellowstone and immediately transported to all parts of the park.

Prior to the official opening, early visitors had been cared for at the cafeterias, general stores, and cabins, but within a day after the special trains arrived the lodges were opened to the public. Hotels opened their doors June 20 when regular rail travel began.

Transforming the park centers in spirit, as well as in material ways, the "savages" brought along their own Yellowstone songs, their own entertainment, and, more important, their own language. Park visitors, rolling up to lodges in the big yellow buses, are greeted with spirited songs, as befits the "dudes." Those who drive in with their own cars are known as "sagebrushers."

Driving the bus is a "gearjammer"; a "pack rat" unloads the baggage and escorts the "dude" to his quarters; a "pillow-puncher" tidies up the cabin; a "heaver" comes laden with a tray of food; a "pearl diver" takes care of the dishes; a "90 day wonder" [temporary ranger] explains the park phenomena; a "dude wrangler" acts as guide for the horseback party; in the evening a "song wrangler" directs the entertainment; and when the moon is full the traditional pastime of "rotten logging," or dating, comes into its own.

New Dunes Park to Be Preserved as Game Refuge

THE newly opened Dunes park of Illinois, between Waukegan and the Wisconsin state line, will be kept free from merry-go-rounds and other concessions. This was announced last week by Arthur Fisher of Hubbard Woods, president of the association that is leading the movement to convert the area into a state park.

"Beach fires, hiking, horseback riding, swimming, and picnics are the chief diversions at the park," said Mr. Fisher, "and we plan to keep the 1,500 acre tract in its present wild state as long as possible. It is now the refuge for scores of varieties of birds, many kinds of wild life—even deer—have been found there, and we believe ordinary amusement park devices would soon frighten them away."

Visitors are forbidden to bring firearms into the park, but beyond that, and building fires in the woods, there are few restrictions. Beach fires are encouraged.

Five Vessels Form New Fleet Plying the Great Lakes

IT was announced yesterday that a fleet of five great lakes steamers had been formed through the combination of the Pere Marquette, Gartland, and Wisconsin-Michigan steamship lines. The vessels comprising the fleet are the S. S. Nevada, Virginia, Brockton, Illinois, and Missouri.

A regular passenger service is now established between Chicago and Muskegon, Mich., and between Milwaukee and Muskegon and Ludington.

Reports from the Michigan resort sections indicate a larger tourist travel than at any time in the last two years. Inquiries and reservations are both ahead of previous years.

My son is suffering from hay fever and I am wondering where I can send him for the summer. Can you help me out?—B. H. C.

There are numerous lake resorts in northern Minnesota where victims can get relief. Also, the Apostle islands in Lake Superior. If you can spare the money you might let your son go up into the Rocky mountains. Almost anywhere above the "weed line" is a good place for hay fever sufferers.

What and when are the "Patterns" of Ireland? L. J. H.

A "Pattern" is a colorful commemoration of a saint's feast, starting in the morning with mass and a short sermon about the saint or the event being celebrated. The rest of the day is given over to the pleasures of the country fair, with plays, songs, dances, and innumerable side shows. It's an ancient custom. The celebrations are held throughout June, July, and August.

Is it true that the dude ranches in New Mexico should be visited only in the winter, owing to the climate? M. S.

No; the northwest part of New Mexico is mountainous and is always cool in the summer, with blankets necessary at night.

Will we have to have a passport to travel through eastern Canada by auto this summer? V. R.

No, you merely declare your American citizenship. But be sure to take your auto license certificate with you.

What is the date of this year's Oktoberfest in Munich? C. C. A.

The festival will begin Sept. 22 and last till Oct. 7. The main event will be staged Sunday, Sept. 30.

I understand there is to be a pilgrimage to Europe this summer under the auspices of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. Please give details. J. T. O'C.

The party will set sail from New York July 7 on the S. S. Conte di Savoia. Archbishop Gerken will be the spiritual adviser. The tour will include a number of the outstanding Catholic shrines of Europe, the Passion Play at Oberammergau, Paris, Monte Carlo, Switzerland, Venice, Florence, and Naples. In Rome there will be an audience with the pope.

How long does it take to fly from London to the Isle of Wight? G B. N.

Under a new arrangement the trip may be made from Victoria station to Cowes in an hour and a half, this including the time spent in going from the station to the Croydon airport by rail. The actual flying time is 50 minutes.

We'd like to do a tour of some such places as Port Huron, Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur, and Duluth in the space of a week or so this summer. Can you tell us how? D. L.

There is a good trip out of Chicago, beginning June 29 and operating twice weekly thereafter. It is a combined rail and steamer tour, lasts eight days, and the cost is around $70, all expenses included.

Mount Edith Cavell in Jasper National park, Alberta, is said to be the finest monument in the world to a woman. It is named after the British nursing sister who was executed by the Germans in the world war.

Soviet Planning Stadium to Seat 150,000 Persons

MOSCOW.—[U. P.]—One of the largest stadiums in the world, seating 150,000 persons, has been projected by the soviet government.

This vast structure, to be erected on the outskirts here, will be a monument to the importance which physical culture occupies in modern soviet life.

The massive stadium, indeed, merely will be a part of what might be called a "physical culture city," in which will be located the headquarters of the Academy of Physical Culture.

Within the central arena of the stadium 20,000 persons may be massed at the same time, thus affording the opportunity for great military parades and major athletic demonstrations.

Near by will be dug a large swimming pool, 2,000 square meters in area, surrounded by seats for 8,000 persons.

Turk Language Adopting Many French Terms

ISTANBUL.—[U.P.]—Leading Turkologists claim that the population is going "boulevard mad" in its modernization of the Turkish language.

It is noticed that Arabic and Persian words are being eliminated, only to be replaced by modifications of French terms.

Shops display such signs as "rop, manto, kostum," which is a phonetic spelling of "robe, manteau, costume," while hairdressers offer "friksyon, condulasyon, manikur" for customers who wish a "face massage, hair wave, or manicure."

World's Fair Provides Tour Through Europe

By Earl Mullin.

Do you dream of the faraway places, cities and lands you shall never see and shall know only from the books of those more fortunate than yourselves? The temple bells of India sound in your ears at dawn and the smell of a tarred rope's end brings haunting visions of the wharves of Singapore?

Indeed a trip which would include such places would be the end of the rainbow for most of us. But to be a cosmopolite is the lot of the few, the many must love places they will never know and find solace in the quiet, mundane things.

Books, with imagination, supply this lack. Thousands are intimates of the Limehouse district of London, exploring its smelly, ill lit passages with Thomas Burke. Kipling has made Mandalay as our own backyard. Chicago this summer brings all of the senses to your aid, and imagination is relegated to unimportance.

Replica Villages Afford "World" Tour.

Fifteen foreign villages, exact replicas of the similar social groupings in as many distant lands, permit a trip around the world, a trip as brief or as long as your own wishes dictate. No spot on the earth has been missed. It is A Century of Progress in globe trotting.

In a few brief blocks on the site of the old Midway the Fair visitor may visit exact reproductions of village life that would take years to study thoroughly on their native sites. The sidewalks of Paris greet the visitor on one side, postal card salesmen and all. Hawkeyed Bedouin sheiks, apparently indifferent to the tourist stare, saunter the sand streets of the Oasis. In Tunisia forty representatives of desert tribes and the little known cities of Tunis lend an atmosphere of authencity to a transplanted home.

It is impossible, in a newspaper column, to give more than a slight idea of the color and romantic strangeness portrayed in these small bits of transplanted land. A listing of the names will convey some idea of this foreign tour at the Fair, borrowing on the geographical and sociological knowledge which those desirous of foreign travel have.

Here Is List of Foreign Settlements.

On the street of foreign villages there are the Swiss, Parisian, Oasis, Tunisian, Belgium, Old Colonial, Midget, Black Forest, Irish, Spanish, and Italian villages. On Northerly iland, across the lagoons, the Streets of Shanghai lure those enamored of oriental atmosphere. The Mexican village, and Old Mexico, and Tia Juana café speak of langorous nights south of the Rio Grande. The little boy who saved a nation by holding his finger on the hole in the dike is vividly brought to mind in the Dutch village, where rosy cheeked maidens in wooden shoes serve typical Holland food.

Sends Check for Theft of Record; but Gets It Back

SAN FRANCISCO.—An unusual letter in which the writer confessed the theft of a phonograph record from an ocean liner four years ago and inclosed a certified check in restitution was received the other day by the Dollar line.

The writer was an American representing a large institution in the Province of Shantung, China. His check covered the original cost of the record, plus interest of 8 per cent for four years.

In reply to the "penitent" an official of the line wrote:

"Your letter with check attached was so unusual that it has been a pleasure to look at it occasionally rather than give it the immediate attention it deserves.

"Personally, this is the first time I have ever heard of a steamship company receiving 'conscience money.' On the contrary, the traveling public is more apt to feel the obligation is on our side, and such things as phonograph records, library books, thermos bottles and silverware, to say nothing of napkins, towels and bed clothing, are looked upon as legitimate prey. Therefore your letter was a real treat to us.

"I am very glad, on behalf of the company, to ask you to accept the phonograph record with our compliments, and permit us to return herewith your check."

SCIENTISTS TO MAP GLACIERS OF HIGH SIERRAS

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—[Special.]—An expedition for scientific purposes is being organized to study the region of the high Sierras this summer. Already the western contingent has taken the field. A group of scientists will leave New York, July 1.

One of the major projects will be the measurement and mapping of some 23 glaciers of the southern Sierra Nevada of California. Physiographic studies have been planned to work out the evolution story of certain types of high mountain lakes. Dr. François E. Matthes, a leading authority on the glaciers of North America, will direct this work.

Another project will be a study of the flora and fauna of the region. Robert E. Burton, botanist, is being assigned to the expedition by the United States government to collect alpine plants and seeds for the division of plant exploration of the department of agriculture.

A comprehensive survey of the birds, fish, mammals, reptiles and amphibia will be initiated. It will take several seasons of intensive field work to complete the research and to gather data for publication of a volume describing the fauna of the region.

Ansel F. Hall, chief of the division of education and forestry of the national park service, is general director of the expedition. William M. Gaylor of White Plains, associate director, is in charge of recruiting the eastern contingent.

Transportation from New York will be by motor caravan. To orient the personnel while the men are undergoing the hardening process, brief studies will be made at the Carlsbad caverns, N. M.; Grand canyon, and Bryce and Zion National parks. Boulder dam will be visited.

Picture, if you can, silent polar seas, snow-crowned mountain ranges and brilliant northern lights, and, scattered throughout this scene, Alaska's youthful enterprising cities, at the foot of her own splendid "Alps," beside the Arctic sea. Yet Sitka is never colder than Washington, D. C. For the vacationer, Alaska is a unique experience! Railroads have pierced the interior, and, today, busy, modern cities stand on the site of old fur-trading posts and gold camps.

If you have never visited Alaska, let the Tribune Travel Bureau help you plan one vacation you will never forget. THE GIBSON FAMILY · Jane Hides Her Face · Smile, Julia! · The Floater Wins!

"WHOOPS, DEARIE!" exclaims Sally, "Why the Turkish veil act on this hot night? You'll melt when you dance in that stuffy costume!"

"Oh, I'll be the forgotten woman," moans Jane, "but this is better than showing my face. My skin is all spotty from that fancy soap I bought this morning!"

"For heavens sake, Jane Avery, why don't you use Ivory!" scolds Sally. "I'm going to take you to Dr. MacRae. Perhaps he can convince you that you should use my nice pure soap!"

IVORY'S PURITY SOOTHES YOUR SKIN

"There'll be a handsome cop in it," teases Clancy.

For the hundredth time, Julia is grateful that Mrs. Gibson furnishes plenty of Ivory for dishes and cleaning. Sure, and it's pure Ivory in the dishpan which keeps Julia's hands as smooth as fine silk!

IVORY FOR DISHES MEANS SMOOTH HANDS

Think . . . before you wash with "Beauty Magic"

PATSY WAS SUNK. It was awful to go out with a boy whose skin was nicer than hers! She took it to heart—she tried all the "beauty magic" soaps that promised "youth"—"beauty oils"—"The lovely skin that men adore!"

But her skin didn't improve! "What shall I do?" she asked her doctor.

"Why don't you use Ivory?" he said. "After all, there's nothing that helps your skin like a pure, gentle soap!"

As doctors know, soap can't perform "magic". You use soap to cleanse your pores. And if you're wise you'll use Ivory, the soap so pure and gentle that it soothes even a baby's touchy skin!

No dry, stinging feeling after you've rinsed Ivory's fresh bubbly foam away! Ivory contains no parching free alkali! No fancy perfume! No coloring either! If you look high and low, you can't find a gentler, purer soap to touch your face!

IVORY SOAP

99 44/100 % PURE · IT FLOATS

"Gee, Dad, that's swell!" grins Bobby. "Ivory is it when we go swimming! Gosh, Dad, Fatty was funny last summer. He brought that smelly soap of his—and he was always diving for it!"

"Tell Fatty," laughs Mr. Gibson, "that Ivory has floating power. And it won't give him a smell after it gets him clean!"

The Dillinger method of discouraging pursuit.

JESSE JAMES

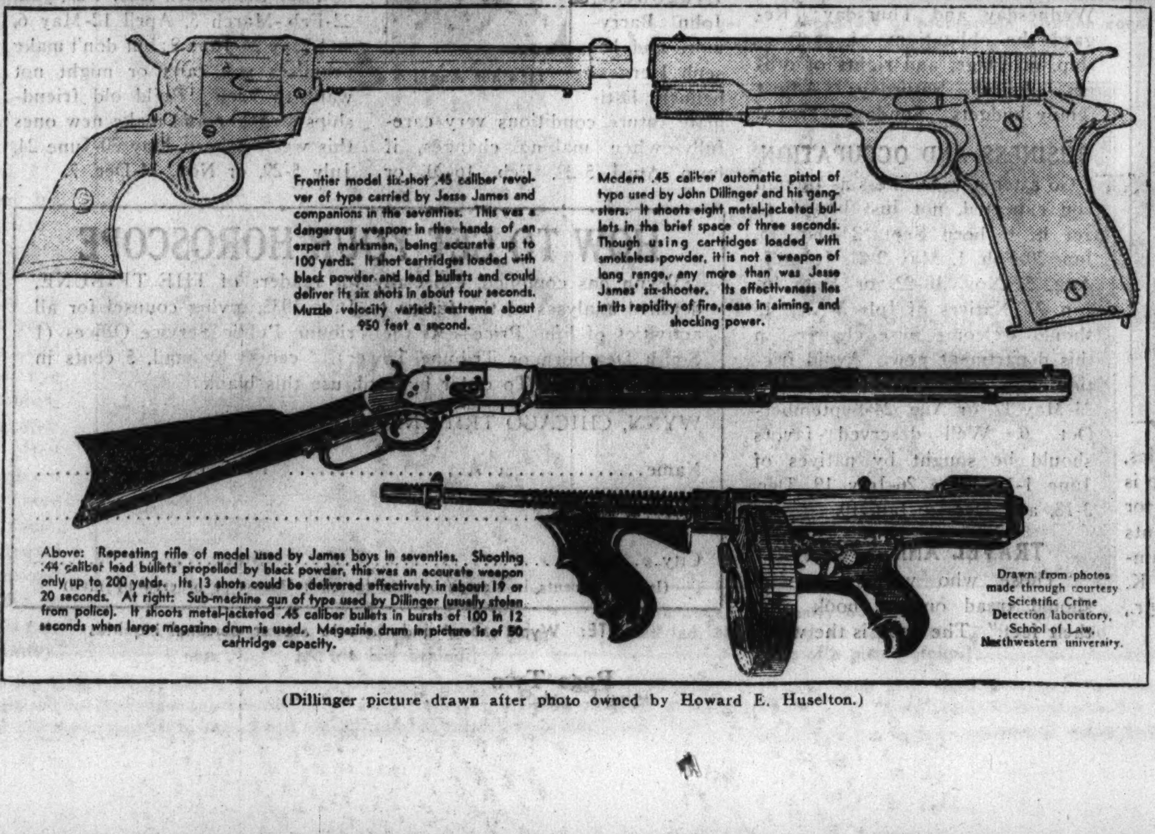
By John A. Menaugh

JESSE JAMES! JOHN DILLINGER! Missouri outlaw of a half century ago, most notorious of all in American crime annals. Modern desperado, quick-shooting killer of the age of automobiles and machine guns. How would these two compare?

What were the tools of Jesse James' profession, his weapons and his methods of transportation and escape, as compared with those employed by Dillinger? What were the obstacles of the law encountered by Jesse James as compared with those confronting Dillinger? In cold steel nerve how would the Missourian compare with Dillinger from Indiana? In cunning? In cruelty? In ability as a bandit? And how was it that Jesse James, who never saw inside of jail or prison, managed to carry on his depredations for sixteen years before he was slain, while Dillinger has been in both prison and jails?

Answers to these questions lie in the millions of words that have been written about the Missouri outlaw and in a more close-at-hand scrutiny of the environments, emotions, impulses, methods, and deeds of the wily gunman of today.

Let us first consider weapons. Jesse James, who began to live



Frontier model six-shot .45 caliber revolver of type carried by Jesse James and companions in the seventies. This was a dangerous weapon in the hands of an expert marksman, being accurate up to 100 yards. It shot cartridges loaded with black powder and lead bullets and could deliver its six shots in about four seconds. Muzzle velocity varied; extreme about 950 feet a second.

Modern .45 caliber automatic pistol of type used by John Dillinger and his gangsters. It shoots eight metal-jacketed bullets in the brief space of three seconds. Though using cartridges loaded with smokeless powder, it is not a weapon of long range, any more than was Jesse James' six-shooter. Its effectiveness lies in its rapidity of fire, ease in aiming, and shocking power.

Above: Repeating rifle of model used by James boys in seventies. Shooting .44 caliber lead bullets propelled by black powder, this was an accurate weapon only up to 200 yards. Its 13 shots could be delivered effectively in about 19 or 20 seconds. At right: Sub-machine gun of type used by Dillinger (usually stolen from police). It shoots metal-jacketed .45 caliber bullets in bursts of 100 in 12 seconds when large magazine drum is used. Magazine drum in picture is of 50 cartridge capacity.

JOHN DILLINGER

by the gun when barely sixteen years old as a member of a Confederate guerrilla outfit commanded by Bloody Bill Anderson (he never operated under William C. "Charley" Quantrill, as has been alleged), saw the old type of Civil war muzzle-loading weapons discarded for breech-loaders. In his long career of crime he used both kinds. First of Jesse's hand guns was the old Colt's navy model single-action, six-shot revolver of the cap and ball type. The six chambers of the cylinder of this weapon were loaded laboriously with black powder, wad, patch, and ball, and the nipples capped with percussion caps. Throwing a .44 caliber ball with accuracy about 50 to 75 yards, the old navy was an effective weapon only at short ranges. Jesse James; his brother Frank, considered by many biographers far abler as a bandit than Jesse, and their principal partners in banditry, the Younger brothers, all were expert shots with this type of weapon up to its extreme range of accuracy.

When the breech-loading revolver was introduced in the early seventies Jesse James and members of his band were quick to adopt it. A few weapons converted from the cap-and-ball type to the cartridge type were in the hands of the outlaws for a brief period, though the newer revolver most favored was either the Colt's

WOODEN SHOES FOR BATHING BEAUTIES

FLEXIBLE wooden soles on beach sandals are the trickiest things. Charlotte Gooding, one of the comeliest of dancers entertaining Chicagoans these summer evenings, demonstrates here how they bend easily in the middle when you go promenading on the sands, or on the hot pavements that lead to the sands. The firm rubber flange, inset across the ball of the foot, permits this leverage. To anchor the footwear securely, braided cotton cord is used. The design of the cord is repeated here, in the costume photographed, in the trim of the rubber swim suit, forming the halter neck, edging the top and slithering down the side. The huge disc of the sun hat, the suit, and the sandals are in a pale shade of blue, with white as contrast. The hat itself, of parasol proportions, has a shallow crown and yields a maximum of protection for sensitive epidermis. The wide chin strap snaps flat when not in use.

NAMES WE BEAR ARE REDOLENT OF HISTORY AND LEGEND

By Dorothy Schmidt

NAMES in the group bearing the initial P have little in common with one another, except in the case of similarity due to derivation. Their meanings are diversified and their charms, therefore, are numerous Most of them are time-honored titles, but a few are numbered among the virtually lost and forgotten. This latter characteristic should be a lure to parents seeking a name which is out of the ordinary. One seldom hears, these days, of Payne, Percival, Pierce, and Philander, or of Penelope, Phoebe, Philumena, and Priscilla. The Pauls, Philips, Patricias, and Peggies are legion. They are such fine names that they always will be popular. But the titles which have been passed up for many years are beautiful enough to deserve renewal of popularity.

Included also under the letter P are several names which are creations of Puritan England. They derive originally from Latin. After the passing of Puritanism they ceased to be used to any great extent and are, for this contemporary age, unique.

Pamela is one of these. The use of the letter "a" to close a name came in during the period of Queen Anne. That lady had her own name changed to Anna. Peace, the meaning of which is apparent, still occurs infrequently in England, the country of its origin, as do also Prudence and Patience.

It might be well to list here at least one Q name, a masculine one, which is suitable for modern boys. It is Quentin, a Latin title, and means "fifth."

The following paragraphs present information about a number of names beginning with the letter P.

Patrick—Patricius (the noble) was a title given half in jest to the young Roman-British Calpurnius, who was stolen by pirates in his youth and, when ransomed, returned again to be the apostle of his captors, and who left a name passionately loved in the land of his captivity. The earlier Irish, however, were far too respectful toward their apostle to call themselves by his title, but were all Mael-Patraic (the pupil of Patrick) or Giolla-Patraic (the servant of Patrick). This latter, passing into Scotland with the mission of St. Columba, turned into Gospatrick, or Cospatrick (the boy of Patrick) and in both countries the surname Gilpatrick, or Kilpatrick, has arisen from it. Later, these peoples left off the humble prefix and came to calling themselves Phadrig, in Ireland, and Patrick, in Scotland, the former so universally as to render Pat and Paddy the national sobriquets.

Peter—The apostle originally was called Petros, or Petrus, Greek and Latin words respectively. He went down to posterity thus distinguished. His martyrdom at Rome and the Romans' claim to him as the first occupant of their see, the Cathedra Petri, or chair of Peter, made him the first object of their veneration among saints, next to the Virgin Mary. They looked to him in his pre-eminence as the "porter of heaven." Italy, Spain, and France caught up the name in a whirl of Pietro, Piero, Pedro, and Pierre. England adopted the name Peter, borrowed from the French Piers and Pierce, which, with Peters, Perrins, and Peterson, are surnames, the last, probably, taken directly from Holland and Denmark.

Penelope—The Irish Finnghuala (of white shoulders) was not content with the gentle native softenings into Fenella and Nuala, but translated herself into Penelope. And it is to this that the numerous Penelopes of England are due.

The faithful queen of Ithaca probably was called Penelope from her diligence over the loom (since the word means "weaver"), but a later legend had it that she had been exposed as an infant and owed her life to the fact that she had been fed by a kind of duck called "penelops," after which she was named. These legends conflict, but the consensus of authorities deems the first interpretation the most nearly correct.

Phyllis—A green leaf or bough is the meaning of this name. The original Phyllis was a Thalian maiden who hanged herself because her lover did not keep his promise of returning to marry her, and she was, accordingly, transformed into an almond tree. This also is a name in Arcadian poetry, and was honored by Milton in his compositions. He described her as a "neat-handed" maiden who had a flair for cookery. Either in honor of the "neat-handed" or of the songs in which she figures Phyllis became a popular name in England around that time. At first the title was used as a contraction of the formidable feminine name of Philadelphia, but in the process of time Phyllis earned the right to being bestowed as a baptismal name.

PET RACCOON OF CATALINA

CATALINA ISLAND, off the coast of California, near Los Angeles, is the home of "Billy," pet raccoon of Mrs. George Mellick, who is shown feeding him. Raccoons are not plentiful on Catalina, and for that reason "Billy" is a great favorite with the permanent residents of the island resort. Catalina, it will be remembered, is the spring training ground for the Chicago Cubs. The island is owned by Philip K. Wrigley, who inherited it from his father, the late William Wrigley Jr., gum and baseball magnate.

STARS POINT WAY TO MAKE BEST OF WEEK

Look for your birthday or the group in which it appears throughout the following notes—it may be mentioned more than once. Mark it with a pencil whenever you see it, and then pay attention to the counsel given.

LOOK AHEAD on financial matters this week and early next, for it is better now than later to get a program properly arranged in this department. Avoid social errors during the first half of these seven days; use tact in dealing with older women. Moderate social changes for the better to be anticipated and worked for in the last half of this week. Today: Be creative and social. Tomorrow and Tuesday: Check up on health causes and effects. Wednesday and Thursday: Regard the obligations of partnership, marriage, and rights of others. Friday, Saturday: Adjust family budgets. Sunday: Travel.

BUSINESS AND OCCUPATION

Go after new business as though you expected, not just hoped, to get it, if born Sept. 22-Oct. 15, Jan. 20-Feb. 1, May 9-21, July 23-Aug. 5, Nov. 10-22, or Dec. 16-Jan. 7. Natives of July 3-Aug. 15 should welcome wise changes in this department now. Avoid friction with superiors if born April 23-May 17, or Aug. 24-September-Oct. 6. Well deserved favors should be sought by natives of June 1-17, June 26-July 19, Dec. 3-18, and Dec. 26-Jan. 10.

TRAVEL AND STUDY

"Those who would be wise should tread on the book with their feet." The book is the world (nature); the feet represent understanding. Hence: "Travel broadens one." Now is the time for travel and study, or either alone, for those born Sept. 8-Nov. 6, including all of October, Dec. 15-Jan. 6, Jan. 15-Feb. 7, May 24-June 18, and Aug. 4-28; all these can make big advances in knowledge.

PERSONAL

Some of the greatest work in the world is now being turned in by natives of Jan. 23-Feb. 15, those upon whom responsibility probably is resting the heaviest. Among the sons and daughters of this group are: Jerome Kern, Walter Damrosch, Clark Gable, Amy Lowell, Heather Angel, Jessica Dragonette, John Barrymore and Joseph Hergesheimer. Estimate future conditions very carefully when making changes, if born April 5-28, Feb. 16-20, or Oct. 22-27. Look out for snares in the departments of want-to and don't-want-to, particularly if born Aug. 18-Sept. 11, Feb. 26-March 2, or Oct. 13-16. Those born May 10-June 20 should be cautious in dealings with the opposite sex this week—keep calm and collected. Natives of June 16-July 15 should go after new business and plan ahead. These are days of opportunity through reasonable expansion for those born Sept. 21-Oct. 14; get ahead now and stay there.

SOCIAL AND ROMANTIC

Scandal isn't always a matter of heart affairs; keep this in mind when testing values this week—avoid damage to reputation if born June 3-July 14, July 22-Aug. 15, or Sept. 10-Oct. 4. Social amenities are accented for men and women born Jan. 19-Feb. 7, May 9-June 3, July 22-Aug. 4, Nov. 11-24, and Aug. 17-Sept. 9. Reasonable romantic tendencies seem all right now for those born Dec. 4-27, Jan. 22-Feb.-March 5, April 12-May 6, and May 26-June 9; but don't make promises you can't or might not want to keep. Build old friendships stronger and make new ones this week if born May 30-June 24, July 5-29, or Nov. 14-Dec. 7.

ROCKETS TO EXPLORE AIR

THE American Rocket society, formerly the Interplanetary society, recently displayed the first of its new rockets, and the completed portion of a second, to members and guests in New York. The rockets are made of metal and are designed for reaching high altitudes after being shot from a gun. Scientific tests will be made with the rockets this summer. If they are successful the society plans to build a rocket capable of soaring 25 miles.

A COMPARISON—JESSE JAMES AND DILLINGER

frontier model or the Smith & Wesson. The frontier model (illustrated on page one) generally was a .45 caliber weapon, though in some of the western regions the .44 caliber was used extensively because its cartridges could be used in the .44 repeating rifle. The Colt's frontier was a six-shooter, using cartridges loaded with black powder and conical bullets. Because these cartridges in many cases were hand-loaded at home, they varied in power and effectiveness, the extreme in muzzle velocity of the bullets from the most skilfully loaded cartridges being about 950 feet a second. The weapon had an accurate range of about 100 yards. In the hands of Jesse James or his companions it was highly dangerous at that distance, any one of them being capable of knocking a man off a horse at 250 to 300 feet. A single-action weapon, the Colt's frontier model revolver required cocking of the hammer for each shot. Some of the early western desperadoes improved upon the weapon's mechanism by tying back the trigger or filing away its catch so that the gun could be fired by merely snapping the hammer. This, when it was done with speed and proficiency, was called "fanning" the hammer. There is no reliable evidence, however, to the effect that the James boys discharged their six-shooters by other than the orthodox trigger-squeezing method. Robertus Love, whose book, "The Rise and Fall of Jesse James," is considered an authentic record of the outlaw's exploits, does not even mention the subject. Writers of the old five-cent paper-backed thriller cannot be trusted in the matter. Assuming that Jesse fired his hand gun only in the regulation way, he could have delivered its six shots in about four seconds.

What sort of side arms does Dillinger possess today as compared with the old Colt's navy and the frontier model? First, above all, he has weapons that fire cartridges loaded with smokeless powder. He is not bothered by smoke drifting back into his eyes. But this smokeless powder used in revolver and pistol cartridges, it should be noted, is not the high-velocity powder used in military and sporting rifles that propels bullets at a muzzle velocity of 2,000 to 3,000 feet a second. Revolver bullets, with one or two exceptions, have been speeded up but little since the days of Jesse James—and that applies also to those of the automatic pistol, a successor of the revolver, except in the case of the Colt's super .38 and Mausers and Lugers.

The No. 1 hand gun of Dillinger and his pals is the .45 caliber Colt's automatic (see page one, same scale as revolver), the regulation pistol of the army and the navy. This is a wicked gun for short ranges up to 100 yards or so. Being no more the long-range weapon than Jesse James' old frontier six-shooter, it is far more deadly in the hands of an expert pistol shot because of its rapidity of fire. The magazine of this pistol holds seven cartridges. Another can be placed in the firing chamber, making eight in all. As rapidly as the trigger can be pulled the eight shots can be delivered. Allowing for aiming, the eight shots can be fired effectively in about three seconds. The metal-jacketed bullets have a muzzle velocity of 809 feet a second, will penetrate six seven-eighths inch pine boards at a distance of fifteen feet, and make paralyzing wounds that stop the most determined and aggressive man or beast in quick order. It is a mistaken idea that the force of the bullet will knock a man down. The actual hitting force of an automatic pistol bullet is no greater than the recoil absorbed by the hand and arm of the man firing the weapon. It is said by those who prefer automatic pistols to revolvers that the first-named are so designed that they aim more easily than revolvers. That is a point frequently disputed, though it is a fact that the automatic is shaped so that it points in the same manner as the first finger is pointed.

When Jesse James and his fellow outlaws were graduated from muzzle-loading muskets and squirrel rifles they took up the repeating rifle, either in the full-length type (on page one) or the carbine length. The full-length Winchester repeating rifle introduced in 1873 was made in several calibers, that favored by the Missouri outlaws being the .44. Its tubular magazine held 13 cartridges (11 in the case of the carbine), which could be delivered accurately in 19 or 20 seconds at a range of about 200 yards. The repeating rifle of that time was a highly efficient weapon, as is evidenced by the fact that its manufacturers are making today a model only slightly changed from the original model of '73. It might be mentioned here, too, that the old Colt's frontier model revolver of the early seventies is still being reproduced with but slight modifications. The old .44 caliber repeating rifle used black powder and lead bullets, the last named heavy enough to do a maximum of damage and driven with sufficient force to penetrate about ten inches of pine.

Dillinger and bandits of his type rarely use the modern high-velocity rifles that have an accurate range of 500 to 700 yards. They are not in any sense expert riflemen or sharpshooters. Dillinger's favorite weapon, and the one he is said to look for first in a raid for arms on a sherif's office or a police station, is the sub-machine gun, most deadly of all killing instruments, because of its portability and rapidity of fire. It shoots a .45 caliber metal-jacketed bullet and has an accurate range somewhat in excess of that of the .45 automatic pistol, because of its longer barrel and double grips, or stock and double grips (produced in both patterns). The sub-machine gun of the Thompson model (page one, same scale as rifle but smaller scale than pistols) uses either box magazines holding 20 cartridges each or drum type magazines of 50 or 100 cartridges. The gun can be fired at a rate of 500 shots a minute, literally a spray of death. A burst of 100 shots can be delivered when the larger type drum is used in about 12 seconds. Dillinger need not be a marksman to kill with that type of weapon: all he has to do is to pour a shower of bullets at pursuer or attacker.

Jesse James' men sometimes used double-barreled shotguns loaded with buckshot for close work in bank robberies or train holdups. If Dillinger seizes a shotgun in a raid for arms it most likely is of the modern automatic type, shooting five shots as rapidly as an automatic pistol.

Jesse James and his companions in crime were horsemen, lovers of fine horseflesh, and skilful riders. On all their forays they rode horses that they had purchased with an eye for speed and endurance. In their escapes they rode horses, often stealing steeds when theirs gave out or were shot from under them. A horse cannot travel rapidly as compared with the automobiles in which Dillinger darts about the country.

When Jesse and his band rode up from Missouri to Minnesota on the expedition that was climaxed by the robbery of a bank in Northfield, they got as far as Sioux City, Ia., on the sixth day, much less than a day's run by automobile today. When Jesse and his brother, Frank, were fleeing from Northfield, leaving the other survivors of their ill-fated band to be captured by a posse, they stole two fine gray horses and covered 80 miles in two days and two nights of hard riding, a feat still talked about in Clay county, Missouri, their native section and base of operations.

Dillinger doesn't bother about buying an automobile. When he desires one he takes it, his preference being for a late model small car of high speed. When he leaves police and deputies behind he travels at a speed of 85 miles an hour. He must move fast in these days of telegraph, telephone, and radio. A jump across a couple of states is nothing to him when throwing off pursuit. Jesse James also had the telegraph to contend with, but he operated before the days of telephones and radios. It was his habit to cut telegraph wires after staging a robbery, though in the Northfield affair, in which the townsmen proved better shots than the outlaws, things were too hot for him to linger to sever the tattling wires.

Bulletproof vests are comforting garments for Dillinger and his pals. Jesse James took the sporting chance. Jesse did not raid police arsenals for his weapons. He got a good revolver, grew attached to it, and kept it, but he never did whittle notches in its butt as a tally of his victims. Omitting this last named popular practice of the early gunmen, Jesse James nevertheless was a killer, cool and courageous in the face of death, but somewhat inclined to commit murder unnecessarily on occasions when carried away by the spirit of adventure.

At other times the Bible-toting, hymn-singing Jesse was a likable fellow among those whom he trusted or among those with whom he consorted under an assumed name. He appeared as a law-abiding business man, often cracking jokes or telling funny stories. He did not drink. He did not smoke. And he seldom swore. He wore his guns under his coat where they would not show, and he did not dress like a cowboy. When he and his fellow outlaws rode forth to raid a bank or rob a train they wore long linen dusters. Frank James, Jesse's older and graver brother, is said really to have been the leader of the James-Younger gang. In the alliteration of Jesse's name is seen one reason why his evil reputation spread farther and wider than that of his brother. Though by no means an educated man, Jesse James was not unlettered and was far from being of the country bumpkin type encountered so frequently in Missouri in his day. In no sense was he a "roughneck." He was, indeed, above the average of intelligence for his time, a compliment that cannot be paid truthfully to the Dillinger person, no matter how brightly he may shine as a daring criminal. Jesse, who at the age of about four saw his Baptist preacher father depart for the golden gulches of California, never to return, remained to the day that Bob Ford shot him to death—while Charley Ford stood by ready with a revolver—a loving son of a loyal mother. Morally—and in that is meant sexual morality—he was above reproach. He remained true to his wife and loved his children. No "gun molls" nor bandit sweethearts are known ever to have figured in his career, a career sharply in contrast in that respect to that of the present-day outlaw. Dillinger, whose mother died when he was a baby, finds women—not of the type of Mrs. Jesse James—essential to his happiness.

After all, the Missouri outlaw, who was killed on April 3, 1882, by a youth whom he trusted, and the Indiana desperado, who sooner or later is expected to be plugged fatally by some village constable, city policeman, or government detective, cannot be considered as greatly unlike. Their methods differ with the difference of their periods. Both began as country boys, Jesse being born in a cabin near Centerville (now Kearney), Clay county, Missouri, and the 30-year-old Dillinger being a product of Mooresville, Morgan county, Indiana. Jesse remained, however, a man of the country, operating most efficiently in its wide, broad, and open places. Nowadays, in the age of radio, automobiles, and Dillinger, the country reaches into the city and the city reaches into the country. The country boy of today, therefore, without perceptible change, becomes the city boy. Dillinger, in fact, is as much the city gunman as the rural desperado. He is equally at home in the teeming city, in the sparsely settled woods of the northern states, and in the towns of Indiana and Ohio.

Jesse James kept out of jail as much through the loyalty of friends as through his own cunning. Dillinger has been in jail and prison. He has few if any friends among law-abiding citizens.

The Missouri outlaw never found out that the Civil war was over. That was his excuse for being a bandit. Reared in the midst of the bloody Kansas-Missouri border war, and later operating with guerrilla bands, he continued to live by the gun for sixteen years after the war had ended. The maiming of his mother and killing of a young half-brother by a Pinkerton bomb did not tend to soften his attitude toward the law. Dillinger, too, has his excuse for being a bandit. Because he received more severe punishment than a pal in his first legally recognized act of thuggery, he became the completely anti-social personage that he is today.

EVERY COUNTRY AT THE GATES

" It isn't possible any longer to shoot scenes as near Hollywood as could be done in the early days . . ." (This scene of an Iowa farm in the film " Stranger's Return " was made at Ontario, Cal.)

" Every sort of country in the world can be duplicated within easy traveling distance from Hollywood." (This Arabian desert scene for " The Lost Patrol " is a good example.)

By Rosalind Shaffer

Hollywood, Cal.

EVERY so often credulous people are worried when some promoter announces that he is going to organize a new Hollywood. Like the successors to Mary Pickford, these new Hollywoods never come to pass. One of the largest reasons is the topography of the country within easy travel from Hollywood. Every country in the world is no farther from a Hollywood studio than a location truck can drive.

With the coming of sound pictures, when it looked as if Hollywood was going to be moved bodily to New York because of the rage for drawingroom plays, with stage actors in them, location pictures were forgotten for a time. The technique of sound recording had everybody so buffaloed that it looked as if the day of the "outdoor picture" was 'done. Then some Columbus-hearted technician had the idea for filming "In Old Arizona" and it was discovered that sound could be recorded outdoors. Since then there has been an increasing tide of outdoor pictures, and this summer sees companies going forth from every studio to the good old locations, in the good old way.

It isn't possible any longer to shoot scenes as near Hollywood as could be done in the early days, when it was a sleepy artists' colony, before the expansion of the city of Los Angeles began.

" A tree's a tree and a rock's a rock,

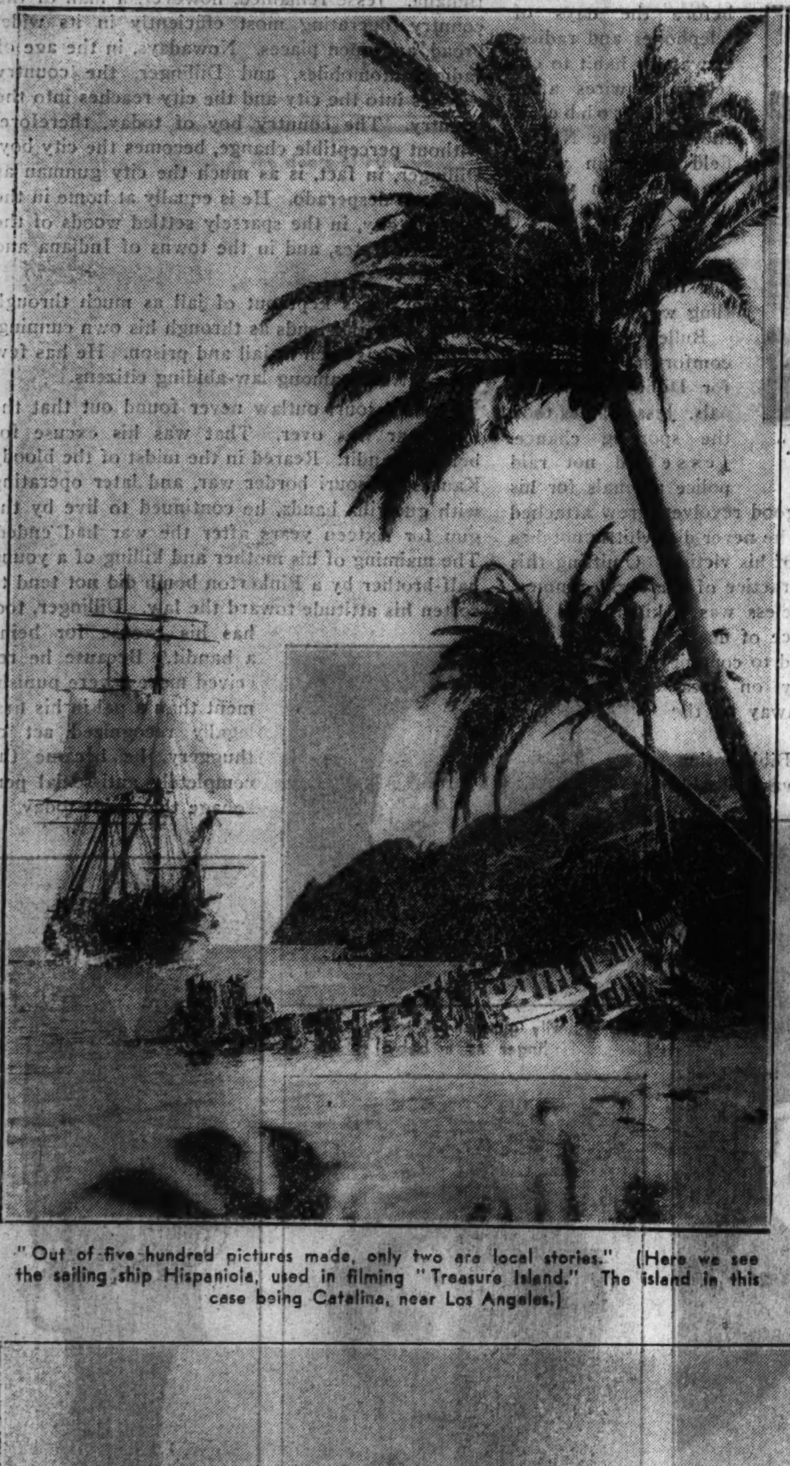
The foregoing is an old Hollywood saying credited to Carl Laemmle, which no longer applies. Griffith park, it might be explained, is a county park, embracing much wild country, on the edge of Hollywood. Hollywood mountains are no longer usable in the way that they used to be, for they have been cut up by steam shovels to lay roads to the mountaintop homes that are so popular here They can be photographed for nothing else but Hollywood mountains. Out of five hundred pictures made only two are local stories. One of the location scout's troubles is keeping palm trees, which are all over this part of the country, out of shots where they don't belong. Years ago when Paramount made the "Dressmaker from Paris" there was a shot of a middle western railroad station and an unlucky palm tree was in it. Movie reviewers were still talking about it two years later, so don't believe the public doesn't notice those things.

The development of oil wells, the stringing up of telegraph poles and the frequent passing of commercial airplanes spoiled the picturesque close-in hill country on the old Pathe back lot, where "The Big Parade" was made some years ago. In spite of these close-in locations, which have been spoiled by the march of cosmopolitan development, there still are many quite close that double in brass every season, serving as Africa, Holland, England or English seacoast, according to the way the camera is pointed, and the sets that are put up.

The selecting of locations necessitates an extensive location department, which is maintained a



" Out of five hundred pictures made, only two are local stories." (Here we see the sailing ship Hispaniola, used in filming " Treasure Island." The island in this case being Catalina, near Los Angeles.)

" One location now is equivalent to ten locations in the old days." (This scene from the picture " Operator 13 " was made at Chatsworth, Cal., a location qualified for filming scenes representing the south.)

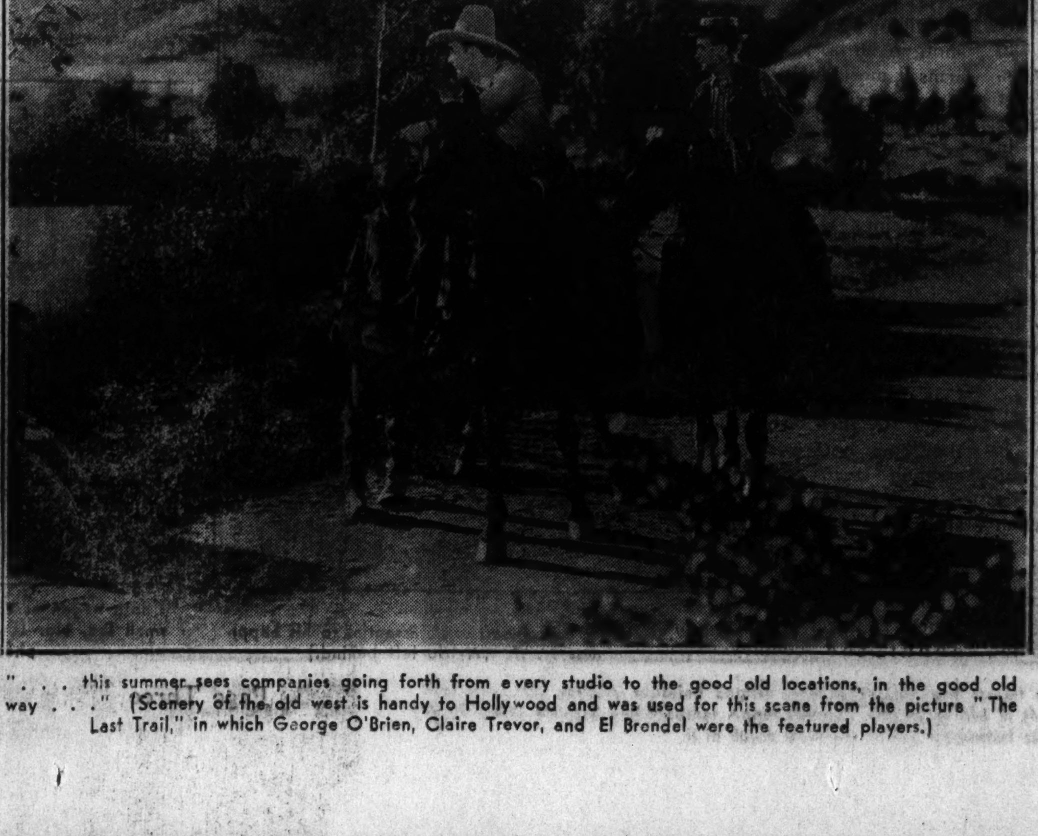
"The early scouts who settled on Hollywood as an ideal place for making motion pictures were wiser than they knew." (A striking example is this scene from Janet Gaynor's starring vehicle, " Paddy the Next Best Thing," for which Irish seacoast scenery was found in Monterey county, just below Carmel.



" . . . this summer sees companies going forth from every studio to the good old locations, in the good old way . . ." (Scenery of the old west is handy to Hollywood and was used for this scene from the picture " The Last Trail," in which George O'Brien, Claire Trevor, and El Brendel were the featured players.)

every studio. Location scouts are continually scouring the country for new, unused locations, or finding new possibilities in old ones. They hunt locations, camera in hand. Hundreds and hundreds of pictures are kept on file for reference. Sometimes motion picture film in a small camera is used. At the Paramount studio there are 37,000 different locations listed. This is not as many as would at first appear. Take the case of one home, an elaborate place in Pasadena. It is listed under seventy-five headings, such as, "Arbor," "Lily Pond," "Verandah," "Walk," "Lawn," etc. Every angle and detail that has camera possibilities is photographed and listed. One location now is equivalent to ten locations in the old days.

Due to the sound equipment that is necessary, which is carried in enormous trucks, a motion picture company going on location is like a moving circus. There will be, perhaps, seventy technicians to two actors. Some of these locations represent engineering problems for the location manager. On one occasion, a city for twelve hundred people had to be built, sanitary arrangements made, and water brought for three miles. This was for desert shots to be inserted in "Four Feathers" and was made eight miles outside of Palm Springs; the rhino fight, the camp and fort were made there.

When a location is to be selected for a picture, authentic pictures are obtained by the research department. These are then matched up, if possible, with pictures in the location department's files. It is possible in this way sometimes to get a perfect match with little actual trouble. At other times location scouts will scour the country, sometimes using airplanes to find the needed location. The early scouts who settled on Hollywood as an ideal place for making motion pictures were wiser than they knew. Every sort of country in the world can be duplicated within easy traveling distance from Hollywood. Sometimes a picture is shot in the actual locale of the story. This is another story entirely. What we are talking about is the geographic internationalism of Hollywood and its environments. The location scout, like the genii of Aladdin's lamp, can conjure up any country.

It is not always a matter of saving expense when pictures are made on locations rather than in actual locales. When "Beau Geste" was first planned, years ago, Herbert Brennon was to take the company to Africa and no expense was to be spared. Then a great deal of trouble came up and the Foreign Legion was very active in actual fighting and it would have been highly dangerous to attempt a motion picture expedition at that time. Studio scouts discovered that the country outside of Yuma, on the California side of the boundary, had miles and miles of sand dunes, more picturesque than the actual Sahara.

Florida has been the most frequently mentioned place as a possible successor to Hollywood. Hollywood has Florida, too, along with all the other countries on the map, convenient and handily located. It is at Balboa, a beach town, thirty miles from Hollywood, that Florida is duplicated.

The old south exists again in motion picture locations around Hollywood. In the Imperial valley, on a cotton plantation at Colton, was filmed "Carolina," with Janet Gaynor, Lionel Barrymore, Robert Young, Stepin Fetchit, and others. Above can be seen the old Dixie homestead of "Carolina" as located in California's beautiful valley. In southern river plays, such as "Showboat" and "Tom Sawyer," the Sacramento becomes the Mississippi.

On the Navajo reservation in Arizona, not far from Hollywood, was filmed Novarro's "Laughing Boy." In this Indian drama real Indians of the reservation were employed in a number of roles. For the famous western "Covered Wagon" the Tejon ranch and its 250,000 cattle were used.

Sherwood lake scenery supplied English rural landscape and quaint old parked estates for "Berkeley Square," in which Leslie Howard and Heather Angel starred. The huge elm in the picture under which the two rest, however, is in Busch Gardens, in the residential city of Pasadena.

STORE LASHES AND BROWS

HOPES TO HARNESS SEA WAVE

HERE is a working model of the "wave motor," which, according to its inventor, Paul Kumnel of Los Angeles, will convert the energy of ocean waves into electric power. Kumnel, a resident of the Los Angeles county farm, is seeking financial aid to construct a large practical motor, to be anchored off Long Beach for demonstration purposes. Kumnel says he can build such a working model for $300.

GERMANS DEVELOPING A CYRANO OF BEES

Home life of the bee: A, sealed honey; B, sealed brood (pupæ); C, brood (eggs and young larvæ; D, old larvæ (cells ready to be sealed); E, pollen, or bee bread; F, nurse bees; G, fanner; H, wax generators; I, guard; J, old wax.

HOW doth the busy little bee improve each shining hour? In Germany, not so well. Scientists of the Kaiser Wilhelm institute announce that this paragon of industry shows downright inefficiency at extracting honey from German red clover. But the researchers indict nature, not the bee; the honey maker's proboscis simply isn't long enough to drain the clover nectaries as it should.

The bee could be doing far more than it does to improve Germany's financial position, the scientists reasoned. So, with one eye to science and another to the foreign exchange problem, they have set themselves the task of improving on nature's handiwork; and thus the bees of Germany are to be the Schnozzle Durantes of their kind by and by.

Scientists who previously have labored along the apian trail report marked "facial" variations among bees. Dr. Wladimir Alpatov of Moscow, who has measured tongues of 10,000 of the insects, announced a few years ago that he could establish a series of laws governing variation of bodies, bebinning with the middle of Europe and proceeding southward.

"In Russia," he said, "it was found that bee tongues increase in length as one travels south, until in the Caucasus are found the longest-tongued bees known to entomology."

Aside from the matter of tongues, investigators have collected a vast mass of information concerning the bee and its complex social organization. Close-range studies have made clear in great detail the private lives of the queen, the royal mother of the colony; the drones, males which exist simply to fertilize the queens, and the workers, the female food gatherers of the hive.

An example of such painstaking investigations is the study of bee dances by Von Frisch, German professor of zoology, described by Dr. E. N. McIndoo in a Smithsonian institution report. The worker, returning to the hive with nectar from a newly discovered source, rushes into the thickest group of bees on the comb and begins a characteristic "round dance," swinging her body rapidly in semicircles. If it is a treasure of pollen she has brought back, however, she goes through a different evolution, the "tail-wagging dance," in which she alternates semicircles with quick dashes along straight lines, revolving her abdomen swiftly during her forward rushes.

Von Frisch found that other workers, which participate in the dances, subsequently dart from the hive and fly straight to the honey or pollen sources; and from this he concludes that he has discovered in part the secret of communication among bees.

WHY HE HAS NO WHISKERS

DRYING UP AN ENGLISH RIVER

BOATS and fish of the Blackwater river, England, were left high and dry recently, as this picture shows, when it became necessary to repair the lock gates at Heybridge basin. River craft, including many yachts, were removed from the basin to safe moorings. Fish were secured in trap nets. One fishing club hired trucks to stand by with large tanks to catch fish for restocking fishing lakes. Workmen can be seen working on the lock gate repairs near a boat which lies on its side in the empty river. Flood water from tributary streams damaged the locks of the basin.

BLINDFOLDED, SHOWS MACHINE GUN SPEED

SONS TO FORTUNE

By Vingie E. Roe

THE STORY TO DATE

Cymbaline, a mysterious beauty of Sacramento in the days just following the feverish fifties, operates the Calico Shroud, a gambling house which she inherited when her uncle, Tawney Jack, was killed by a bullet meant for another man. Sancho, wild young son of John Mattison, wealthy rancher, is in love with Cymbaline. Sancho's mother is Carmen, a half Spanish, half Indian woman who still lives with Mattison. Mattison, whose real name is Spurlock, had come from Missouri, where he left a wife and an infant son. That son, another John Spurlock, now a young evangelist, comes to Sacramento. Chief among Spurlock's feminine admirers is Roselle Tarrant, daughter of a wealthy merchant. Dan Haddon, banker, forces his embraces on Cymbaline in the Calico Shroud. Sancho kills him; is jailed, and released under bond.

INSTALMENT VII.

ROSELLE and John Spurlock took the river road, where the bare trees sang a little in the winter wind and the ground, beaten by the recent rains, rang under their horses' hoofs. The bay was a fine horse, limby and full of spirit, but he looked heavy beside the one the man bestrode, rested and groomed after its summer's monstrous trip.

That great brown creature was something to arrest the eye. The girl saw the difference immediately and drew her breath with a sigh of admiration.

"I thought this bay was a beauty," she said, "when father showed him to me, but that horse of yours dwarfs him at every point."

"I wouldn't say that, Miss Tarrant," the man said, "for that is as fine a mount as one could expect to find in a new country, where the breeding of horses has not been given thought. In Missouri, where this one comes from, they are beginning to raise horses for the saddle altogether. I doubt if you could find this one's equal anywhere in California." And he patted the shining chestnut shoulder with a loving hand.

"O, yes, you could!" cried Roselle. "That's something I've heard some talk about. When you first came to Sacramento people said, 'He's got a Mattison brown!' But we all knew, too, that it couldn't be so, for Mr. Mattison does not sell his horses. There's nothing like them anywhere—except this one of yours. And," she added, hesitant but truthful, "one pair that is here in town."

The young preacher pricked up his ears, as it were.

"Yes?" he asked. "And where did Mr. Mattison get the strain—originally?"

"They say he brought it with him years ago from Utah."

"It is possible," he said presently, "there have been some good horses brought through with the wagon trains."

SO THE matter was disposed of, and the two fell to discussing the future of the country itself, a grave matter for such young heads; the work on the capitol building, which was going up so slowly, and finally the war across the continent. But this the man could not go into.

The horrors of its memories were too ghastly.

"Man's inhumanity to man, Miss Tarrant," he said painfully, "is no fit subject for so young and tender a woman to contemplate. Let's let it lie."

"But you," she said yerningly, "have been in it. That—that——" Her eyes on his cheek where the long scar ran finished her thought, and he put up a hand to cover it.

"Yes," he said, nodding, "and should be now but for this. It would not heal and so invalided me out of service. The long ride of the crossing in the sun and the healing winds accomplished what medicine could not, it seemed. It is only recently closed."

"You are brave," she said impetuously; "only the brave enlist for war."

"Wrong. Many enlist for exactly the opposite reason—because they are not, and are ashamed."

"Then let's play a little now. Here's a fine place for a gallop."

And he held up a trifle, waiting for her to take the lead, which she did with one loosening of the tight rein she had held. Instantly the big bay leaped into stride, was away down the smooth road by the river, the brown coming after in a lovely syncopated gait that carried it, square and level, ahead so fast that it overtook the other and stayed beside it without effort.

"O!" cried Roselle. "He's a single-footer!"

"A racker, Miss Tarrant," he smiled. "A Missouri rackin' horse."

"Exactly like that one that Sancho rides!"

"Sancho?"

"Sancho Mattison."

"The murderer!" said the preacher grimly.

"O, don't call him that! I can't bear to hear it! Sancho is my friend—from dancing school days."

"What? Why, isn't he—a—isn't there—he's not a white man, is he?"

"Of course he's white!" cried Roselle furiously. "His father is Mr. John Mattison of the Rancho Santa Anita, the wealthiest cattleman in all this country!"

"I beg your pardon. But I thought—I saw him that—awful night—and took him to be a Spaniard or an Indian."

"He's part of both—of all three," said the girl, calming down, "and wild—poor Sancho!"

"I see. Forgive me. I didn't know. He must be a dear friend of yours."

"No," said Roselle miserably. "Only a friend—not a dear one. We were children together."

"At any rate, forgive me."

"And you me. I am so quick of temper!"

SO THEY rode and talked, and the sun went low in the murky west, and they turned back toward the town. The man was due to preach in his tabernacle that early evening, and the girl must be home at the reasonable hour demanded of young girls in that time and place, and so they let the mettled creatures beneath them go back at a smarter pace than they had come—and if John Spurlock had not been watching the glowing cheeks under the little green hat with the feather in its side he would have seen by the firm hands on the reins, the graceful and expert seat in the new saddle, that Roselle Tarrant was a horsewoman of parts, that she had not needed anyone's escort for safety's sake.

They went back swiftly, and just as they entered the town they came suddenly face to face with two tall brown horses stepping together like clockwork, their broad foreheads, hips and heels, their arching long necks, their long flanks, long legs and tails, their short backs and ears, proclaiming their racial kinship to the one John Spurlock rode. Behind them old Mr. Perrin sat stiffly erect. And in the victoria itself, its top laid back, Cymbaline reclined most elegantly. At sight of the two approaching her eyes changed suddenly to that dark slate blue that just precedes the storm. For one moment there were in her lovely face all the ravages of anger, shame, and hate—the dusk, the look, the blush.

Then, like the snapping of a finger, these things were wiped from it by the indomitable spirit in her, and as the riders drew aside to let her carriage pass this girl looked straight at the man who had publicly denounced her—and if ever a Magdalen drooped with sorrow for her sins, she drooped then. It was in the wide dark eyes that gazed at him, in the partly opened mouth over the uneven teeth—those little teeth and bowed pink lips that could work a man's undoing—and in the sudden sinking in together of the slender shoulders. The whole small body of her seemed to shrink, as if she covered her spiritual face with her hands.

He had seen a stricken soul before.

He had never seen a Cymbaline before—not as she looked then.

He did not realize that he had seen that team before, either, nor that it was the laughing face of this girl with Cy Wheeler's pipestem candy between her lips that had kept him from seeing them with recognition then.

He only sat still in his saddle with his hand on the slack rein.

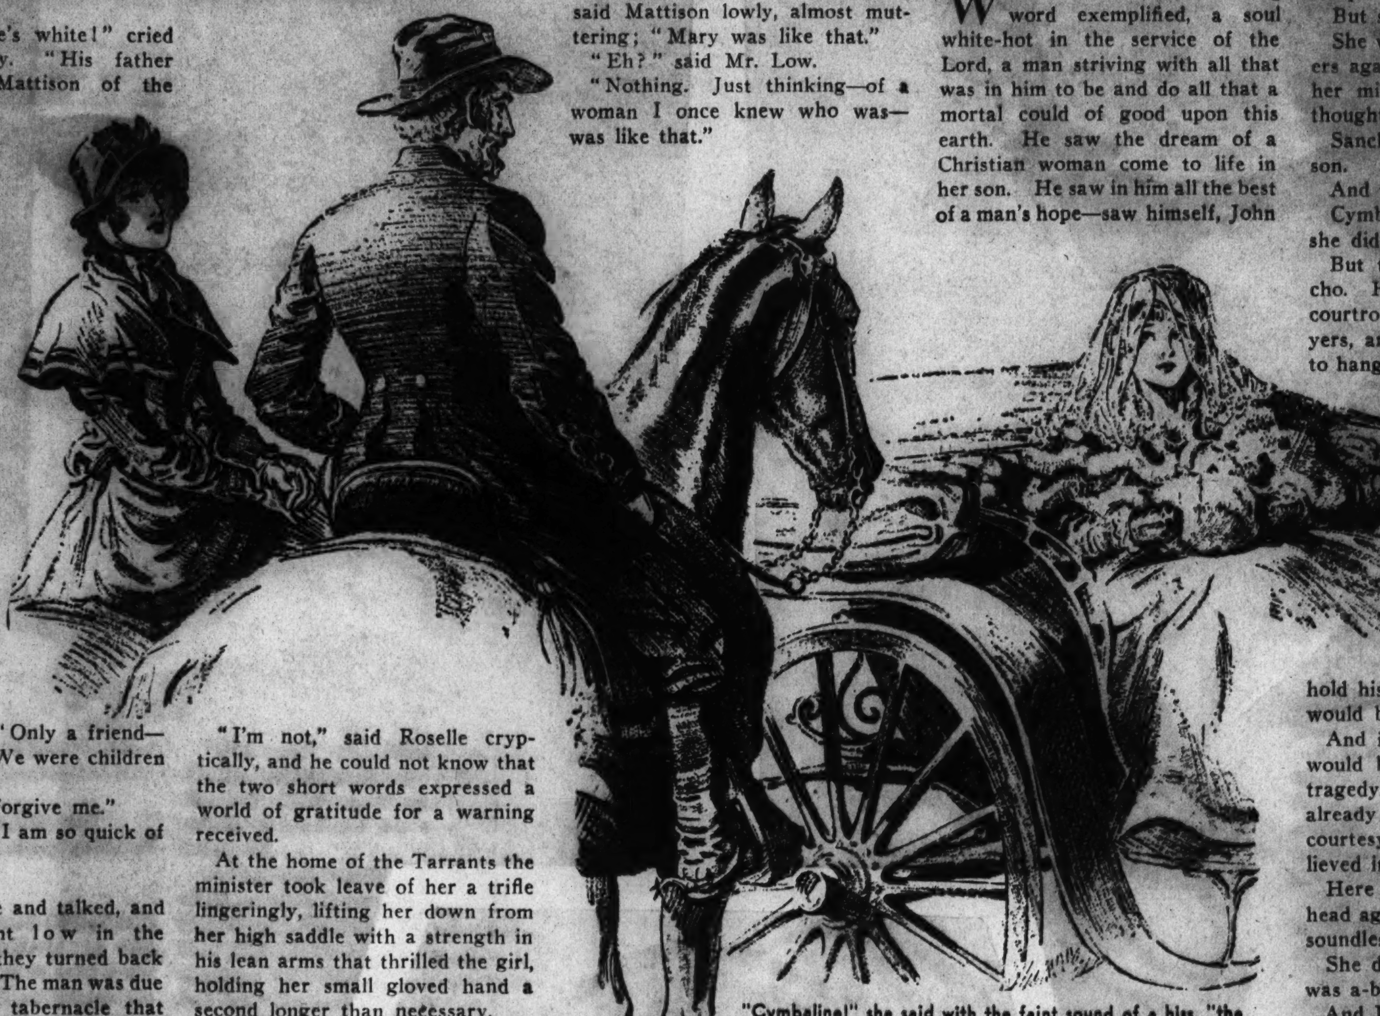
And the moment was done, the equipage passed.

But Roselle Tarrant had seen—everything.

With a woman's intuition she had felt a chill of portent in that surcharged second, her heart contracted with a sharp, cold fear.

"Cymbaline!" she said with the faint sound of a hiss. "The woman behind Dan Haddon's death!"

"I'm sorry," said the Rev. Spurlock, "that you should have had to look upon her. She is not for the eyes of innocence."



"Cymbaline!" she said with the faint sound of a hiss, "the woman behind Dan Haddon's death!"

"I'm not," said Roselle cryptically, and he could not know that the two short words expressed a world of gratitude for a warning received.

At the home of the Tarrants the minister took leave of her a trifle lingeringly, lifting her down from her high saddle with a strength in his lean arms that thrilled the girl, holding her small gloved hand a second longer than necessary.

Mrs. Tarrant, from an upstairs window, beheld the matter with a tight mouth. She loved her daughter dearly, her happiness was paramount to her, but she had not expected it to be involved with a penniless preacher from Missouri. So the good lady was agitated, but somewhat helpless, knowing her daughter.

JOHN MATTISON stayed out at Rancho 'Nita as long as the unrest in him would permit. Then he harnessed the geldings and came in to town. Sancho, silent and noncommital still, remained in charge.

It was a long drive in from the foothill country, and the cattleman sat forward on his buckboard seat, the reins held loosely in his hands, his feet fixed on the dash, unseeing.

The moiling emotions set loose that night at Gov. Low's house still surged within him like a tide. He felt old and tired, burdened with grief. He would have been better off at home, in the saddle, than here on the road to town, but something in him urged him on. He had to look on the pale, ascetic face of the evangelist again, must hear his voice. He had put it off as long as he could. Now he could no longer resist this necessity.

It was late afternoon when he reached Sacramento, put up his team at Bauquier's. He made some purchases in the stores, walked about from this saloon to that, talking with men whom he knew. He was questioned frankly about Sancho, told as frankly how the boy was taking his trouble. He saw Mr. Low and thanked him again for getting his son out on bail, a proceeding unusual, to say the least, in a case of its kind, although it had precedent.

"It's nothing, John," said Mr. Low, "and will be nothing. The trial is set for the 18th, I hear. Don't worry. Men have been killed for vastly less than Dan Haddon did and their executioners gone free. Public sympathy, while strong for Mrs. Haddon, is all against the dead man. If Sancho had not killed him, someone else would have. Texas Joe, I think, from what I hear. They say he was rising to draw, but the boy was too quick for him."

"Yes, he was," said John Mattison. "I saw him from where I stood by the bar."

"Sancho is approved by most everyone. That new young preacher from Missouri, who denounced them all, has stirred up a hornets' nest in the town. Did you know that he publicly reviled the girl Cymbaline not long ago?"

"No. What for?"

"Yes?" said Mattison thickly.

"And he refused it. Took it as an insult to God. He is without doubt earnest, fearless—they say he has served in the war—still wears his old uniform—but he is entirely lacking in tact. He should have let Cymbaline alone. Too many men adore her."

"He could not compromise," said Mattison lowly, almost muttering; "Mary was like that."

"Eh?" said Mr. Low.

"Nothing. Just thinking—of a woman I once knew who was—was like that."

Restless, his hat low over his deep eyes, John Mattison passed in the town, waiting the shadows and the sound of singing from the big slab structure on J street that would announce the beginning of evening services. Every night since his arrival the young evangelist had held a service of some kind, somewhere. Also he appeared in this doorway and that where sinners foregathered, with his upraised hand, his terse text called above the roar of laughing, swearing voices. For the most part these roistering sons of bedlam granted him a moment's silence, held by the spell of his burning eyes, the sight of the book in his hand, although of late there had been here and there a laugh, a jeer, a coarse taunt called out to him. He had lost immeasurably by that one unbending adherence to his narrow creed.

A LITTLE later Mattison, walking slowly in the wet dusk, came to his place of worship, stood for a long time outside its doors. A constant stream of people was pouring in, their earnest faces proof of the serious thinking they had done of late. Mostly these were women and children, sprinkled with sedate men.

Roselle Tarrant, over her mother's protestations, had moved her own little parlor organ to the tabernacle, offered to play it. Its sweet tones pierced the rainy night under the voices already taking up the opening hymn.

And presently the congregation was gathered within and only John Mattison stood outside, listening, his face cut deep by lines of suffering. What old memories stirred in him, what sorrow and regret, none might say. His eyes beneath his hat brim were pools of dark light, his great shoulders drooped, his gnarled hands were shut hard.

And presently there was silence, a clear voice raised in prayer.

Back across the years, across half the world it seemed, John Mattison went in spirit. He saw a cabin in the Missouri hills. He saw a woman with the sun on her golden head where the neat braids lay, a young woman, clear eyed and eager, whose old Bible lay always within reach. He saw a little child, golden of hair like her, gray eyed like—its father. He saw the child on its tiny knees beside the woman, heard its lisping voice in now-I-lay-me, even though it could not yet form the simple words, it was so young, so very, very young. At that vision the hard hands shut yet tighter, so tight that the knuckles stood out white against the sun-browned skin. The eyes beneath the hat brim burned like fox fire in the dark. And presently Mattison moved over beside the open door where he could look down the long aile to behold the preacher on the platform.

Long he stood in the outside shadows and looked upon that man.

WHAT he saw was the living word exemplified, a soul white-hot in the service of the Lord, a man striving with all that was in him to be and do all that a mortal could of good upon this earth. He saw the dream of a Christian woman come to life in her son. He saw in him all the best of a man's hope—saw himself, John Mattison, as he might have been, not as an evangelist, but as a man, clear, earnest, honorable—as he had been so long ago in those Missouri hills. A sweat of anguish was at his temples, a tightness lay about his heart, a yerning that was almost unbearable took hold on him and shook him to his boot heels.

He saw yonder on the platform not the man grown in his almost terrible spiritual power, but a little, little boy with golden curls.

Mary's son.

His son.

And like a shadow across a lighted sky there passed suddenly before him the dark, passionate face of Sancho, wild, drunken, murderous.

Carmen's son.

His son.

Hostages to that strange thing called life—mystery—fortune—his own sons.

Fortune, thought John Mattison, sons to Fortune.

For good or for evil he had given them, fruit of his loins, seeds of his soul, the best and the worst of him.

And that grim joker, Fortune, had brought them together, here across the world—had flung them, at the first tragic meeting, into direct and terrible opposition, their faces set against each other, a woman between them!

Flaming with dark passion—burning with white fire—they met in this new country, and the stage was set for drama, perhaps for tragedy.

Slowly the huge figure of the old man sank back against the rough slabs of the tabernacle, slowly the great head bent, slowly the hands went up to the haggard face, and for the sins of his youth John Mattison wept.

AS THE time set for Sancho Mattison's trial drew near a terrible fear began to grow up in the heart of Cymbaline. She had not seen the boy since that ghastly night at the Calico Shroud, and she had missed him. Nuisance though he was with his constant implorings, his somber eyes, he had his place with her. He had been her satellite, her courtier on bended knees, as it were, his steady homage a flattering reminder of her power. And she had liked him more than she knew.

Now he was no longer here. His familiar figure in its gay Spanish clothes was gone from the Calico Shroud, and it left a surprising gap. All these things she told herself to cover up, smooth and hide and solace that fear inside her. It was her way, this sliding over, this shutting of eyes that she might not see and recognize her own fault; vain, shallow, pampered, she would not admit herself in the wrong, ever.

And yet in the lonely nights between her silken covers the fear came out and faced her, so that sometimes she covered her lovely head, tried deliberately to go to sleep.

But she could not sleep.

She would snatch down the covers again, stare into the darkness, her mind a whirlpool of moiling thoughts.

Sancho again—and John Mattison.

And the Law.

Cymbaline feared the Law; why, she did not know.

But the Law would have Sancho. He would be taken to the courtroom; there would be lawyers, arguments. They would try to hang him for the killing of Dan Haddon. And she would be behind all the Law, all the lawyers, all the arguments. She and her power.

Every smile she had given Sancho, every melting glance of her blue eyes, every wile she had practiced to hold his passionate love—all these would be behind.

And if they hanged Sancho she would be behind John Mattison's tragedy. Poor old man, with his already tragic eyes, his gentle courtesy! John Mattison, who believed in her—as few men did.

She did not know it, but a soul was a-borning in her.

And Roselle Tarrant was thinking of Sancho, too, with a sorrow that was tinged with viciousness. If it hadn't been for the—the wanton—she could not yet quite use, even in thought, the preacher's harsher word—he would be riding his tall brown horse along the streets, his broad hat cocked on his handsome head.

And John Mattison was thinking.

Day by day he looked at his son with so strange an expression that the boy laughed, as he did rarely now, making light of the matter.

"Stop worrying, padre," he would say. "I'll come out all right. And if I don't, why, quien sabe? Maybe it's for the best. At any rate, it will have been for Cymbaline."

THE preacher thought also, and thundered from his pulpit against the lawless taking of life, against the judgment of men that should belong to God.

Indefatigable, he was like a living flame in his daily service.

He hunted for souls to save, for bodies to help, for the hungry to feed. But most of the available souls that came to his tabernacle were already saved; there were few sick in the healthy new land, and fewer poor.

He did one thing in these days, however, which was notable.

He told the public from his platform that he was searching for a man who had come to the west over twenty years ago and had been swallowed up in the wild country—a tall man with gray eyes and a kindly face.

He told the story of the mother waiting, waiting throughout the lonely years, of her lowly grave, of her mission to make of him a minister. He told it all, making of the sorrowful story a vital picture of life, but he cast no faint reflection on the man who had been lost, for the very simple reason that he had never known one.

Never once had Mary Spurlock cast a shadow on the memory of the husband and father who had deserted them—who had bought them off with California gold.

So he showed them a son's desire to find his father, or that father's grave if any knew it, and asked if any man or woman had ever known John Spurlock the first, that they would come and tell him.

But no one under the sound of his voice had ever heard the name until he had brought it among them.

They shook their heads and promised to ask old settlers thereabout, and the preacher did not speak of the matter again.

So the days passed, and the eighteenth of February came in a mist of rain, with a cold wind blowing it in sheets, and the town was full of people. Ranchers from the foothills, cattlemen, riding in buckboards and on horseback, they flocked in to the hotels to see what the law would do to a wild boy who had killed a man for a mysterious girl.

The Mattisons came in the day before, and Carmen was a Spanish senora from the tall comb in her smooth black hair to the high-heeled lether shoes on her feet.

They stayed at the Waverly house, and for once in his life the boy must stay quietly away from gambling hall and saloon. The lobby of the hotel became a meeting place for the personnel of the law, for John Mattison's friends and Sancho's, for most of the prominent men of the town. They talked and moiled about, discussing the whole case frankly.

But no one mentioned Cymbaline.

Also no one spoke of that firebrand, the Rev. John Spurlock, nor of Roselle Tarrant, who had so openly thrown herself into the evangelist's cause.

An impromptu caucus was held until the small hours of the morning with the Mattisons' lawyer, Hiram Beady, in full evidence and genial with expected success, and finally disbanded with much backslapping and friendly cheer.

THE next morning was a fit setting for the work on hand, dark, with rain in fitful gusts, and the courtroom was jammed with men. There were few women. Carmen Mattison was there, in her mantilla, and, like the star of a play on a stage superbly set, Cymbaline in her finest coat of pale gray plush.

The girl was cold and trembling, and if ever in her life she had dressed for the eyes of men, she had done it that day, from the ringlets fluffing at her temples, the long curls hanging divided on her shoulders, the rings on her waxen hands, to the rose-embroidered silver dress showing between the panels of the opened coat, the little dark gray velvet shoes with their pearl buttons. She was a better argument for Sancho Mattison and against the dead Dan Haddon than all the legal thunderings to follow.

Court attaches met her, led her tenderly to a prominent place, and all eyes gazed upon her, some pensively, some avidly, but all adoringly.

Texas Joe, clad meticulously in black, his pale face inscrutable, sat quietly some distance behind her.

The court came to order promptly. There was little lost motion in getting under way in that early time and place. A jury was selected with only three challenges. It was impaneled with dispatch, and the machinery of the law was set in motion.

Mrs. Haddon was not present, although she would be called later to be questioned as to her husband's treatment of herself and children.

It was significant of the pity of the town that she was left alone as long as possible.

1—Who? Clew: Her "Little Women" hairdress.

CARICATURIST SEES STARS WITH A FUTURISTIC EYE

YOU may never have seen a dream walking, BUT have you ever beheld Greta Garbo in BEATEN IRON? No? Well, the eyes of a Graphic staf artist, George F. Lundy, rested on this latter strange sight one day.

This impression of the Swedish star, made by the Spanish sculptor, Pablo Gargalla, intrigued him greatly and caused his fingers to twitch emulatively. He gathered about him photographs of screen players with outstanding characteristics and went to work making caricatures which would simulate wood carving with metal trim. Katharine Hepburn's aquilin profile and "Little Women" hairdress (1) were admirable material. Joan Crawford's huge eyes and extravagant lips (2) served nobly. The droll Arliss physiognomy and his monocle on a ribbon (3), the Marie Dressler hat and expression and deeply circled eyes (4), Jimmy ("Schnozzle") Durante's nose and wild, scant hair (5) proved grand inspirations.

Just drawings—but aren't they deceptive? Wouldn't you swear—if you didn't know—that these impressions were photographs of wood carvings?

5—That famous nose.
